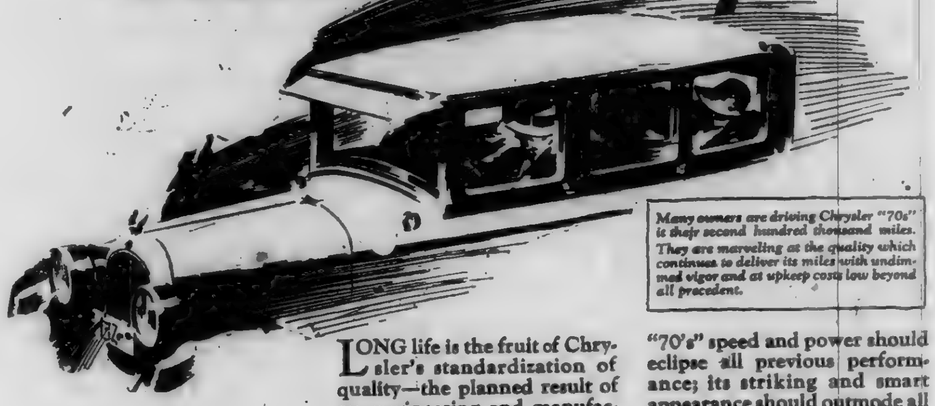
How Quality Standardization Builds Long Life in CHRYSLER "70"



Many owners are driving Chrysler "70s" in their second hundred thousand miles. They are marveling at the quality which continues to deliver its miles with undimmed vigor and at upkeep costs low beyond all precedent.

The Chrysler plan of Quality Standardization differs from, and is superior to, ordinary manufacturing practice and methods, because it demands fixed and inflexible quality standards which enforce the same scrupulously close limits—the same rigid rule of engineering exactness—the same absolute accuracy and precision of alignment and assemblage—in the [illegible], the machining and the manufacturing of every part, practice and process in four lines of Chrysler cars—"50", "60", "70" and Imperial "80".

LONG life is the fruit of Chrysler's standardization of quality—the planned result of an engineering and manufacturing precision which, in its all-embracing scope, is new to the motor car industry.

Where ordinary engineering is satisfied with the customary margins of safety, Chrysler engineering has provided lighter alloy steels tested under stresses thousands of pounds greater than they will ever be called upon to meet.

Where ordinary manufacture is usually content with limits of a thousandth of an inch, Chrysler "70" craftsmanship painstakingly calibrates in ten-thousandths.

Therefore, it has only been logical that not only Chrysler "70's" speed and power should eclipse all previous performance; its striking and smart appearance should outmode all existing body design, but—

Most important of all—that its remarkable endurance should be obsoleting pre-conceived ideas of durability and long life, even though its hundreds of thousands of owners exactfrom their cars the seemingly impossible in performance.

We are eager to demonstrate these Chrysler "70" superiorities.

CHRYSLER "70" PRICES

Danny Is Undecided

Whene'er you can't make up your mind,
Do nothing: it is best, you'll find.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

If ever any one in all the Great World was disappointed, that one was Danny Meadow Mouse. When he peeped around the bend of the creek and discovered no one but the Sandpipers he didn't know what to think. He had been absolutely sure that he would find there a man driving stakes. But there was no stake driver there. Still, he could hear those stakes being driven. Whack! Whack! Whack came the sound. It seemed now to come from around the next bend in the creek. Danny sighed. This was a big bend. Danny didn't know whether to keep on the way he was going, along the mud at the foot of the bank, or whether to climb up and cut across. He finally decided to keep on the way he was going.

"It may be longer around this way, but it certainly will be easier going," said Danny to himself.

So once more Danny started on. He didn't go quite so fast now, because, you know, he had traveled quite a distance for such a little fellow. His curiosity was just as great, however. He had set out to see that stake driver and he meant to see him. So with frequent stops to rest, Danny kept on.

As I already have said, it was a big bend in the creek. It was such a big bend that it changed Danny's position completely in regard to the point from which that stake driving was coming. When he reached the very farthest point on that bend on the other side, and this was almost behind him,

"It may be longer around this way, but it certainly will be easier going"

Danny noticed that the noise wasn't quite the same as it had been. It didn't sound so much like the driving of a stake. Danny ran on and turned the bend. Still he heard the sound, but it was less and less like that of a stake being driven. It reminded Danny of something else. He sat down to think it over.

"Now, what is it I have heard that sounds like that?" said Danny to himself, and listened more intently than before. Then it came to him. "Why," he exclaimed in that funny little squeaky voice of his. "Why, it sounds just like that old wooden pump up in Farmer Brown's dooryard! That is queer. I don't see why there should be a pump down here. That stake driver seems to have stopped driving stakes and now he's pumping. It is queer, very queer. Well I ought to see him when I get down way around this bend."

Pump-er-lunk! Pump-er-lunk! It certainly did sound as though there was a bump going down in that cove. Danny was so excited over this that he forgot all about the stake driver. He forgot that he was tired. His little legs fairly twinkled, he made them go so fast. He was well around the bend and almost into the cove when he stopped abruptly. There was something queer going on. Yes, sir, there was something queer! First, somebody had stopped driving stakes and begun pumping. Now, somebody had stopped pumping and was making other noises. Sometimes Danny thought he heard the stake driving, and sometimes he thought he heard the pumping, and other times they seemed to be all mixed together. Danny didn't like it. It gave him a queer feeling. There was something mysterious about it.

So Danny was undecided whether to go on or to go back. Curiosity urged him to go on. Common sense urged him to go back. It really was no business of his who or what was making those noises. Danny knew this. Still, it seemed a pity to come so far and not find out. So Danny was undecided.

Stomach Troubles Are Due to Acidity

Tells of Pleasant Home Treatment to Bring Swift Relief.

So-called Stomach Troubles—indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, sourness, etc., are, in probably nine cases out of ten, evidence of "too much acid in the stomach" souring the food, causing the formation of gas and starting acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes a full, oppressive burning feeling known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining. Get rid of Gas and Acidity, and you get rid of Indigestion.

To stop or prevent the sourness and gas, to neutralize the stomach acids and keep the stomach sweet and free from indigestion, a teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia should be taken in a little water after eating or whenever gas, sourness, pain or acidity is felt. This quickly sweetens the stomach, neutralizes the acidity, stops the pain and is harmless and inexpensive to use.

Bisurated Magnesia, powder or tablets only, can be obtained from any drug store and its daily use keeps the stomach in fine condition, enabling it to do its work without the aid of artificial digestants.

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 21—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Dorsey, 83 Neptune avenue, this morning received a message from their son, Edward Dorsey, a resident of West Palm Beach, Fla., a section of that state which was damaged by the hurricane Friday. Mr. Dorsey stated that he was safe, that his home was damaged but slightly and that he was then proceeding with a relief party for Miami where the property loss and fatalities were great.

JUDGE PRINCE TIPS DRUNKS THAT IT IS JAIL FOR THEM

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 21—Judge Victor Prince practically served notice today on drunks who appear frequently in the police court that they will go to jail after they have established records as offenders against the laws of the state and the city. Andrew Fallon has been a frequent defendant in court during a dozen years, always arraigned for intoxication or vagrancy. He was there this morning charged with drunkenness. His plea was guilty and he had no excuse to offer because he was found in a condition of intoxication that warranted his being placed in custody. He was sent to jail for a stay of thirty days.

Thomas Carroll was in the same class with Fallon and he too was committed to jail. These men are of the class that toil only occasionally and that loiter about the streets and wharves much of the time.

Fred Chapman forfeited a bond of $25 this morning in preference to appearing in court to answer a charge of intoxication. That's a pretty stiff price, but Chapman was willing to pay it apparently.

Lionel M. Winkler left his automobile on Bank street yesterday in a restricted area where it was supposed to be at the command of a fellow who was to drive it away. Connections missed and the car was parked so long a time that it was tagged. Winkler explained to the court and judgment was suspended.

The police were notified last midnight that a horse was rosming about the highways of Gardner and Ocean avenues and was in danger of being injured by being struck by an automobile. Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman George Laboue were sent to take charge of the animal and finding it on Gardner avenue placed the horse in a lot because the owner could not be located.

An automobile driven by Sebastian Muscarella, 77 Bayonet street, struck an unidentified woman on North Bank street this morning, the woman, however, receiving only slight injuries. Muscarella was approaching John street and at the same time the woman started to cross North Bank street. She stepped to the middle of the highway and was struck and knocked down. The woman refused to reveal her name, but she did consent to accompany Muscarella to the office of a physician where it was found that her injuries were no more serious than bruises about the body.

A Ford automobile that had been parked on Walbach street a month was taken in charge by the police this morning, removed to a garage and placed in storage until claimed by the owner. The police were unable to locate the owner.

Sergeant John Cavanaugh this morning recovered loot stolen recently from the garage of Michael Doyle, Grand street contractor. The articles stolen were not of a valuable nature and although the identity of the thieves was revealed they will not be prosecuted, as Mr. Doyle did not desire that that course be pursued.

Antonina Gigliotti and Mario Gigliotti have sold a house and lot on Crystal avenue, corner of Front street, to Patrick V. Devine.

Ricardi Girl has sold a house and lot on Crystal avenue to John and Clara Deuig.

Joseph G. Mondelci has sold a house and lot on Ashcraft Road extension to Rose DiMaggio.

Theodore Bodenwein has sold a house and lot on Vauxhall street to Leroy H. and Ella M. B. Getchell.

The funeral of Miss Lillian Hyde was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her home, 48 Division street, the services being read by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge. Friends acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The funeral of Margaret M. Treanor, wife of John Treanor, was held at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Michael Reagan. The bearers were Nicholas Duggan, John Treanor, Peter McGee, Patrick Devine, John Noonan and Michael Doyle. At the close of the mass Edward Te Murray sang "At the Foot of the Cross." Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Fr. Reagan.

George W. Nelson, of United States Coast Guard Academy; Mrs. William Keyes and infant son, 137 Shaw street and Miss Adelaide Kandall, 67 Ramsdell street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

The first meeting of the newly elected board of directors of the chamber of commerce of Groton, was held last night and the following officers were elected: President, L. B. Bietzel; first vice president, Cornelius C. Costello; second vice president, Harry Ellon; secretary and treasurer, Leo Brogan. President Beitzel will appoint his several committees within a few days and they will be announced at the October meeting of the chamber.

New Londoners who own real estate in Florida are reported to have sustained losses to a greater or less amount. The stories however cannot be traced to reliable sources and no doubt originated in the fertile imagination of the parties who started the reports. The stories of the losses are perhaps like the tales told of enormous profits made in Florida.

Mackerel which struck on in the waters adjacent to this city some days ago are said to have disappeared again, and the catches made are small.

The police report that their business has "slowed up" during a few days and that the number of arrests are very few.

AUTO OWNERS MISSING— OWE A BILL AT THE HOTEL

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 21—The police this evening ascertained that the automobile, which was taken in charge by them last night, having been found on Church street, near Union where it had been parked the entire day, and which is registered in the name of Dorothy Glaser, alias Dorothy Crane, of Stratford, was being used in connection with the Glaser woman in the solicitation of magazine subscriptions. Where she is at present the police do not know. The automobile is now in storage. The Glaser woman posed as the wife of James Rogers, who was in charge of the subscription work. Rogers secured accommodations at the Hotel Mohican and he also is missing, having left the hotel without paying his bill.

I., the daughter of Ezekiel and Anna Brewster Smith. Mr. Wordell is employed by the Southern New England Telephone company.

John Rodriques, of Waterford, will be presented in the superior court at West Kingston, R. I., tomorrow morning charged with manslaughter. Rodriques is being held in bail of $5,000 following an indictment being made by the grand jury of Washington county yesterday afternoon. Rodriques entered a plea of not guilty. Rodriques was driving his automobile through Charlestown two months ago. The automobile collided with an auto driven by Anthony Guera, New Haven, and he sustained injuries from which he died.

Francis Sullivan, Herbert Adams, Donald White and George Donovan, New London men, were also indicted on charges of breaking and entering in the night season. They pleaded not guilty and were held in bail of $200 each for trial this week. The young men are accused of having broken into a gasoline filling station and store at Charlestown last June. White, Adams and Donovan were arrested in New London, several days after the burglary, being found at the home of White, in East New London, by Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith and there some of the plunder was recovered. Sullivan was not arrested until a month later.

Considerable anxiety is entertained in New London for the safety of Mrs. Charles Christiansen, formerly of New London, who has been a resident of Miami, Fla., about a year and whose home was in the heart of the devastated district. Mrs. Christiansen, who was Miss Edna Green was formerly stenographer in the office of City Clerk Julian D. Moran. Four youths, whose ages range from five to 14, flirted with death this evening. The youngsters went to the lumber wharf of the Chappell Coal company where they entered a rowboat that was moored to a sloop belonging to Capt. Julius Ordman. The boat was not supplied with oars, but the youngsters secured flat pieces of wood, then untied the painter and started out on the river, paddling a considerable distance from the wharf and going into Shaw's cove. The youthful oarsmen were seen by a man in a launch, who went alongside the rowboat and towed the boat to its place of mooring. In the meantime the police had been notified of the dangerous pastime of the boys and Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray was sent to the wharf. He arrived there in time to be present when the boys landed and took charge of them, bringing them to the police station, where they were turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. Captain Ordman stated that he believed the rowboat had been stolen for he missed it this morning, although the boys declared that they did not enter the boat until dusk and that they had not used it before.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Capitol Theater, Willimantic

The best of our season's bookings at the Capitol will be No, No, Nannette announced for Thursday Sept. 23. It is hardly necessary to add, since the fame of No, No, Nanette has long been on everyone's lips, with its world triumphs still fresh in the minds of all, that this is the musical play that includes those two famous song hits, I Want to Be Happy and Tea for Two. We have been singing and two-stepping to them for a year. Now we are to have them in their native setting —and that, should be glory enough for our theatrical season.

Breed Theater

A double feature program will be offered at the Breed theater today and Thursday. Heading the bill is the William Fox special production of Mark Twain's funniest book, A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court.

A Connecticut Yankee is purely American classic. It has been translated faithfully to the screen, and all the rollicking humor of the book is heightened by the visual appeal.

Mark Twain was not a humorist alone; in each of his books, even the funniest, he pleaded a cause. In A Connecticut Yankee he argues for the modern ways of doing things, and proves that we are lucky to be living today and not in the days of old when knights were bold.

Martin Cavendish, the Yankee, young, shrewd, up-to-date, finds himself suddenly back in the middle ages, among King Arthur's Knights of the Round Table. His adventures there are made to play a part in Martin's own modern love romance.

There is hardly a moment without a laugh. Thanks to Emmett J. Flynn, the director, the settings superb—notably the scene of the tournament, wherein, Martin, dressed as a cowboy and armed with revolver and lariat, routs all of King Arthur's knights.

Pat O'Malley, one of the most popular of present day leading men, has the principal male role in Let Women Alone, the Frank Woods production, which comes to the Breed theater today and Thursday as an added attraction.

The story is an adaptation by Woods of Viola Brothers Shore's Saturday Evening Post story, On the Shelf, and was directed under Woods' supervision by Paul Powell. Other players in the cast, besides O'Malley, are Wanda Hawley, Ethel Wales, Wallace Beery, J. Farrell MacDonald, Harris Gordon, Betty Jane Snowden, Margaret Morton and Lee Willard.

Broadway Theater

The circus is coming to town!—what thrills that gives the youngsters and what excuses it gives the older folks to go along with them, when, if the truth is known they get more fun out of it than the kiddies. The circus, which this announcement heralds, is a regulation three-ring and two-stage affair, with all the animals, the sawdust, the funny clowns, the acrobats, 'neverything but instead of it being presented on a lot about a mile out of town it will be seen on the screen of the Broadway theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday when the latest Gotham production, Hearts and Spangles is featured.

Wanda Hawley is the dainty circus rider and Robert Gordon is the clown. Supporting them in the cast are such prominent screen folk as Barbara Tennant, Eric Mayne, Frankie Darrow and others.

And then come the great B. F. Keith vaudeville stage offerings, that will help make this the outstanding program of the new season.

The supreme feature is Bargain Days which comes here direct from a tour of the principal vaudeville theaters. It is described as a miniature musical comedy with six people. The scenic investiture is also worthy of mention. Four additional acts will complete the program.

Broadway Theater

Book-lovers and the hundreds of Blankville readers of Edith M. Hull's novel, Son of the Sheik, will be interested in the announcement that Rudolph Valentino in the screen adaptation, The Son of the Sheik, is to come to the Broadway theater starting Sunday.

It was Mrs. Edith M. Hull who wrote the best-selling novel, The Sheik, which Valentino made into a sensationally successful film several years ago, and in The Son of the Sheik a sequel to The Sheik, he is said to excel the former performance. Agnes Ayres, who was the lovely lady of The Sheik, returned to the screen especially to play in The Son of the Sheik with Valentino.

Vilma Banky, exotic Hungarian beauty, plays the part of Yasmin, dancing girl of the desert, whose actions are misunderstood by the man whom she loves. In the characterizations of the fiery youth who tries to break the will of the girl he thinks a deceiver and the dancer, as well as in the retention of the stormy spirit of the desert tale, it is understood the film is made along the lines of the book so that readers should find thrilling entertainment at the Broadway theater when The Son of the Sheik brings Valentino to town. This is the great lovers last picture and unanimously declared his masterpiece.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

The combination of a reduced scale of admission prices and such a program as that being presented at the Palace has proven immediately popular with the public as evidenced by last night's big audience. The feature picture is Rex Beach's famous Cosmopolitan magazine story, "Padlocked" with Lois Moran, Noah Beery and Louise Dresser in the featured roles. A powerful story of the life of a beautiful, high spirited girl of today driven in desperation to leave her home by the rules of conduct laid down by her bigoted and hard hearted father, the play is romantic and thrilling, easily one of the finest pictures of the season. On the stage, Marguerite White and Louise Scheerer, members of Roxy's Radio Gang from the Capitol theatre, New York; delighted the Palace patrons. The added attractions include a new Aesops Fable "A Bumper Crop," Alice Day in her new Mack Sennett comedy "Alice Be Good" the topical events showing among other interesting news the Yale and Harvard football teams starting training Walter Lang and his musicians playing a symphonic arrangement from Faust with accompaniments for the picture program and stage presentation added largely to the enjoyment of an exceptionally high class program.

NORWICH MERCHANTS UNITE IN THREE FALL OPENING DAYS

A co-operative fall opening in all lines of business, has been arranged for by Norwich merchants and will begin tomorrow (Thursday) and continue through Friday and Saturday. This movement is arranged for and carried out through the co-operation of the Retail Merchants bureau and the Chamber of Commerce.

Movements of this kind serve a great public good as these seasonal openings have an exceptional interest for all women, who desire to keep in touch with the changing fashions and a great many make it a point to attend all the important openings. This often necessitates several trips down town as the practice has sometimes been to hold these openings at a time best suited to the convenience of the individual merchant.

A conservative estimate places the combined stocks of all the Norwich stores at more than one million dollars. These stocks which include the newest fall fashions and the most dependable staple merchandise are now ready for inspection. Every well known or widely advertised brand of merchandise is sold in some Norwich store and in their endeavor to give the utmost in value, quality and service, the Norwich stores stand as a unit.

In arranging for this co-operative opening the merchants had in mind the convenience of the shopping public. With every line of business holding their openings on the same days it will be possible for everyone interested in the new seasonal merchandise to come down town on any one of the three days selected for the co-operative opening and visit all the stores, that may interest them, in one trip.

Moreover, in selecting Saturday as one of the opening days the merchants had in mind the convenience of out-of-town customer who makes Norwich a shopping headquarter or as many of these customers find it convenient to visit the city on any other day than Saturday. While the merchants look for a good attendance at the fall opening on Thursday and Friday, it is expected that a large number of out-of-town customers will take advantage of the co-operative fall opening on Saturday, when all the stores will be in gala attire.

RECOVERY IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP)—A general recovery took place in today's stock market which overcame an early selling attack and bounded upward under the leadership of prominent issues such as U. S. Steel and Allied Chemical. Spirited rallies were staged by a number of high grade rails, public utilities and industrials among which net gains of 3 to 6 points were common.

At 1-2 per cent. renewal rate for Call loans, the lightest since March 3, had a temperarily unsettling effect on the market since it was believed that its retention would soon compel an advance in the Federal Reserve rediscount rates. This selling, however, was easily absorbed and prices headed upward aided by the covering of short lines put out after the first reports of the Florida disaster yesterday.

Coincident with heavy buying of U. S. Steel, Allied Chemical and the shares of other corporations with large undistributed surpluses, reports were circulated in Wall street that the tax on undistributed income would be enforced unless more liberal distributions were made to stockholders. Officers of these companies, however, denied that hints of any such action had been received.

The recovery in U. S. Steel carried that stock up to 146 3-8 at the close, a net gain of nearly 4 points while Allied Chemical soared 6 points in Adams Express, which reached a new peak at 128 1-2 also carried American Express and American Railway Express substantially higher. Case Threshing Machine, Westinghouse Air Brake and Commercial Solvents "B" and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe moved up 3 to 5 1-2 points.

Aside from the establishment of a record high price by Nickel Plate at 195 7-8, there were few outstanding features in the railroad list. Union Pacific responded with a rise of nearly 2 points to the large increase shown in its August earnings report which is expected to be a forerunner of other favorable statements.

A strong demand for the sugar shares, centering particularly in American Sugar, South Porto Rico and Cuba Cane preferred, was predicted on the favorable trade position of the industry. Large sales of both raw and refined sugar recently have been made at the best prices of the year.

Motor stocks, after feeling the full force of the early selling movement, recovered most of their losses in the subsequent recovery. General Motors mounted to 159 3-8, the highest price since the deduction of the stock dividend, but closed 2 points under the top for a fractional net loss. Hudson Motors closed a point higher at 53 after selling within a fraction of the year's low and Mack trucks rallied from 166 to above at the close.

Call money ruled at 5 1-2 per cent., all day, but funds were reported in free supply at the close after a heavy turnover. Time money and Commercial Paper were firm, but rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were slightly lower in day of dull trading, French francs at 3.73 cents were about 35 points below the high level quoted early in the month and Belgian francs were about 15 points lower at 2.80 cents. Demand Sterling held below $4.85.

An advance of more than 2 cents a bushel in wheat prices, due to unfavorable weather in the northwest, was the feature of the commodity markets, cotton declined 4 to 8 points, with October and December at the lowest levels of the season. Coffee prices were from 4 to 19 points lower but sugar held around the year's high prices recently established.

NORTH STONINGTON FAIR OPENS WITH CROWD TO SEE EXHIBITS

(Special to the Bulletin)

NORTH STONINGTON, Sept. 21—The sixteenth annual fair of the North Stonington Grange, Inc., opened here today and will continue tomorrow and Thursday. The weather today was ideal and the attendance compared very favorably with first day crowds in past years. Tonight, Prof. Harrell of Boston gave a splendid musical and magical entertainment for the benefit of the evening visitors.

Wednesday promises to be the big day of the fair. It is Old Home day and a special Old Home programme has been arranged by the grange officials. Swahn's band of Norwich is scheduled to give a concert program at 10.30 o'clock in the morning and will also be on hand for the Old Home entertainment in the afternoon. In fact there will be music, old time selections, by the band throughout the greater part of the day. Among the speakers will be Rev. Hamilton Chapman of Roxbury, a former North Stonington boy; Attorney Charles L. Stewart of Norwich, another former North Stonington boy and Rev. Geo. Gilbert of Middletown, widely known preacher. A dozen or fifteen little girls will appear in Old Home dances.

Tonight the fair patrons enjoyed free dancing and there will also be free dancing Wednesday evening. Secretary John B. Perry stated that this year the grange decided to admit children free. This plan has been adopted in an effort to interest the younger generation in farm products and is the grange's contribution to the "back to the farm" movement.

Main Exhibition Hall Attractive

The exhibits this year are large in practically all departments and are splendidly arranged under the direction of the various superintendents. The main exhibition hall is most attractive and is well filled with articles of all description. On the main floor are shown large quantities of beautiful dahlias and numerous other fall flowers. The flower show is attracting much attention and very favorable comment this year. On this floor of the exhibition building are shown many varieties of home canned fruits, vegetables, etc., prize eggs, pies, cakes, honey, apples, luscious grapes, peaches and other fruits too numerous to mention.

Five School Displays

The second floor is devoted to the school and fancy work displays. This year the children of five local schools are entered in competition for worthwhile prizes. The children are allowed to make their entries free of charge, and their exhibits are well worth inspection. Clever drawings, sailboats, birdhouses, squashes, water melons, pastry and vegetables are shown by the children.

Rugs, mats and a wide variety of fancy work are shown on tables about the sides and in the center of the large room. These exhibits are a souce of attraction for the women folk and a good number of the articles were made by women members of the grange. As usual there is a colonial exhibit.

Near the entrance to the exhibition hall is located a display put on by the Suburban Gas Co., of Westerly. They are showing Protained bottled gas and demonstrating its use.

Splendid Vegetable Exhibit

Secretary Perry quoted Prof. Williamson of the Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs, Conn., as stating that the North Stonington grange has the finest vegetable exhibit in the state. The exhibit is truly a splendid one and is of wide variety.

Large Poultry Show

In the poultry department fully 1,000 birds of various breeds are shown. The poultry department is one of the most crowded departments on the grounds and is annually showing a steady growth. If the number of entries continue to increase the North Stonington grange will soon have to construct another building to take care of the hens, roosters, chickens, ducks and geese that are brought to the grounds by the truck load.

Cattle Exhibit

The cattle exhibit is not as large as it has been in other years. However a score of fine cattle are on exhibition in the sheds.

Native Chestnuts in the Burr

One exhibit in the main building must not be overlooked. This is a display showing native chestnuts in the burr. The branches were taken from a three year old tree and the exhibit is entered by James C. Lee of No. 66 Mechanic street, Westerly. The chestnut branches came from the Lee family's summer home in North Stonington.

Army Recruiting Tent

Uncle Sam is taking a part in this year's fair. Two non commissioned officers of the United States army, Corporal Walter A. Smith and Corporal C. W. Kimsey, both of whom have a number of years service to their credit, have been sent here from New Haven for the three days of the fair. The soldiers are on recruiting detail and have a large recruiting tent near the main entrance to the grounds. They have also erected a pup tent. Corporal Smith and Corporal Kimsey are well versed in army life and are ready to give all information possible regarding service in the United States army. They are not only ready to provide information about the army but are equipped to enlist recruits.

The Midway

Along the midway are grouped a dozen or more concession stands. The doll booths, blanket booths, candy booths, etc., a tintype man, and a thriller. A fair sized business was reported by most of the concession men.

Burdick has a large restaurant tent on the grounds where excellent meals are being served. Creamy root beer is also being dispensed at this tent. King's of Westerly has a beverage stand nearby and near the main exhibition building Pattison, the well known Norwich candy man, has a candy table. The exhibits along the midway include one of the Aetna Engineering Co., Westerly, showing the Burk super turbine pump, furnaces and washing machines.

The officers and directors of the North Stonington grange are as follows:

Ellsworth Gray, president; Irving R Maine, vice president; John B. Perry, secretary; Clifford B. Thompson, treasurer; directors, Frank W. White, Ellsworth Gray, Clifford B. Thompson, Lila Thompson, Edna Cook, J. D. Avery, I. R. Main, Grace Thompson, John B. Perry; superintendent of the grounds and rental, Ellsworth C. Gray.

EARL PHILLIP SENDS WORD OF HIS SAFETY

Mrs. L. Walter Phillips of 422 Laurel Hill avenue heard Tuesday by telegraph from her son Earl who is in Hialeah that he and his wife are safe and unhurt but their house had been destroyed in the hurricane. They are living in a house owned by James I. Hewitt on the same lot. This apparently indicates that the Hewitt house has been left liveable at least.

Mr. Hewitt, who lives on Laurel Hill road, said Tuesday that he had been intending to go back to Hialeah about Friday of this week, but he thought he should wait another week now. He owns several more small buildings in Hialeah, but has heard nothing directly about the condition of his property.

Given Miscellaneous Shower

A pretty miscellaneous shower was given to Miss Anna Brown, Monday evening, in honor of her approaching marriage to Marvin James of Indianapolis, Indiana. A mock marriage was performed with Miss Helen Kellander as the bride, Miss Elna Erickson, the groom and Miss Verd Waters, the minister. A Charleston exhibition was given by Dorothy Herrick. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Elizabeth Riley of New London and Mrs. Kathryn Erickson. The hostess received many beautiful and useful gifts including linen, glassware and money. The wedding will take place in the early part of October.

The spaced silk fringe is in rose, blue, black and gold. The hangings are in the style of mediaeval ecclesiastical art.

ANY SKIN SORENESS of Infants, Children and Adults

Sykes Comfort POWDER HEALS THE SKIN

Norwich Produce Market

(Furnished by the Commissioner of Agriculture of Connecticut.)

Peaches are offered freely this morning with liberal supplies brought in from other sections of the state. Elbertas predominate but a few Belles are also offered. The price is a little lower but the demand is slow. Supplies of Bartlett pears, both home grown and New York state are moderate and a very few Sechels sold for $2.00. Native musk melons are plenty at 5c a pound, but sell slowly. Oranges have taken a jump upward and appear to be still advancing. Very limited supplies of New York state grapes sold 25c per 3 pound basket, wild grapes $1.00-$1.50 per 14 quart basket and California table grapes $1.50-$1.75 per box.

Tomatoes sell very slowly although plenty and cheap, sweet corn appears to be a little easier but cabbage met a stronger demand than for several weeks. Cauliflower is high and scarce at any price.

Poultry continues steady but eggs are very firm with the best westerns advanced about 3c per dozen. Butter, both tub and print, has also advanced 1c-2c.

Beef still holds very firm with a tendency to advance and other meats are steady.

Flour is easier with some brands lower and other grains and feeds continue steady.

MISS COGSWELL TALKS ON GARDENING IN THE FALL

Masses of hydrangea, boltonia, helinium, dahlias and wild asters, with bouquets of pink and white asters, on small tables, made a very effective setting for the interior garden party held by the Norwich Art Students association Monday evening.

One new member was voted into active membership at the business meeting held at 7.30.

At the close of this meeting a large audience listened to a talk by Miss Amy Cogswell on Gardening in the Fall. She said plants are very human and temperamental. We cast our eyes over what remains after a black frost and learn from observation what we often forget if we are not familiar with annuals and their vagaries. She then proceeded to give her audience many useful "dos" and "don'ts" for gardening. Perennials may be planted as late as October 15; trees and shrubs up to November 15. Trees should not be planted in the fall. The well anchored before the storms and winds of winter come. Rock gardens should not be plante din the fall. The wash of winter and lack of cover all work against success.

Phlox may be planted in the fall. Separate by pulling apart and give it deep soil.

Seedlings from perennial seeds put in in July are now ready for cold frames, also biennial seedlings; the winter being very hard on these latter plants. It is a source of great satisfaction in the spring to have the knowledge that part of the remaking of the garden was done in the fall.

Lilies, except the Madonna should be planted late in the fall.

Peonies should be planted now, and if necessary to separate, this should be done by careful pulling apart rather than cutting.

All shrubs which do not bloom late in August or early September may be put in now.

Be careful how spots of color are dropped in the yard. Every garden needs much green.

Tulips for best effect need much ground cover.

Roses should be planted the first of June when they are in leaf and should not be purchased from persons selling the cut flowers. This exhausts the plants.

Boltonia, asters, helinium, anemones, chrysanthemums should be set out in the spring.

Don't uncover plants too early in the spring, when the frosts are liable to kill; this is especially true for fall planted material.

Miss Cogswell closed her talk by giving this as an answer to "Why do we plant gardens?" "The earth is our mother. We are bound to her by the closest of ties, human and divine. And so we put our plants in the ground once more; we cover them on the bosom of mother earth and trusting like little children absolutely in the miracle of the resurrection in the spring."

Many questions were answered by Miss Cogswell after which a social time, with punch and wafers served, was enjoyed.

F. H. Pullen Gains After Operation

Reports that are very encouraging and gratifying to his many friends are received of the condition of Frank H. Pullen of 52 Lincoln avenue who is in a hospital in New Haven where a major operation was performed a week ago Monday. He has rallied well after the operation and is reported to be gaining strength daily.

STATE AND NATION PAID TRIBUTE TO NATHAN HALE

State Observance of the 150th Anniversary of the Tragic Death of the Martyr-Patriot Was Held in South Coventry —Men Prominent in Public and Civic Life Eulogized the Life of the Young Schoolmaster Who Gave His Life for His Country—President Coolidge Forwarded a Message to be Read at the Services by Governor Trumbull.

SOUTH COVENTRY, Sept. 23 (AP)—A state and a nation today paid tribute to the memory of one of Connecticut's most beloved heroes—Nathan Hale—who on September 22, 1776, was hanged as a spy by the British and who gave to the world the expression of loyalty and patriotism "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

The state's official observance of the anniversary of his death was held at the First Congregational church in South Coventry, the town where Nathan Hale was born and where he received his boyhood days. The nation's tribute to Connecticut's hero was given by its president, Calvin Coolidge, who forwarded a message to be read at the services by Governor John H Trumbull.

Many prominent in the state's government and civic life eulogized the Nathan Hale school children throughout the state held special exercises commemorating the 150th anniversary of the execution of the young school teacher and representatives of many patriotic organizations took part in the exercises here.

The Rev. Congregational church was provided tonight when the invocation was given by Rev. Sherrod Smith, chaplain of the Putnam Phalanx. Hundreds who could not gain admittance to the building remained on the lawn and were able to hear the addresses with the aid of great amplifiers arranged on the outside of the church.

Governor Trumbull was accompanied to the exercises by Colonel Chas. H. Allen, of Rockville and Senator Hiram Bingham, one of the speakers of the evening, was accompanied by Major Haughton Bulkeley of Hartford. The addresses were broadcast through radio station WTIC.

The governor was presented to the gathering by Dr. William L. Higgins, chairman of the county committee and after paying the state's tribute to the memory of Nathan Hale the chief executive read the message from President Coolidge.

Gov. Trumbull's Address

"We are assembled here today," Governor Trumbull said, "to do honor to one of Connecticut's most illustrious sons. We have come in the faith and accuracy of this anniversary of the day the Nathan Hale, young and gallant, proudly and nobly walked at his captors that fateful morning to make expression of patriotism that I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country.' The devotion to his country and the courage of his convictions are the magic secret of nation-building. The Roman empire rose to the height of its power on the devotion of its citizens whose example was taught from earliest childhood the duty of loyalty to their country. No nation that has arisen from time to time has done so through the loyalty and devotion of its people—the devotion of which was displayed by Nathan Hale when he captured a supply boat moored in the East river, although in the shadow of a British man of war. Having volunteered he entered the enemy lines in search of military information.

"It is the same devotion displayed by the men at Gettysburg and at Chateau Thierry.

"It is the kind of devotion that we need in some part of our every day life. It is not something to take off and put on at will, not something that should be dormant until awakened by the fury of a world cataclysm. Devotion to our country is a mantel to be worn every day as the Roman senator wore the toga, a mantle of his dignity.

"The same devotion may often be required, at even smoldered by our hands to and to self-striving to advance personal interests. When self-interest becomes paramount the individual becomes worse than a useless citizen to his government.

"The inspiration of Nathan Hale should be so embodied in our every day life that we may not leave it necessary for each person to be law-abiding, public citizens, but that each may feel a personal responsibility in the government of the country that it may be such a glorious eminence among the nations of the earth.

"To celebrate the Hale anniversary should be to profit to us to eulogize him unless the lessons of his fellow citizens are rendered patriotic by the deeds of more than us in defense of our country. We take to heart the lessons they have taught us. They have fought and they have shown their devotion to a great cause and they have given their lives that that cause might be preserved, whether in peace or war.

"It may be said with truth that the dangers of peace are worse than the dangers of war and that is particularly true of our country. Every day shadowy and forces are contending with each other on one side or the other for the most precious battles all of us are called upon to wage.

"On a day like this that we commemorate should we not more pledge ourselves to keep faith with America in the same manner as did Hale and all noble heroes who have gone before us. We can render greater service to carry out the principles for which they made the supreme sacrifice.

"We cherish Hale's memory by those deeds of his that were happy in the influence of the belief that as long as American ideals are what they are, the life and heroic death of Nathan Hale will be an ideal or fair of its kind."

A musical address and an eulogy of Nathan Hale was given by Senator Hiram Bingham.

The services closed with the sounding of taps by Corporal Nicholas Candido, of the 2nd company, Governor's Foot Guard and the benediction by Rev. Charles E. Johnson.

The county celebration was held on the green this afternoon with many school children taking part. Introductory remarks were made by Dr. William L. Higgins of South Coventry, the county chairman after which there was singing of patriotic songs by the children.

Congressman Richard P. Freeman, of New London, in an address told of the younger days of Nathan Hale, touching upon the hero when he was a school teacher in his native town.

Dr. A. E. Meredith, state commissioner of education of Hartford, drew lessons for the youth of the state from the inspiring life of Nathan Hale, telling of Hale's love for athletics and giving other incidents of his earlier life of the hero.

After an address by Rev. D. A. Morgan pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church, the Nathan Hale oration was given by Charles Phelps of Rockville.

There were twenty three divisions in the Nathan Hale day parade and 2,000 school children of Tolland county participated.

George Dudley Seymour of New Haven, owner of Nathan Hale's birthplace for the past fourteen years, gave a dinner tonight in the original dining room of the home. Fourteen guests attended, including Charles E. Mondell, dean elect of Yale college, Frederick S. Jones, of Yale Colonel Francis Parsons, of Hartford, a member of the Yale corporation, Howel Cheney of Manchester, also a member of the Yale corporation Miss Henrietta Hale Ha of New Haven a descendant of Deacon Richard Hale father of the patriot and Major Charles W. Seymour of Hartford.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S TRIBUTE TO NATHAN HALE

COVENTRY, Conn., Sept. 22—(AP)—President Coolidge feels that the life of Nathan Hale, young Revolutionary patriot, typifies one of the needs of the present—a willingness to serve one's country because of "just a desire to be useful."

This expression by the president was made in a letter read tonight at ceremonies commemorating the 150th anniversary of the death of Hale, who was captured and hanged by the British while attempting to obtain information for General Washington.

Quoting Hale as saying at the time he undertook the dangerous mission that he "wished to be useful," the president wrote:

"Can anything be finer than this. No thought of glory or reward of any nature, just a desire to be useful.

"What is needed today is a better realization of the majesty of service in the less spectacular and it may be, the unpleasant and obscure duties of life. * * * How wonderful if every one could be brought to realize the nobility of unselfish service in the things that 'need to be done.'"

Recalling Hale's words at the time of his execution that "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country," the president said that his death, because of his having served, was not lamentable but "a glorious radiant moment."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—(AP)—The senate is certain to be democratic after the approaching election, Chairman Gerry, of the democratic senatorial campaign committee, said today upon his return to Washington.

"The republicans are talking lively about a wonderful prosperity that does not exist and are wasting time to keep up their courage.

WARDROBE OF MEN WHO EARN $35 TO $50 WEEK

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22—(AP)—The wardrobe of a man earning from $35 to $50 a week was outlined today by Captain A. J. Murdock, of London, before the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers' convention. It should comprise, Captain Murdock said: Two sack suits, one dinner suit, a dozen pairs of socks, three pairsof shoes, tan, black and patent leather, two dozen handkerchiefs, a soft gray or brown felt hat and one derby.

American men have the physique to wear clothes properly, but they pay too much attention to color and not enough to the texture of goods, Capt. Murdock said. American women, too, show good taste in men's apparel, but sometimes their idea of "a good looking tie," Captain Murdock characterized as "atrocious."

JURY DELIBERATING ON THE FATE OF DISTILLERY OWNER

BRIDGEPORT, Sept. 23—(AP)—The fate of Dr. A. R. Campo, alleged distillery owner, is still to be decided. After nearly two hours deliberation late this afternoon, the jury in criminal superior court was unable to reach an agreement and Judge L. P. was unable to reach an agreement and Waldo Marvin, before whom the case has been tried for the past two days discharged the jury. It now rests with State's Attorney William H. Homley, as to whether Dr. Campo will be tried again before a new jury.

A mass of evidence and testimony presented to the court during the two days trial by State's Attorney Comley in an effort to prove that Dr. Campo was guilty of the charge of manufacturing liquor. Defense counsel insisted that Dr. Campo neither knew of or aided and abetted the operations of the men who admittedly were distilling whiskey, so-called, in an almost completely concealed house on the grounds of the Independent Relief hospital at Noroton, of which Dr. Campo is the owner, when the raid and arrests were made last July 14 by federal prohibition agnets and Darien police.

Judge Marvin charged the jury not to let their feelings as individuals toward the Volstead act or the state prohibition law to enter into the case either if they were staunch supporters of the law or anti-prohibitionists. Judge Marvin also said that it was not enough for the jury to decide that Dr. Campo knew the crime was being committed, but that for a verdict of guilty to be rendered, it must be shown that the accused aided or abetted or in some way assisted or knowingly protected the men who had installed and were operating the large distillery plant on his hospital grounds.

Dr. Campo will be at liberty until the state's attorney takes action to bring the case to trial again.

TWO HOUSES ON BELL ISLAND WERE BURNED TO GROUND

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 22—(AP)—An eleven room house and a smaller home on Bell Island, off Stony Creek, and owned by William H. Hackett, formerly of New Haven and now residing in Linchmont, N. The island is one of the thimble group, containing about three acres of land and located three quarters of a mile directly off shore from the public docks at Stony Creek. The islands and houses were bought by Mr. Hackett about four years ago, from Joseph Hullinger of New Haven.

Arrested on Charge of Smuggling Aliens

Three Officers and Six of Crew of British Steamer Held at Boston.

BOSTON, Sept. 22—(AP)—Three officers and six men of the crew of the British steamer Pinar Del Rio were arrested on shipboard tonight by federal officers and lodged in the East Cambridge jail charged with smuggling 15 aliens into the country through this city on the night of September 20.

Information from Stamford, Conn., and Jersey City, where three taxicab fonds of Chinese and Spaniards were discovered and arrested last week, led to the arrests here. Most of the men taken into custody tonight were believed to be American citizens. They were held in default of $2,500 bail each for a hearing before a United States commissioner tomorrow.

Federal officers believed the aliens now held in Stamford and Jersey City were taken from the Pinar Del Rio when she was discharging her cargo at the American Sugar Refining company docks in South Boston. How they were taken off the pier, presumably in the cars in which they were discovered, remains a mystery, they said, as the docks are closely guarded while sugar steamers are unloading.

Those arrested tonight include Chief Engineer John J. Harding, First Engineer Charles J. Jones, Second Engineer John Gunning, Chief Steward W. P. Garrett, Second Steward Rufus King, Chief Cook Joseph Farr, and Louis Bell, Ricardo Silva, Endedon Paula, and Eduardo Bermudez, members of the crew.

Federal officials expressed the belief that the arrests tonight had broken up a large alien smuggling ring working through this city.

LIBERTY BOND TRACED IN DAUGHERTY-MILLER CASE

NEW YORK, Sept 22—(AP)—A $10,000 Liberty Loan bond was traced in court today from the hands of Richard Merton, German metal magnate to those of Thomas W. Miller, who is on trial with Harry M. Daugherty for releasing to the German the $7,000,000 proceeds of American Metal company assets seized during the war.

Tomorrow the government will present evidence intended to bolster their contention that from a fee of $441,000 given John T. King by Merton for obtaining release of the impounded properties, $50,000 found its way into the hands of Miller who was alien property custodian and $150,000 into those of Daugherty, who was attorney general in the Harding cabinet. The defendants are charged with conspiracy to defraud the government of their best services in permitting the release.

The prosecution began its tracing of the King fee toward the end of this morning's session. It first called Howard J. Sachs, a partner in the brokerage firm of Goldman Sachs and Company. He testified to turning over $441,000 worth of liberty bonds to Merton on October 1, 1921. He said that Miller was present at the time and stood while Merton wrote the bonds were being counted. It had previously been testified that King's fee for arranging the release of the property was paid in a cash payment of $100,000 and in a later payment of $341,000 in liberty bonds.

Other employes of the brokerage firm were then called to testify to the serial numbers of the bonds turned over to Merton. John Bailey O'Rourke, also of the brokerage firm of Swarthout and Appenzeller, next testified that on April 26, 1922, liberty bonds valued at $12,000 were received for the account of Miller. It was shown by the government that of these bonds valued at $10,000, held the same serial number as one of the bonds turned over to Merton by Goldman, Sachs and Company. Other employes of the brokerage firm related how on Miller's orders these bonds were used to buy shares of General Motors corporation. Up to the time of their receipt it was testified, Miller's account with the firm had never exceeded $700.

William Rand, attorney for Miller, objected strenuously to the evidence on the ground that in fact it did not prove what it was put forward as proof of.

"Liberty bonds are payable to bearer and are negotiable securities," he said. "That any of these bonds, which are in common circulation, passing through a great many hands, should have been in turn the property of Merton and later of Miller, does not in any way prove that that bond was given to Miller by Merton or King or anyone connected with them or with the claims in question."

The objection was overruled by Judge Mack. Max D. Steuer, counsel for Daugherty, then objected to the line of testimony although his client was not affected by that presented today, on the ground that if it proved anything it proved bribery, and bribery was no part of the charge against the defendants. Judge Mack also overruled this, saying the testimony could be admitted as part of the government's case that the defendants conspired to deprive the government of their best service and that proof of a bribe, if shown, would establish the "hope and promise of gain" which the government alleges motivated the alleged conspiracy.

60-YEAR OLD WOMAN KILLED BY AUTO IN GREENWICH

GREENWICH, Sept. 22—(AP)—A woman sixty years old and believed to be a Mrs. Gallagher, who roomed at 166 West Putnam avenue, was struck by an automobile and almost instantly killed here tonight. The car was operated by William Telesco, who with a companion, Frederick Mione, of Stamford, rushed the woman to the Greenwich hospital where she died a few minutes afterwards from a fractured skull and other injuries. Telesco was arrested and held in bail of $3,000 for the coroner.

According to the police version of the accident the woman was standing on the street corner near her home when several children playing on the opposite side of the street called to her to come across and play with them. The woman started to cross and seeing the car approach became confused.

$1,000,000 Income Tax Conspiracy

Former Auditor in the Internal Revenue Dep't Arrested at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22—(AP)—John McCarren, of Washington, a former auditor in the federal internal revenue department, was arrested here today on a charge of plotting to defraud the government in an alleged conspiracy involving more than $1,000,000 in income taxes.

McCarren was indicted in connection with the plot in New Haven, Conn., last August and government agents had been searching for him since that time James J. Clifford and Frederick Sutherland, of Washington, also are sought by the government in connection with the conspiracy.

McCarren, it is alleged, used his confidential knowledge of his department's officers to form the plot. He was said to have made an audit of income tax returns of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad and then filed a report recommending an additional income tax of $1,907,116.96. It is charged that McCarren then confided his action to Sutherland and Clifford, employed with him in the department. He sent them to the railroad company to explain that an additional tax was to be levied, and to offer a reduction or elimination of the tax for a ten per cent return of any reduction effected.

McCarren was first arrested here on a charge of passing a worthless check. When brought to City hall he was recognized as a federal fugitive.

CONVICT DESIRED BROTHER BROWN FOR HIS COUNSEL

HARTFORD, Sept. 22—(AP)—Earl T. Davis, 23, a guard in the state prison, pleaded guilty to receiving a bribe of $1,500 and aiding Lawrence Ferrone, a convict, in an unsuccessful attempt to escape from the state prison, September 13, when arraigned before Judge Banks in the criminal superior court today. He was remanded to the county jail for sentence next Tuesday, at the suggestion of State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn. He was represented by Abraham A. Katz.

Ferrone grim and hostile when presented on a bench warrant charging him with attempt to escape, pleaded not guilty. He then asked Mr. Alcorn severely, and demanded of the court:

"I'd like to know if a man is to be punished twice for the same crime."

The court cut him off quickly, and asked if he had counsel or desired counsel.

"I have not yet had time to have counsel, sir," he answered.

Deputy Warden George H. Starr was instructed by the court to permit Ferrone to write for counsel.

Walter Knowles and Charles Dansereau, convicts who escaped from the state prison for a day in August by walking away from the prison farm, were arraigned for escaping from the prison. Almost as hostile as Ferrone as they pleaded not guilty, they chorused: "I'd like to know if a man is to be punished twice for the same thing."

In view of these pleas of not guilty of the convicts was taken to mean that they had been punished by the state prison authorities for violating the prison rules.

Asked what their preference for counsel was, Dansereau said he wanted to get Brother Brown of Norwich.—State's Attorney Arthur M Brown of New London county.

The court ordered that M. Brown could not desert him, ordered Attorney Hull and assigned Public Defender John F. Forward to defend Dansereau until he had obtained counsel.

DINNER IN HONOR OF CAPT. G. H. TOWNSEND

GREENWICH, Sept. 22—(AP)—A dinner was given at the Indian Harbor Yacht club tonight in honor of Captain George H Townsend, who, driving the speed boat Greenwich Folly, won the gold cup in Manhasset bay, on August 25 last.

The formal presentation was made by Commodore Robert Law, Jr., of the club who presided as toastmaster. It was announced by Commodore Law that the race to defend the cup would be held by the Indian Harbor Yacht club in local waters on August 5 and 7, of next year. In the event of bad weather for thetwo days, the race will take place either on Cold Spring harbor or Oyster bay.

At least 28 boats will be entered in the contest he said and four new boats are being built at Manhasset bay for the race.

WORLD COURT AFFAIRS AT GENEVA CONFERENCE

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 22—(AP)—The committee of fourteen of the world court delegate conference which has been considering the American reservations to adherence to the world court, tomorrow will ask the plenary session of the conference to accept a reply to the United States, the tenor of which shows insistence upon the necessity of maintaining all the prerogatives of league of nations connections.

The projected reply indicates Washington must deal directly with the council of the league of nations to determine how the most important American reservation, concerning advisory opinions by the court, maybe accepted.

The reply attaches a condition to acceptance of the fourth reservation whereby the United States reserves the right to withdraw from the court. This condition is that in order to assure equality, the states signatory to the world court should possess a corresponding right, by not less than a two-thirds majority to withdraw their acceptance of the American reservations.

WORK OF RESCUE AND RELIEF IN THE HURRICANE DISTRICT

National Red Cross is Firmly in Control of the Situation— Rescuers Say the Total Dead Will Exceed 400—Conditions in Moore Haven and Fort Lauderdale Appear to be Worse Than in Other Places—U. S. Public Health Service is Striving to Prevent Outbreaks of Epidemics.

By the Associated Press

With the National Red Cross firmly in control of the situation, the work of rescue and relief in the hurricane swept sections of Florida and the Gulf coast west to Mississippi is moving apace.

Pensacola, Mobile and Miami with whom direct communication only recently has been established since the week-end storm all report enormous property damage, actually worse than first unofficial reports indicated. The American Automobile association which has conducted a survey stated property loss in south Florida alone was between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000.

Other estimates did not place the figure so high but insurance agents bearing claims said greater damage suffered, $50,000,000 indemnification. This figure did not include yachts and scores of smaller craft.

The naval air station and 30 planes were badly damaged or destroyed at Pensacola. The principal wharf at Pensacola was almost completely washed out. Pensacola was estimated to have suffered $3,000,000 loss.

Appeals to the nation for financial assistance and for nurses, medicines and supplies went out yesterday from Miami, the center of the district hit hardest by the hurricane.

Additional dead have been found at Miami Moore Haven, Fort Lauderdale and other points as the flood waters receded and rescue parties were augmented.

Among the figures as to the total known dead had not been compiled last night, the records said the total would exceed 400. As isolated colonies were reached in the everglades and elsewhere, the number of injured was gradually increased until the total had mounted to around 6,000.

Likewise the total of the homeless passed the 50,000 mark with special trains, automobiles and trucks being pressed into service to move them to nearby cities for shelter and care. Almost incredible suffering was reported from some sections with possibilities of pestilence by no means passed. Cases of illness, some believed to have been caused by poisoned waters were reported to health authorities, and patients were promptly segregated as part of the campaign to prevent the spread of disease.

A survey of sanitary conditions throughout the storm district has been started by Dr. J. H. Linson, of the United States public health service, and if necessary, to prevent outbreaks of epidemics the entire resources of the service will be put into operation. Crowded conditions in the stricken towns has been somewhat relieved by refugee orders barring new entrants into the devastated zone between West Palm Beach and Miami and by the dispersion of refugees by automobile and other cities.

Those remaining were required to submit to typhoid and vaccination and anti-tetanus and for this purpose still were being rushed into the storm area by airplane.

Dogs transported for many miles to their former homes in automobiles of the owners was forbidden and the spread of the Asiatic Cholera germ, carried by dogs, chickens and children.

For the present at least conditions in Moore Haven and Fort Lauderdale appeared to be worse than in other places either on the Florida east coast or the Gulf coast. The storm struck Moore Haven and Lake Okeechobee and reduced 116 with 200 more bodies recovered rapidly decomposing, and many others missing.

Fort Lauderdale suffered severely, in common with many cities and towns there was delayed by a new storm. It is feared still more dead will be found when the waters subside and relief workers can get into the region.

Newspaper men and camera workers returning from the storm area told of the terrible conditions which they found. Many were unable to write their stories because of lack of electric power and the facilities of the cable and telegraph companies were taxed to the limit.

Dead were found in many cases huddled together in the canals and ditches where they had been swept by the raging waters.

MIAMI APPEALS TO AMERICANS FOR AID

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 22—(AP)—Miami appeared today to the American people for funds to aid in the rehabilitation of the disaster-ravaged city of last Saturday.

The appeal issued by the citizens executive committee follows:

"To the American People:

"The city of Miami is compelled to appeal to the people of the United States for the relief of Miami and Dade county. Six days ago this area of 200,000 was one of the most prosperous communities and residential communities in this country. Today as a result of a disastrous tropical hurricane which devastated our coast last Saturday, it lies prostrate.

"We have 100 dead and nearly 1,000 patients in the general and emergency hospitals hundreds of whom are grievously injured. While conditions are being rapidly restored by means of most wonderful and efficient co-operation of its citizens along all important lines, the problems confronting them are almost insurmountable. Food and other necessary supplies are coming in great quantities and we have been blessed by the arrival of a sufficient number of physicians and nurses and ample medical supplies for the immediate present.

"But more than 5,000 homes have been either destroyed or made unfit for human habitation. Twenty-five thousand people have been rendered homeless. These are being cared for in thousands of instances by neighbors who themselves are suffering. Miami needs money quickly and in large amounts.

"It needs it to take care of the poor, sick and injured. It needs it to rehabilitate the homes of thousands who have lost everything in the world and who will die of exposure if assistance does not come promptly and amply.

"And so we send out this appeal believing that the people of this nation will respond cheerfully and quickly to this great necessity. On our part in return we can only express our appreciation of the wonderful sympathy and aid which are being shown to our sufferers throughout the whole land and to venture the hope that we will be able some day and in some way to reciprocate to other suffering communities the favor we now are asking.

"Contributions should be sent by wire or fast mail addressed to John B. Reilly, treasurer of the relief fund Miami, or to the American National Red Cross which has been designated by President Coolidge to raise the necessary relief funds, of which James H. Gallman of Miami is treasurer of the local chapter.

"The American Red Cross has been placed in full charge of the rehabilitation of Miami and all funds sent for relief will be spent for relief without reduction of administrative costs."

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE IN PARAGUAY HURRICANE

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Sept. 22—(AP)—Delayed messages reaching here state that heavy loss of life and property damage were caused in the city of Encarnacion Monday night when the recent hurricane swept through that place.

Official reports estimate the number of dead at 200 while other sources say that the number will reach 500. The death list is growing hourly. One report stated that 300 persons are suffering injuries from the storm which has left many families homeless and destitute. It is expected the property damage will be more than $1,000,000.

The chief of the military zone at Encarnacion has telegraphed the minister of the interior stating that 100 bodies have been buried already and that the work of extricating victims from the debris is still going on.

Further official messages from Encarnacion say that the commercial center of the city, a district seven streets long and four wide, is virtually a mass of ruins. More than 400 buildings were razed by the gale and the streets are strewn with bricks timber trees and broken household goods, greatly hampering the work of rescuers. A scarcity of food supplies is beginning to be felt.

A train with relief supplies sent from Asuncion and carrying Ministers of the Interior Rivarola and a number of government officials to the scene of the disaster was unable to reach its destination because the railroad tracks had been blocked by debris.

Funds for the relief of the sufferers are being raised throughout the country. President Ayala has issued a decree appropriating 600,000 pesos for urgent relief measures.

MASCULINE "DRESSERS" TO WEAR RED, GREEN, BLUE, TAN

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22—(AP)—Bold color needs no longer be a forbidden indulgence in men's wear, to the contrary, within a year, it was predicted at today's session of the annual convention of the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers stylishly dressed men will be wearing rich reds, greens, tans and blues.

Authority for the forecast of the masculine invasion of color came from Captain J. A. Murdock of London, England, and was concurred in by the style committee of the association Captain Murdock was a guest of the committee today.

The spring and summer suits for men would appear in beet-root red, tay silver and harrow blues; rosin cedar and tan; greens and corn shade the Londoner declared, and he said they would be as popular as the orthodox blue serges, grays and browns to which men had long been accustomed.

Captain Murdock explained taht the new pastel colors now appearing in men's soft hats, were indicative of the shades men would wear in suitings during 1927.

Captain Murdock said the athletic silhouette, with broad shoulders and more or less defined waistline, would be the predominating influence in men's styles for the coming year. The new evening tail coats, he said, would reflect the style worn in 1840, with short, small square lapels, giving a long line to the front.

NEW NATHAN HALE HOTEL

OVER 3,000 CALLERS INSPECT THE CITY'S FINE NEW HOTEL

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 22—Hundreds witnessed the flag raising today, marking the second day of the opening celebration of the new Nathan Hale hotel. A parade assembled at Lincoln square at noon, moved up Main street to High, then counter-marched to the hotel. In the formation were, the B. P. O. E band, Charles N. C. Wheeler, director; Company C, 169th, Infantry, Connecticut National Guard, commanded by Captain Joseph R. Morrison, with Lieutenants Ellison B. Smith and Edward Morrison. Next came a group of Boy Scouts. The ceremonies in front of the hotel were impressive. After the playing of the national anthem by the band, Rev. James G. Graham of Windham made the invocation. Judge Otto B. Robinson acted as presiding officer. He presented Capt. Frank P. Fenton who gave a stirring patriotic address in which he lauded the American flag and the principles for which it stands and called to mind the martyr patriot, Nathan Hale, in whose honor the new hotel has been named. He pointed out that the failure of 9 civic enterprise meant the failure of the individual citizen and he asked that the populace join forces in the support and commendation of one of the greatest enterprises, the new hotel.

Captain James E. Fullerton then made the official presentation of a beautiful silk flag from the Community Hotel corporation to Carlos D. Smith, zone manager of the American Hotels corporation, who accepted on behalf of that concern which is to operate the hotel. As the flag was being raised on the staff which rises from the roof of the hotel, a barage of fireworks was released from the rear of the building. High powered bombs exploded 1,000 feet in the air, several of them containing flags on parachutes which unfolded and descended gracefully, while the band played the Star Spangled Banner. Seating in front of the hotel during the ceremonies were members of Anne Wood Elderkin chapter, D A. R., headed by the regent, Mrs. Isabelle Chappell and including a real daughter of the Revolution, Mrs. Angelina Avery, aged 97 of Willimantic.

TOLLAND CO. GLORIFIES SACRIFICE OF NATHAN HALE

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 22—Tolland county joined the town of Coventry Wednesday in paying homage to its patriot son, the illustrious Nathan Hale. Over five thousand people coming from Tolland and Windham counties and other sections of the state witnessed an elaborate program carried out under the auspices of the Tolland county committee.

The first ceremonial was the placing of a huge wreath on the Nathan Hale monument in the cemetery of that name in South Coventry. The Putnam Phalanx of Hartford marched in due solemnity to the monument and the wreath was put in position by Comrades Brackett and True of the Phalanx. Prayer was offered by Rev. Sherrod Soule of Hartford. Then Major Clifford D. Perkins, a former resident of South Coventry, gave the command and the Phalanx left the cemetery to join the parade.

At Coventry village the parade marking the opening of the exercises was the largest and the most picturesque ever witnessed in the town. Participating in it were about 2,500 school children from the county and the distance from the official car in the lead to the final division was estimated at nearly two miles.

Following was the formations Official car, William Avery, Jr., of Tolland, grand marshal, his aides, Captain William A Wolfe and Lieutenant E. A. Zimmerman of South Coventry and Roger J. Murphy, of Rockville.

Putnam Phalanx, Major C. D. Perkins, commanding.

Combined boys' bands of Columbia and Rockville, John Wadsworth major.

Hundreds of school children representing every town in the county, wearing red, white and blue hats and carrying small flags.

In the divisions of the groups of children were, Frank's Junior Band of Stafford, the Talcottville Fife and Drum corps, the South Coventry Drum corps, St. Joseph's Boy's band of Rockville and the Continental Drum corps.

Next came the beautiful floats the first being a clever replica of Hale's first schoolhouse. In their order, other novel and attractive floats in the procession were, Fireside, by Vernon; Hale's sacrifice, Tolland: The Veterans, Hebron: The World War, American Legion Post, No. 14 of Rockville; Dr. Huntington teaching Nathan Hale, Coventry: Crinoline Days, by the Christian Endeavor society of North Coventry: Maidens and Spinning Wheels, Willington: Hale before Washing, by Ellington and lastly came the Indian Chieftain and his squaws, a clever reproduction by the Mansfield State Training School and Hospital. The last mentioned float was the only one in the procession to be drawn by horses, the remainder being equipped on motor trucks.

The paraders formed on the knoll in a wide field which overlooks Coventry village, Lake Wangumbaug and the beautiful hills beyond. On the top of this knoll was the speakers' platform which became the center of much activity, and the central point of a most inspiring spectacle, as the multi-colored uniforms of the paraders blended with the attire of the thousands of spectators.

The invocation was by Rev. James E. Atwood of South Coventry. Then the populace joined the children in singing America, to music by Rockville band. Chairman Dr. William L. Higgins of South Coventry who read the powerful poem on Nathan Hale by Reade, after stressing the fact that the celebration was not so much from military motives as to perpetuate the spirit of patriotism and self-sacrifice which was Hale's.

Congressman Richard P. Freeman of New London was the next speaker. In turn followed by Commissioner of Education A. N. Bunnell of Hartford, an address on Patriotism by Rev. Dennis F. Moran, pastor of St. Mary's church, South Coventry, and an oration, Nathan Hale, by Hon. Charles Phelps of Rockville. The perpetuation of the principles and ideals which led Hale to make the supreme sacrifice when on the very threshhold of a promising life were the basis of the different speeches. In this connection Attorney Phelps sounded a warning against the centralization of power of government. With the singing of the Star Spangled Banner, the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Edwin E. Pickop, of South Coventry. A. E. Waite of Rockville acted as song leader for the children.

The program had been arranged under the leadership of the following Tolland county committee: County Commissioner William L. Higgins, of South Coventry, chairman; County Commissioner Harry C. Smith, Rockville, secretary; County Treasurer I. Tilden Jewett, Tolland, treasurer; Sheriff Fred O. Vinton, Mansfield, chairman of finance committee; County Commissioner George Siswick, Stafford Springs, State's Attorney Thomas F. Noone, Rockville, Judge John L. Fahey, Rockville, Judge Edward M. Yeomans, Andover and Senator R. Leland Keeney of Somers. At the top of the official program was a poem on Nathan Hale by John S. Babcock, who was a resident of Coventry.

TWO WOMEN PRAISE SAME MEDICINE

Both Helped by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"After the birth of my little daughter I was very badly run-down. I could not think of going to a hospital, but grew steadily worse, being compelled to stay in bed two or three days each week. A friend of my sister's told of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done her, and my sister bought me two bottles of it. I had not taken all of one bottle when I was up and able to do some work. I am truly a booster for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you may use my testimonial."—Mrs. MAYME LYNCH, 1119 Island Ave. Ext., McKee's Rocks, Pa.

Mrs. Hope L. Smith, a farmer's wife of Route 3, Floyd, Va., says she was ill for ten years with a good deal of pain in her side and so weak she could hardly work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped her so much she is telling her friends about it.

Now I have placed this dressing at every woman's call. All toilet counters supply it as Edna Wallace Hopper's Wave and Sheen. The price is 75c. My guarantee comes with each bottle. If it doesn't delight you, doesn't double the beauty of your hair at once, ask for your money back.

Go try it now. It is one of the best helps I ever found for women, especially for those with bobbed hair.

How New York's Healthiest Baby won a Gold Medal

Mrs. Michelich's experiences will interest mothers

Simple rules of careful diet make prize-winning babies

Dorothy Van Dyke in the New York Evening Journal tells us how little Rosie Michelich [pictured at the right with her mother] won the prize for the healthiest baby at the Bowling Green Baby Contest. The Michelich family live at 107 Park Place, New York City.

"She sleeps four, five hours, every day," said Mrs. Michelich, interrupted at her washing. Every day the baby's clothes go into the tub. In the evening, Rosie herself gets a bath.

Asked about her baby's diet, Mrs Michelich pointed to a quart of milk in the ice box.

"She drinks it all. Nine ounces of milk, one ounce of water, two or three teaspoons of sugar. She eats every three or four hours. "At six in the morning she has orange juice. At seven her bottle. At ten some Farina. At one her bottle and some more Farina. At three an egg and at seven her bottle."

Dieticians agree that as babies grow older and begin to creep and walk, they must have more energy food than milk alone can furnish them. That is why Hecker's Cream Farina is so often used as baby's first solid food.

It is a natural food — just the creamy hearts of wheat — very easily digested. In addition to its abundant carbohydrates, Heckers' Cream Farina contains a wider variety of proteins than baby gets from milk alone, together with certain valuable salts and minerals.

Hecker's Cream Farina has been recommended by doctors as a perfect food for babies. For 60 years no better has been found. Babies really love it, and under the kindly stimulus of its healthful food energy, grow to plump and happy children.

DANIELSON

DEACON A. C. GREENE, 97, WILL BE CONGRATULATED

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 22—Danielson people will be happy in the opportunity of noting in greetings Friday the 97th birthday of Deacon A. C. Greene of 197 North Main street. Deacon Greene is almost helpless now and does not walk a step about the house, though he is up and dressed every day. His interest in current events is lively and he retains the charm of personality that has been his throughout his life.

MAY LIFT QUARANTINE ON DOGS IN PLAINFIELD

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 22—Howard A. Elliott, chief special deputy of the commissioner of domestic animals said while here from Hartford today that he was to confer with Dr. A. A. Chase of Plainfield relative to lifting the quarantine on dogs that has been in force in that the town since early in the summer, when a dog strayed into Central Village from the town of Griswold and bit persons, as it also had down in its home town. A dog quarantine has also been effective in Griswold on the same terms as applied in the town of Plainfield. Mr. Elliott said that in view of the fact that there have been no recent developments to indicate the likelihood of any cases of rabies developing it is likely that the quarantine will be removed in the very near future.

This week's program at the meeting of Killingly grange was prepared by Miss Ruth Spaulding. It opened with a piano solo by Ruth Clarke, who also gave a monologue—Dorothy Entertains the Minister. At a roll call of school teachers ten teachers spoke briefly. Eleven young people presented the school play Examination day. A little musical play, I Think I Smell Smoke, was presented by six young people. A vocal solo by Miss Mabel Frink was a feature of the program.

At the Goodyear athletic field the past week end the Sunday school of the church in that village held its annual field day and picnic. After the various races and contests ice cream and cake were served. The list of athletic events and the winners thereof follows:

Girls race (5-7 years) first, Julia Macina; second, Edna Lord; girls race (7-10 years) first, Dorothy Mack; second, Pearl Diggett; girls race (10-13 years) first, Irma Converse; second, Rose Hulgerson; boys race (5-7 years) first, Bobby Hunter; second, Ruddy Mack; boys race (7-10 years) first, Milton Fiddler; second, Lewis Lord; boys race (10-13 years) first, John Fiddler; second, Rufus Hulgerson; young ladies race, first, May Longbottom; second, Stella Converse; young men's race, first, Raymond Lanigan, Jr.; second, James Eastham, Jr.; rope jumping contest, first, Rose Hulgerson; second, May Longbottom; potato race, girls, first, May Longbottom; second, Margaret Fiddler; potato race, boys, first, Rufus Hulgerson; second, George Diggett; obstacle race, first, John Fiddler; second, Rufus Hulgerson; nail driving contest, first, Mrs. C. A. Downs; second, Nancy Whitaker; wheel barrow race, first, John Fiddler; second, Rufus Hulgerson; one legged race, first, Rufus Hulgerson; second, John Fiddler; three legged race, girls, first, May Longbottom; second, Josephine Garbo; three legged race, boys, first, Jack Lord, second, George Diggett.

There is more or less speculation as to how many will be enrolled when Killingly high school opens for the season next Monday morning. In view of the fact that the school this year is to combine a junior high school, made up of pupils from the seventh and eighth grades of the Danielson and South Killingly grammar schools, the attendance will be materially increased over what it was when the last school year ended in June. It is not likely that the attendance will be under 300, and it may be considerable over that number. However, the enlarged school has accommodations for 700 pupils or will have when it is fully completed.

So much enthusiasm was engendered by Danielson's Twilight baseball league during the season just closed that a considerable number of people who like lively outdoor sports wonder why a soccer football league could not be formed from among the groups that made up the Twilight league, for week end games during the fall season. It is true that, outside of Goodyear, no soccer team has played in this town and that few here know much if anything about the game. Even with this being true, it is contended that no team would be handicapped more than another by this fact and that with adequate coaching the teams might become pretty good by late fall. Soccer football would be almost a sure fire hit in Danielson, it is held, and would attract a large attendance.

Old-Timers who watched the traffic between Danielson and the fairgrounds at Brooklyn Wednesday commented on how transportation facilities have changed in the last score of years. The horse has about passed out of the picture as a means of getting people to Brooklyn and home again. A few rigs were making their way through the whizzing motor traffic on the Brooklyn route Wednesday, but they were few. Not one of the lumbering old busses, drawn by two or four horses, was on the road. Imagine one getting any business if it came out in competition with the motor car!

Few drivers use much over ten minutes these days in getting their cars from Danielson to the fairgrounds. Many do it in less, if there are no traffic officers about. In the old days some of the heavily loaded busses used up close to an hour in making the journey, which was sure to be more or less uncomfortable and quite apt to be very dusty. Of course the private rigs used to make much better time than that, for the distance is a little over four miles.

It is significant, too, that motor busses figure very little in supplying transportation to the fair, though they did five or six years ago. Private cars and public service cars carry the people now and do it with more comfort than ever before.

At Goodyear church Sunday Rev. Charles A. Downe preached on Greatness Measured by Service, from the text Luke 22:27. The organist, Mrs. I. B. Child, having resigned on account of her health, Miss May Longbottom played very acceptably. Miss Nancy Whittaker sang a solo and Joseph Green accompanied the choir on his trombone. The attendance at the service was good. At the close of the service the Sunday school was well attended.

There is no beating the younger generation, as consider this for a minute. They have it all figured out that they are going to get a little dividend next Saturday night out of that change from daylight saving to standard time and this is how they purpose to do it. They have their parties planned, of course. At 10 o'clock say, they will set their watches back to 9 o'clock (standard time) and squeeze in an extra hour of play before midnight. Why wait until 2 a. m.? they will ask you. We can change the time just as well before midnight and match you hour for hour Sunday morning. And they

PUTNAM

STATE OFFICER STREAMAN RECALLED IN WETHERBEE CASE

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 22.—Nearly all of the fourth day of the Raymond Wetherbee murder trial was taken up with the examination of two witnesses, Everett Streaman, a member of the state police, and Alexander Ostrokolowicz, the brother-in-law of Agnes Pytko, whose newly born child he is charged with killing. The former was on the stand when court adjourned Tuesday evening.

By agreement of counsel, Dr. Karl T. Phillips, of this city, who was present at the autopsy made in the baby by Dr. Robert Paine, was examined first. He said that he had been practicing medicine for five years and that he was asked by Dr. Paine to witness the autopsy. His description of the condition in which the body was found was practically the same as the former physician's, and his conclusions on two important points were the same—that the child was alive when born and that death was not caused by drowning, but by the injury to the side of the head which resulted in a fractured skull. The appearance of the wound made him believe that the child was living when the wound was made, and the fact that no water was found in the lungs indicated that the child not breathing when it was thrown into the water.

He admitted, however, that he might be wrong in both premises, and on cross examination, after hearing a number of statements read from works on medical jurisprudence which disagreed with these views, said that he felt that he ought to say that he could not be positive in the matter.

Officer Streaman was then recalled to the stand and told in detail of the search that he had made for the body of the infant. After a fruitless night in searching along the tanks of the French river, near the Keegan mill at Wilsonville, he went back to the Day Kimball hospital and had a further talk with Miss Pytko. She retracted some of the statements she had first made to him and located the spot where she said the baby had been thrown several hundred yards away from the spot where she told him it was thrown in the first interview.

He finally found it, wrapped in a dark cloth, sunk in a few feet of water of the mill pond which furnishes the power for the Keegan Textile company. A rope was tied around it and a stone weighing twenty-seven and one-half pounds was attached to the other end. Then he told of arresting Wetherbee and read a statement which Wetherbee had signed, admitting having had intimate relations with the girl, but naming three other men, he said, had told him they had been on the same terms of intimacy with her, denying that he knew that a baby had been born to her and consequently denying the crime with which he is charged.

Alexander Ostrokolowicz was the next witness. He had moved from Webster to Wilsonville in May or this year and his wife's sister, Agnes Pytko, who had been making her home with them, came also. Both he and Agnes obtained employment in the mill at North Grosvenordale. He said that he had had a disagreement with Raymond Wetherbee and was opposed to his coming to his house to see Agnes. In December of last year he said that he suspected his sister-in-law's condition, although she never mentioned the matter to her until the day before the child was born. Then he said to her that if she gave birth to a baby in his house he would knock her head off.

In cross examination, Mr. Harvey laid stress on the fact that Ostrokolowicz's sister-in-law, a girl of seventeen, had been required to occupy a room in his house which she could only enter and leave by passing through the room in which he slept, when there was a vacant room where she could have had privacy.

The state has several witnesses yet to examine and it is said that the defense have more than twenty subpoenaed.

Dr. S. B. Overlook, of Pomfret, one of the best known surgeons in the state, and Dr. Charles Bartlett of New Haven, widely known as a pathologist, have been retained by the defense as medical examiners. Dr. Louis I. Mason of Willimantic is the medical expert for the state.

TRIED TO SAVE HER DOG WAS STRUCK BY AUTO

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 22.—Miss Florence D. Wiley of Thompson is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital. In attempting to rescue her little dog from in front of a car at the four corners in front of the church at Thompson, she was struck by a car driven by Leon Robbins of East Thompson. Mr. Robbins almost wrecked his car by turning it into a pole to avoid striking Miss Wiley. She was knocked down but it is thought not seriously hurt. It is considered that the accident was unavoidable.

Dr. Ernest R. Pike of East Wood-stock left Wednesday for New Haven to attend the annual meeting of the State Medical society.

Pauline Plankey, 6 years old, of Pineville, was operated upon for appendicitis at the Day Kimball hospital. She is resting comfortably.

Russell Hammond of Killingly is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital suffering with a badly lacerated left hand. The injury was sustained while using a wood saw. He was operated upon yesterday and several tendons on the back of his hand were sutured. It is possible that he will lose but one finger, in which the bone was badly injured.

Mr. Kingsbury has played often in team matches as a member of the Putnam club and has always done well against many of the best players of Woonsocket and Providence.

Chandler Morse, son of Attorney and Mrs. E. C. Morse of this city, who won his letter at football at Amherst college last fall, is playing end again this year as one of the regulars on the first team.

Walter J. Sherman of this city who has been critically ill since he underwent an operation at the Massachusetts General hospital, Boston, is improving and is able to sit up part of the day.

AIDING FLORIDA

Regardless of the description and the estimates of the losses in the Florida disaster it is impossible for the imagination to picture the destruction caused by the hurricane in Florida. Not only has it caused hundreds of deaths and large financial losses but there is the wreckage of utilities, the upsetting of the whole economized scheme of community activity, the shutting off of supplies and the creation of endless confusion.

The storm devastated portion of Florida is in need of assistance. It needs temporary aid to meet the present trying conditions and it needs protection against those cowardly individuals who are endeavoring to turn someone else's misfortune to their own advantage.

The pleas which have gone forth for assistance are thoroughly justified, quite the same as was the quickly extended government aid and the offers from many, if not all, of the states. It is a question for many as to just how the situation is going to be met, for in spite of the horror of it all the dead must be buried and the injured must be cared for, the sick must be attended to and the living must have shelter and food.

Florida is subject to hurricanes. It has had them before and it was warned that the last one was on the way, but Florida was helpless to prevent its coming and it was unable to control its severity. Being in the path of the storm it was obliged to experience its fury and make the best of the wreckage that was caused. Outside aid is not only assured but it will unquestionably be prompt and in adequate amount. All sections of the country are prompted by the same spirit under such conditions.

That Florida will proceed to effect a quick clean up and reconstruction is to be expected, being guided of course by such lessons as this last hurricane has taught in the way of construction to meet storm conditions which must be guarded against; even though they seldom cause such a disaster.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT

The prompt prosecution of the state prison guard who was involved in aiding prisoners to attempt a prison break and the penalizing of the prisoner who is now serving a life term, as planned by the state's attorney of Hartford county, must be be regarded as action which is called for by the disclosures. It is to be expected that all reasonable efforts will also be made to locate and punish those who were aiding the delivery from the outside.

The prison guard not only accepted a substantial bribe but he was working in behalf of the criminals and against the legal punishment applied by the courts for the protection of the public. He was accepting the pay of the state and at the same time violating his oath, playing false with his superiors and doing his best to obtain freedom for a murderer and an habitual criminal. No one in his position could have failed to recognize what he was doing, what his act would mean or the penalty which could be expected in case he was caught.

He is not the first prison guard who has yielded to such temptation but it is apparent that it is necessary to make an example of such cases every now and then in order to have the seriousness of the act fully appreciated by others as well as by those directly involved.

The life termer has blackened his record so that he can expect no leniency, while the habitual criminal has by his act insured his retention behind bars much longer than would otherwise have been the case, and thereby confirming the action of the court in placing him where he cannot prey upon the public.

If the guard is sentenced to a period of five years in the same prison, which sentence is possible for aiding a prisoner to escape, he will have no one to blame but himself. The lure of $1500 apparently caused him to overlook the penalty, but it disclosed his weakness and his utter unfitness for such a position where so much depends upon the guard remaining true to his trust.

TAXATION FOR HIGHWAYS

Last year there were only four states which did not levy a gasoline tax, the tax varying from one to four cents a gallon and producing a total of nearly $142,000,000, the greater part of which goes for highway work.

New York, New Jersey, Illinois and Massachusetts are the four states, but if efforts underway are successful that number will be decreased for the agitation has been strong in Massachusetts for such action and now the joint legislative motor vehicle committee of New York is holding hearings to consider the imposition of a small tax on gasoline in that state.

New York will need $36,000,000 annually for the next five years for its state highway building program, and there is a feeling in that commonwealth, as there has been in others, that such a tax is just and would take care of the reconstruction work, amounting to about $20,000,000.

The same opposition that has been encountered in other states, to the effect that the motorists are heavily taxed now, is put forward, but it is to be realized that the tax on gasoline is for the purpose of raising funds for the special benefit of the motorists. They need good roads and they demand good roads and the argument in most states has been that by a gasoline tax they provide only for what they seek, and provide only in such measure as they use them. That is true of course when the proceeds from the tax on gasoline are applied strictly to highway work, such as is done in Connecticut and in a number of the other states. This is apparently the plan in New York, and one that should be insisted upon for where there is justification for taxing the motorist in such a way for such a purpose there is an injustice when such a special class of taxpayers is levied upon to swell the revenue of the state for general purposes.

New York with its many automobile owners and its many visitors from one year's end to another should be able to derive a large revenue for highway work from a small tax.

ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATION

The plans which are in the hands of the American Legion committee for a big local celebration of Armistice day that will be participated in from all parts of this country give promise of not only a fitting observance of the anniversary but afford the opportunity for the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence to which document four Connecticut men attached their names and one of whom, Samuel Huntington, is buried at Norwich Town.

It is an effort which calls for and should have enthusiastic support and general participation. Norwich has entered into the observance of this day in other years with enthusiasm, and the results have been gratifying. Sponsored by the American Legion the idea of a celebration this year that will not only equal but outdo all others could not have been better conceived in view of the sesquicentennial of the nation. It should bring many thousand visitors to Norwich November 11.

For the task of making the arrangements an excellent committee has been selected and it is deserving of the heartiest support of the civic organizations and the citizens in general. Through the proper cooperation a pronounced success is assured and there are good reasons for believing that there will be shown the right degree of patriotic fervor and the full amount of community support to make the dual observance one that will reflect credit upon the city and be long remembered.

Norwich isn't disposed to do things in a halfway manner and it is gratifying to know that the energetic committee plans for the best in everything. It should go over the top with flying colors.

THE COURT RESERVATION

By the committee representing the nations of the league of nations, which was named to consider the reservations submitted by this country to our adherence to the world court, the suggestion is made that the fifth reservation be revised or the interpretation of the committee concerning it accepted. Such a recommendation must be acted upon by the nations before they determine in concert whether to accept our reservations, and the intimation has been made that such an interpretation could be approved by the president of the United States without submission to congress.

Such would not be done. The reservations are the product of the senate and any change in them must be made by the senate. The president in fact has indicated that he is not in favor of the interpretation, or compromise. He believes that the reservation is proper and should be accepted. The compromise would give this nation equal rights with league members, but it is pointed out that such equal rights are not wanted.

This country desires that the world court be not asked to render an advisory opinion on a matter in which this country has or claims an interest without the consent of this country. This is for the protection of the right of this country as a non-member of the league. The reservation sets forth what is desired and what is not desired. The president doesn't intend to try to effect a compromise without the consent of the senate and he intimates that if our adherence to the court is desired such a compromise should not be sought.

WHITE FENCES

"Dear me," sighed Mrs. Melbourne, as she backed her car out from the curb in front of the grocery, "if there is a hypocritical place in the world it is Newt Johnston's store. I never go there but what his oldest girl comes those boards would do if you started mornin..g, this, Mis' Melbourne. What is it I can do for you today'? "

"What's wrong with Laura's smile?" Aunt Hester asked. "I'd make my guess that there's those who trade at Newt Johnston's for no other reason on earth than because that chit of a girl is always so nice and polite to everybody."

"That is just my point," complained Mrs. Melbourne. "You don't go to the grocery to buy smiles. You go for eggs and beans and sugar and the like, and that Johnston girl treats folks like they were attending a reception at the white house. It's not as though she were bursting with happiness and felt like smiling. It's a smirk she put on; I know. Why, they tell me old Newt's harder than Cain to get along with, and her mother works her like a dog. Now what's the good in airs like them, I ask you? They're not sincere. They're what I call stuff and nonsense."

The two women rode on in silence, each one busy with her own reflections. Then suddenly they rounded the turn in the asphalt road which brought them to an abrupt descent from the Highlands. Down a steep incline the paving zigzagged until it reached the river bridge far below. Mrs. Melbourne "It isn't the fence that keeps me brake. As the car skimmed around the lower curve a little sigh of relief escaped her. The last incline was a narrow embankment, high and treacherous, built up from the bottom lands to connect the outstanding flank of the hill with the first abutment of the bridge; but a frail whitewashed fence hemmed both sides of the earthen abrasion.

"Oh dear," murmured Mrs. Melbourne, releasing her brake, "I'm always glad when I come to the fences."

"I can't see they help you much," replied Aunt Hester. "They're so frail, they'd hardly keep a go cart from plunging through them if the thing was set in their direction. As for a machine— Well, I'd like to see the good those boards would do if you started off the bank."

"It isn't the fence that keeps me in the road," explained Mrs. Melbourne. It simply gives me a sense of security. I drive easier because I know it's there. As fences go, I suppose these are hypocrisies. They do some good nevertheless. You can't persuade me differently."

"Maybe," suggested Aunt Hester, with quaint, urbane suavity, "that fence is like Laura Johnston's smile."

"How so?"

"Well," continued the aunt, "when one comes down to genuine protection, or hog tightness, these little fences ain't exactly what they might be, but not being such don't bar them from other ways of usefulness. Those little boards may not have the strength to keep you from rolling down the bank if you choose to roll, but they do the best they can with the material they've got to work with. They look real prim and pretty, too, and it's like you say, you get a temporary relief just from lookin' at the planed things. Maybe that's the way with Laura's smile. What if it isn't from her heart? It's there just the same, and it's like a brave little white fence keeping folks upon the roadway just by beaming at them."

"I never thought of it like that," said Mrs. Melbourne. Then, as she turned into the driveway of her little suburban home, she added, "Maybe you are right, Aunt Hester. I guess Newt Johnston's isn't such a bad store to trade at after all."—Exchange.

YOUR HEALTH

EAT TO LIVE!

By W. H. Loomis, M. D., Cleveland, O. Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

If you should ever believe, for a moment that you are exempt from the penalty or wrong habits of living, walk through some populous cemetery and note the average age recorded upon the stones erected to the memory of men and women who lived "not wisely but too well," in a dietary sense.

Note that the greater number bade farewell to earth and earthly things between the ages of 46 and 56. Early aging is rapidly increasing in America. Nearly 500,000 people die annually from old age diseases, 60,000 under the age of 40. It is absolutely preventable and disgraceful when any sane person dies from old age disease under 40.

The tragedy of it does not allow it to become a joke, and yet the tragedy is growing worse: mortality from old age diseases has increased 100 per cent in 30 years and bids fair to double again in the next 20 years.

Not only is the span of life shortened by these diseases, but the productive efficiency of the individual is impaired at just the time he ought to be at the peak of his efficiency.

Faulty nutrition is one of the most important factors that contribute to this condition. The question or diet has been sidestepped for ages. Unless we, as a race, are willing to face it squarely and control it, our people will deteriorate.

At first, the faults of diet are not serious, visible signs, particularly if the constitution be a sturdy one, equipped with tremendous resisting power. But the signs are sure to appear, sooner or later, in lowered vitality, low resistance to cold and infections, early aging, premature senility.

It is now known that our diet must contain the acid and the alkali-forming foods in correct combination, a variety of minerals in the form of assimilable salts. (Iron for instance, can be had only through our foods. Very little, if any, is absorbed in any other way.) Certain vital elements, called vitamins, A, B, C, are to food exactly what the spark is to the charge of gasoline in the cylinder of your automobile.

Some foods are vitimin dead. Examples; refined sugar, manufactured forms of starches, highly refined cereal grains, polished rice, farina, pearl barley, white bread, etc. Meats contain the vitamins, but they are often driven out by cooking.

Foods with dead vitamins are of very little use to the body unless combined with live foods containing vitamins. Milk, greens, other fresh vegetables, and fruit are of the class containing live vitamins. Their influence, in many cases, is destroyed by the cooking process to which most of them are subjected.

Most vegetables may be properly cooked at a lower temperature. For safety's sake eat as many thoroughly clean, raw vegetables and fruits as you can. Drink plenty of milk. It is more important for you to make sure you are getting an abundance of vitamins than it is for you to worry about calories.

Uncooked salads contain live vitamins. For health's sake they ought to be eaten once or more every day. Instead of vinegar use lemon. Lemon juice contains vitamin in an easily available form.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Joseph T. Sayers, who today reaches the age of four score and five, was for many years a figure of national prominence in democratic politics, first as a representative in congress and later as governor of Texas from 1899 to 1903. Texas holds in grateful remembrance the wise business policy pursued by Mr. Sayers as governor, a policy which added greatly to the development of the natural and industrial resources of the Lone Star state. Governor Sayers was born at Granada, Miss., and removed to Texas with his parents when 10 years of age. He served in the confederate army during the Civil war and was later admitted to the bar. His public career began in 1873 when he was elected to the Texas legislature. In 1879 he was elected lieutenant governor and from 1885 to his election as governor in 1898 he was a prominent member of congress.

Make the Most of Books

Last as Long as the Earth

Among the most lasting works of men are mosaics; they are not easily broken, their colors do not fade and their outlines do not grow dim with time. In the museum of the capitol at Rome is the famous mosaic of Pliny's doves, rendered familiar by so many copies: three or four doves perched on a broadbrimmed cup, absolutely as perfect in form and tint as when Pliny saw them two thousand years ago. Yet these tiny bits of stone joined by cement are not as permanent as the poems of Homer which have as much human interest today as they had when Alexander read them in the intervals of his pursuit of the Persians. The plays of Shakespeare will last as long as the earth remains, and he said.

"Not marble, nor the gilded monuments
Of princes, shall outlive this powerful rhyme."

NEW BOOKS

The Understanding Heart. By Peter B. Kyne, Cloth, 374 pages, illustrated by Herbert M. Stoops. Published by Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, New York. Price $2.

Peter B Kyne has long been known as a genuis at weaving refreshing tales around happenings and characters that run true to life. He is able to mix business and litigation with his romance as they are mixed in reality. And now in The Understanding Heart he has done it again, only more so.

It's a story of the glorious California forests, of a young lawyer driven to the big trees to protect his health, and of the amazing but always logical succession of events which bring him in contact with a dozen new lives and destinies. Among them is Monica Dale, a surprising and delightful heroine. She is one of Kyne's finest bits of characterization, a girl grown to womanhood in a 99 per cent masculine environment and holding a man's job in the forest service.

"You're different. You just naturally know what it's all about and never ask questions," exclaims the young lawyer in proposing to Monica. "I'll bet King Solomon's most popular wife conformed to your specifications, Monica. Old Sol must have been fed up on the common garden variety of women when he prayed, 'Lord, give me an understanding heart.'"

The plot is intricate, demanding quick wit and swift courage from the actors involved. Kyne handles it in the same gratifying manner that he has done in his previous successes.

I Want To Be a Lady, by Maximilian Foster, author of The Whistling Man and The Trap. Cloth, 302 pages. Published by J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia. Price $2.

This is a romance of the west of today and it is presented in Foster's fascinating western style.

"Tea is sipped directly from the cup, never from the saucer." Pinto would never have believed its own eyes. Judy Caswell bronze-haired, firm jawed, passionate, Jude with the nerve to lie out on the hills alone, to conquer the horse that threw her father—poring over a book telling how they do things in the east! But that is just the reason Pinto couldn't understand why Judy simply had to make a man out of Rand Farlow. It's a hard thing to make a man out of the town loafer, especially when he happens to be an easterner who has dropped into the lowest habits of the west. But Judy's method was drastic and she had the help of the Clawhammer-country that kills or cures. Nor was she willing to stop even when she feared that to save Rand would be to lose him forever.

Here is a love story, live and strong as the cathedral's rocky spires under the loom of Painted Horse, tender and gossamer as the dreams on which fiery stout-hearted Judy fed in secret.

Stories That Recall Others

A Family Affair

Two intimate friends, Tom and Bill, were discussing the relative merits of sweaters. "That's a dandy sweater you've got there, Tom," said Bill.

"Isn't that a dandy?" exclaimed Tom. "And, Bill, that was a real bargain. That sweater only cost me $2."

"Two dollars!" expostulated Bill. He had recently bought a similar sweater and paid considerable more. Then he added skeptically, "Where did you get that sweater for $2."

"Well," replied Tom, "it got too little for my brother-in-law."

Can't Fool George

Little George's hospital experiences were limited to visits to see a new baby, but, few as they were, he did not have a favorable impression of such institutions. When the doctor said George should go to have his tonsils removed, he vehemently announced that he was not going. Mother, dad, aunts, uncles all promises and persuaded to no avail. Finally however, he realized that he would have to go, and with his acceptance of the situation came his real reason for so stubbornly refusing to go.

"I'll go, mother," he said, "but I'm certainly not going to let them wish any baby off on me."

PAYS $200 FINE ON SIMPLE ASSAULT CHARGE

Bowen, 24, of 49 Baltic street, came up in the city court Wednesday morning the charge was changed to simple assault and a fine of $200 and costs was imposed, a total of $210.44, which he paid. It came out at the hearing that the girl left the restaurant about one o'clock and that the alleged attempt took place about two hours later.

NATHAN HALE THE BEAU IDEAL OF AMERICAN YOUTH, SAYS SEN. BINGHAM

Calling Nathan Hale the beau ideal of American youth, Senator Hiram Bingham who delivered the historical address and eulogy at the evening programme Wednesday at South Coventry, which celebrated the 150th anniversary of the death of the martyred patriot, declaring that the heroic spirit of Nathan Hale was the product of a noble line of ancestry and the training of a typical New England home in the colonial days.

Thousands of visitors continued to invade South Coventry village in the evening when the state committee appointed by Governor John H. Trumbull continued the observance of Nathan Hale Day which had been commemorated on the green by the Tolland county programme during the afternoon. The evening exercises during which the highest type of public speaking was presented by leading men of the commonwealth was held in the Congregational church in the village. The programme was broadcast through Station WTIC of Hartford from where it was relayed to other stations. In anticipation of an overflowing attendance amplifiers were installed outside of the church and through these hundreds listened to the messages.

The village was gay in bunting of the national colors. Concession stands lined the streets and venders plied their trade through the mazes of automobiles and people. Everyone seemed to have caught the atmosphere of a holiday, but that none forgot the significant purpose of it was attested by the deep silence with which came the story of the life and martydom of Nathan Hale was unfolded.

The evening programme: Presentation of the governor of Connecticut, John H. Trumbull, by Dr. William L. Higgins, chairman of the Tolland county committee on the Nathan Hale Sesquicentennial; invocation, Rev. Sherrod Soule of Hartford, chaplain of Putnam Phalanx, founded 1858; the long roll, Corporal Harry Anderson of Putnam Phalanx; presentation of a tribute to Nathan Hale from Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States and remarksbyJohn H. Trumbull, governor; historical address and eulogy of Nathan Hale, Hiram Bingham, United States senator; taps, Corporal Nicholas Candido, of the Second Company, Governor's Foot Guard; benediction, Rev. Charles G. Johnson, pastor of First Congregational church of South Coventry.

President Coolidge's Tribute.

In his message President Coolidge said: "There is no finer record of high character and patriotic devotion than that established by that youthful soldier, Nathan Hale, and I strongly recommend that the beautiful story of his youth, his college career, become the favorite study of not only the town, county and state of his nativity, but to the nation at large, especially to the children.

The governor's committe in charge was as follows: Honorary, John H. Trumbull, governor, J. Edward Brainerd, lieutenant governor. Committee: George Dudley Seymour of New Haven, owner of the Nathan Hale birthplace in Coventry, chairman; Albert B. Meredith of Hartford, Schuyler Merritt of Stamford, Carl Northrup of New Haven, Ernest E. Rogers of New London and N. Searle Light, secretary.

SENATOR BINGHAM SPEAKS.

Connecticut Senator Delivers Eulogy on the Martyr Patriot.

In part Senator Bingahm said:

It must seem remarkable to the casual stranger to observe that we are gathered here today to honor the memory of a very young man, who died one hundred and fifty years ago, without having accomplished what he set out to do.

His life was not long, his achievements were not many, his military career was not brilliant. His last undertaking was one which was at that time looked upon askance, as something without honor, even if not actually dishonorable. He was a soldier. Soldiers hate spies and despise them. Spies were then accorded the most humiliating of deaths and denied all military honors, even the powder and shot which an enemy willingly grants to foe worthy of his steel and his ammunition.

This hero whom we delight to honor achieved neither high rank nor what the world calls success. He was neither a dashing soldier leading a handful of brave followers to win a hardfought victory, nor a sagacious member of the military staff whose strategy confounded the enemy. He was without powerful friends, without the prestige of noble lineage, without high rank, without riches, without any of the things which we today associate with eminence and the coveted laurel of life. Notwithstanding all this Nathan Hale achieved distinction and undying fame. No other boy in history has such an honored name. No other patriot is so loved and admired. He has become the beau ideal of young America. Does the stranger ask why? As a matter of fact, Nathan Hale did win a great victory, but it was spiritual not material. He achieved success in seeing and obtaining those things which are unseen not those which are seen. His triumph was the sublime triumph over fear, and vanity and selfishness, those human traits which are our most powerful enemies. Above all, he met the supreme test of courage with unexcelled loyalty and devotion to his country.

Then comes the question. How did he do it? Was it an accident? Was it luck? For answer we must look at his background, the land where he was born, the people from whom he came, the course of his education, his professional career and the nature of his services as a soldier.

Nathan Hale, son of Richard Hale was born in this town of Coventry, a few miles west of where we are now meeting, in an old-fashioned New England house in June 6, 1755. The house is no longer standing. During his boyhood it was torn down to make way for a more substantial building where his people lived for many years afterward and which has recently been restored by its present owner, Mr. George Dudley Seymour of New Haven, to whom I am greatly indebted for aid in gathering material and for scholarly criticism of its value.

Nathan Hale's father was usually spoken of as Deacon Hale. It is said of him that "never a man worked so hard for both worlds as did Deacon Hale." Both the town and the church confided in him. He held offices in each. For a few terms in succession Hale and Strong were the two names from Coventry in the General Assembly. Hale's family is described as a "quiet, strict, godly household, where the Bible ruled and family prayers never failed, nor was grace ever omitted at meals." From sturdy New England stock, from able pioneers and frontiersmen, sturdy yeomanry on both sides of the family, from good citizens who had not neglected their duties to God or Country, who had not sought lives of ease and affluence; energetic, independent, self-reliant Yankees—from such as these came Nathan Hale.

His father and mother had twelve children, of whom Nathan was the sixth. So he was blessed with older brothers from whom to receive contemporary counsel and advice. But what would modern parents say to necessity of providing for twelve children when the cloth must be spun at home or among the neighbors? Everyone wore homespun and there was no imported woolen to be had.

Deacon Hale built his home in the midst of a very beautiful country, yet to the New Englander the surroundings are not unusual. In fact the average Connecticut Yankee feels perfectly at home on the Hale farm.

Nathan first attended the original Coventry district school which by vote of the town meeting was twenty feet long and eighteen feet wide. Nathan did well. It is a family tradition that Nathan's mother was particularly anxious to see him go to college and be trained as a clergyman. The number of college bred men and ministers among her family was increasingly great. At the same time it was decided that Nathan's elder brother, Enoch was to go to college with him.

It was necessary for them to get further instruction than they were able to receive in the little district school. So their father sent them to the pastor of the local church, the Rev. Mr. Joseph Huntington, a celebrated divine of the period, who was thoroughly competent to train boys to enter Yale. The old parsonage where they studied still stands, in somewhat altered shape on South street, and there without doubt Enoch and Nathan regularly recited to Dr. Huntington from such Latin authors as Virgil, Cicero, Horace and Nepos. In the summer of 1769 their training was completed and in September the two brothers entered the Freshman class at New Haven.

Hale roomed in what is now called Connecticut Hall, which the older graduates remember by the name of South Middle.

Popular Man in College.

Nathan appears to have been one of the most popular men of his class, a born leader, standing in the upper third of his class, yet interested in extra curriculum activities. An officer and an active member of his secret society. Devoted to his club, he subscribed towards its collection of books. A good all-round athlete, a good wrestler, one of the best broad jumpers in college, a good gymnast, able to do a standing jump from the inside of one hogshead to another, out of that barrel into a third and so on—"some stunt" as the boys say. A good scholar, a good athlete, a good mixer, clean and fearless, keen in competition, a good sport, frank and charming, the ideal college man, today he would be voted the one who had "done the most for Yale" and who was "most likely to succeed."

Takes Up School Teaching.

Senator Bingham went on to sketch in considerable detail the life of Hale after graduating from Yale. First visiting his uncle, Nathan, at Portsmouth, N. H., Hale returned and became teacher of the district school at East Haddam, the site of which is now marked by a small monument with a bust of Hale on the top of the column. Here he taught from October or November, 1773, to March, 1774, then taking charge of Union school in New London. Its proprietors, 34 in all, represented the wealth and intelligence of New London. They included members of the Saltonstall, Winthrop, Mumford, Shaw and Richards families. Their boys probably formed the body of the school. Nathan Hale found his time fully occupied in their instruction. Fortunately we have a letter written to his uncle, in the course of which he describes his work. He said he had to have a school of 32 boys, about half Latin, the rest English. The salary allowed me is 70 pounds per annum. In addition to this, I have kept during the summer, a morning school, between the hours of five and seven, of about 20 young ladies; for which I have received 6s. a scholar by the quarter. The people with whom I live are free and generous, many of them gentlemen of sense and merit."

Enlists in Army.

"There is a tradition that when the news of Lexington reached New London he was one of those who spoke at a public meeting and urged immediate action. Probably the proprietors of the school objected to his leaving their children so suddenly without a master, so it was not until the 7th of July following that he asked the proprietors as a special favor to release him two weeks in advance of the regular closing of the school, because, as he said, there was "opportunity for more extended public service." By this time, although not yet of age, he had received a commission in the army and been given a place in one of the eight regiments Connecticut was then raising.

"On the first of July, 1775, the general assembly appointed officers of the new 7th regiment. Hale's name is on the list as first lieutenant of the third company, whose major, Jonathan Latimer, was well acquainted with Hale's character and ability. Latimer's son, Robert, had been one of Hale's pupils. As a first lieutenant in a major's company, Hale's duties were practically those of a captain and he had full charge of the men. Colonel Charles Webb of Stamford, was in charge of the regiment. It was recruited mostly from along the shore from Greenwich and Stamford to New London and Stonington. In the roster of his company we find such well known Connecticut names as Latimer, Hilliard, Chapman, Raymond, Bushnell, Avery, Bacon, Beckwith, Comstock, Chappel, Clark, Hillhouse, Minard, Shaw and Woodbridge. Many had joined as a result of Nathan's enthusiasm."

Describing Hale's service in the patriot army, first before Boston where the British were besieged, then at New York and the battle of Long Island, where Hale was in the reserve, the speaker said that in the meantime Hale had been selected as one of the chosen few for a new corps organized for special, dangerous service. The command of the corps fell to Col. Thomas Knowlton, of Ashford, Connecticut, who had fought at Bunker Hill and in a former war had been a ranger himself. For his new organization 130 men and 20 officers were selected. They were divided into four companies and Nathan Hale was made one of the fou. captains.

Under these circumstances, the speaker pointed out, Hale enlisted for the hazardous service as a spy to penetrate the British lines on Long Island and gain the information so much desired by General Washington. The American youth was captured just as he had completed his mission and was about to return to the continental army. He made the trip to Long Island by embarking in a sloop at Norwalk, accompanied by a faithful sergeant, Stephen Hempstead, of New London.

Hale's Last Day.

Of the patriot's last day, Senator Bingham said:

"Tradition says he was kept for the night, a prisoner in a green house, alone with his guards and his thoughts. Nathan Hale was now facing certain death. How would he meet it? For years he had instinctively looked to the great heroes of classical antiquity for his models. His ideal was no cultured gentleman of the world, pleasure seeking, luxury loving; depending upon creature comforts. He had come from that stock which is willing to sacrifice the pleasures and comforts and luxuries of life in the pursuit of an ideal. He had in him the stuff of which heroes are made. His education and his training had led him to accept joyfully hardship and danger. His heroes had looked upon death with equanimity; so why not he?"

Lord Howe had turned him over to the provost marshal, one William Cunningham, a New Yorker, who by birth and bringing up should have been on the other side of the lines, but who had taken his stand with the British and hated his rebel countryman more bitterly than did of the professional soldiers. He acquired an evil notoriety for the cruelty with which he treated all prisoners. He hated the rebels, as he called them. Of course his treatment of a rebel spy would have been most harsh and contemptuous. Fortunately, however, in the artillery park, not far from Lord Howe's headquarters was a young British officer, Captain Montressor, one of Lord Howe's aides, a man of high breeding, an officer and a gentleman. To him the handsome face and noble bearing of the captured spy made a strong appeal. He knew that he was a captain in the Continental Army. He could see at a glance that this rebel captain was a thoroughbred, a gentleman like himself, and a soldier who had for noble motives taken upon himself the most dangerous and disagreeable, and by many considered dishonorable duty of discarding his uniform and concealing his identity. So Montressor requested the brutal provost marshal to permit the prisoner to sit for a short time in his tent while the gallows were being erected and the necessary preparations made to hang the spy. A day or two later Montressor had occasion to go to the American lines under a flag of truce. There he conversed with Alexander Hamilton and told him and others the circumstances of this tragic morning. He reported that the young American, Captain Nathan Hale, "was calm and bore himself with gentle dignity, the consciousness of rectitude and high intentions." Instead of being overcome with fear and terror at his approaching death he asked for writing materials and wrote two letters, one to his brother and one to a brother-officer.

It is easy to imagine that brutal Bill Cunningham permitted his resentment to take the form of jibes and taunts. With oaths and vulgar epithets as the prisoner was being bound and the rope being arranged about his neck, he doubtless mocked and jeered the boyish figure.

Such sneers and taunts could not be left unanswered. Silence might seem to give consent. The honor of his cause must not be tarnished. These enemies of his country, both native born and visitor must not be left to think that for a moment he wished himself on their side. Self-seeking and comfortable living he had long since left behind. His object in this mission was simply service and neither riches, rank, nor decoration. To keep silent would only mislead these his captors and give satisfaction to this taunting Tory. Perhaps Montressor expresses sympathy, pity and regret. Then doubtless there came to Nathan's mind the words of Cato. Naturally he replies "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country." This was no accident. It was not luck. It was not a pose. There was nothing dramatic or artificial about it. There was no crowd. It was only the honest wish of the true lover of his country, simply expressed. For Nathan Hale it was the sincere expression of the very spirit of his life. It was no imaginary speech, refined by the softening hand of time. It was repeated by an eyewitness, an officer of the enemy, only a day or two later. These words were not put in Nathan's mouth by some great author desiring a dramatic climax and dreaming of the most magnificant thought his hero might express before his death. This time it really happened. Addison's play has long since disappeared from the sight and hearing of our playgoers. Hale's regret, his "soul's sincere desire," still lives in the hearts and in the lives of his countrymen. This is the way we all would die when our turn comes to die; calm, courageous, unafraid, wishing only we had another life to offer on the altar of our country.

RUSSIAN PRISONERS USE OLD SECRET CODE

Political prisoners in Russia still communicate with one another by the same system of wall tapping that was employed in czarist prisons, with English words. The alphabet is divided into five groups of five letters. I and J being one same. For example, A is given by one tap; pause; two taps and so on to Z, which is five taps, pause, and five more taps. The prisoners developed great facility in using this code. In the old prison in the fortress of Peter and Paul in Petersburg, some cells were built especially with cupboard rooms on either side to insure that the prisoners were absolutely isolated and unable to communicate with one another.

DEMPSEY IS OVERWHELMING FAVORITE ON EVE OF BATTLE WITH TUNNEY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23—(AP)—While the last injunction move was being fought in court and the last nails driven into the serried rows of pine seats at the sesqui-centennial stadium, Philadelphia, tonight became the center of the most feverish fight furore in boxing fighting.

"Nothing in the last three decades of glove fighting has even approached the excitement and enthusiasm aroused on the eve of the ten round battle tomorrow night in which Jack Dempsey, king of the heavyweight division for seven years, will defend his crown against the attack of the handsome former marine, Gene Tunney.

Betting Favors the Champion

The fact that Dempsey is an overwhelming favorite, quoted at odds of 3 to 1 in brisk wagering, has not dampened public interest. Philadelphia, entertaining the greatest sporting event in its history, has gone "fightmad" on general principles. The incoming thousands, most of them from the big eastern and middle western centers of population but others from such far away points as Australia and South America, testify to the world-wide attention drawn to boxing's classic event.

The first heavyweight championship bout in three years will have the most dramatic spectacular setting in the annals of boxing or, probably any other sport. If the expectations of Promoter Rickard are fulfilled, and they seem likely to be, approximately 133,000 spectators will pay something like $1,750,000 to see Dempsey and Tunney match their skill in a struggle that cannot last more than 30 minutes.

Record Crowd Expected

The gladiators of ancient Rome, who fought for hours to a finish without compensation, probably would turn over in their graves if they knew these two modern fighters were to split a purse of $650,000 for a carefully regulated test of supremacy limited to little more than a half hour.

No stadium in modern sports history has ever seated such a throng as will be banked in the vast reaches of the gigantic sesqui-stadium. Nor has any athletic spectacle ever attracted as big a "gate." Boxing will reach new high marks here, with the crowd exceeding by about 40,000 the largest attendance heretofore and eclipsing by at least $100,000 the highest previous records for gate receipts.

Previous records were established in 1921 at Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City, when 90,000 saw Dempsey hammer Georges Carpentier into submission at a cost of $1,626,000.

Fans Hope Tunney Will Win

Whenever fight throngs eddied and flowed in increasing thousands, Dempsey stood out as the pick of the great majority of fans and experts but Tunney is already the hero of the battle. In the same breath with which excited fans declare Dempsey's devastating punch is destined to end the match before it is half over, they will latter the "hope" that Tunney is returned the victor.

The experts are nearly unanimous in picking Dempsey but support for the challenger comes from all walks of fandom, though chiefly of the moral variety. Tunney's war record, his engaging personality, the way in which he has fought himself into a title contending position all have caught the popular fancy. Not since the heroic figure of Georges Carpentier flashed across the pugilistic horizon has any more popular figure than Gene Tunney stepped into the limelight.

Those most hopeful of Tunney's prospects base their conviction that he at least has a fighting chance upon several factors. These have to do not only with Tunney's excellent record, but unquestioned ruggedness and defensive ability but a belief that Dempsey will not be the same champion who battered Willard, Carpentier, Firpo and others into defeat. These critics, while conceding Dempsey to be the heavier puncher, doubt that he has regained his best condition or that his legs will carry him through if the fight is unexpectedly prolonged.

Then, too, observers feel that the harassing and bothersome series of legal actions, unprecedented in connection with a title battle, have affected the champion's morale. His friends, however, are convinced these moves have served only to stimulate Dempsey's fighting temper and put him on edge.

The rival battlers will not leave their training camps for the scene of the battle until tomorrow. Dempsey, anxious to avoid any eleventh-hour moves by process servers, will be weighed in at Atlantic City between 1 and 2 p. m. by two of the members of the Pennsylvania boxing commission, Harvey Boyle, of Pittsburgh, and Harry Farrell, of Nanticoke.

Tunney will motor here from Stroudsburg and be weighed by Frank Wiener, chairman of the commission. The fighters will arrive at the stadium only in sufficient time to don their fighting trunks before stepping through the ropes, somewhere between 9:30 and 9:45 o'clock, eastern daylight time.

DEMPSEY-TUNNEY BOUT TO BE ANNOUNCED AT BULLETIN

The results, round by round, will be announced from the Bulletin office on Thursday evening. The results will come direct from the ringside by the Associated Press wire. The main bout will go on between 9.30 and 10 o'clock.

There will be absolutely no admittance to the editorial rooms of the Bulletin during the fight.

DEMPSEY IS DOWN TO 190 POUNDS FOR BOUT

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey stretched his million dollar frame beneath the sheets in his cottage at West Atlantic City tonight supremely confident that he will knock out Gene Tunney in their world's heavyweight championship fight in Philadelphia tomorrow night.

The bronzed and winburned titleholder went to bed early after a day of loafing. It was a lull before the storm for Dempsey and he had nothing to do but sit on the front porch of his bungalow, play checkers and go for an automobile ride.

Dempsey said he was down to 190 pounds, which surprised some of his admires who thought he was heavier. He expects to weigh about that figure at ring time tomorrow night. As a result of a special arrangement with the Pennsylvania state boxing commission, Dempsey will not have to go to Philadelphia to weigh in tomorrow afternoon. Instead he will jump on the scales in the back yard of his cottage here with representatives of the commission present.

This arrangement will save Dempsey the embarrassment of fighting crowds which are likely to jam the commission office in Philadelphia and also allow him to remain here until the last minute. He has no desire to appear in Philadelphia at least until after the courts are closed for the day because of the legal situation surrounding him.

TUNNEY SPENDS THE AFTERNOON AT GOLF

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Sept. 22—(AP)—Gene Tunney this afternoon, on the eve of his championship bout with Jack Dempsey, applied the acid test to his nerves. He played 18-holes of golf over the sporty course of the Shawnee Country club and was hitting his shots so well he turned in his best score he has made in a year. He was only two over fives for the difficult Shawnee layout.

"This day's golf gratified me exceedingly," said Tunney after he had finished the round. "A man whose nerves are not all right can't play golf. I remember just before the Gibbons fight I was jumpy and when I tried to ease the strain with some golf, I dubbed almost every shot. I was playing with Billy Gibson and he gave me the razz. I wish I had Gib out there today. I would have handed him his razzberry back with interest.

WEATHERMAN THINKS BOUT WILL NOT BE POSTPONED

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23—(AP)—Although the weatherman predicts light showers for tomorrow, he believes it "Better than an even bet" that the Dempsey-Tunney title fight is not blocked by rain.

The sun has shone all well so far on the sesqui-centennial stadium and fight followers are confident "Rickard's luck" will bring good weather.

The promoter has never been obliged to postpone one of his big outdoor shows because of bad weather over a period of 20 years in the game.

Should any postponement be necessary, however, the fight will be held Friday night.

The temperature for tomorrow evening is expected to hover between 60 and 65.

WHITE SOX GIVE YANKS A SEVERE SETBACK

CHICAGO, Sept. 22—(AP)—The New York Yankees pennant hopes were given a jolt today when the White Sox defeated them 2 to 1 while the Indians trimmed Boston, cutting the lead of the league leaders to two games.

Chicago outhit the visitors but were doomed to defeat until the ninth inning when Shocker weakened after two men were out. Harris started the rally with a walk and Mostil, who was out of the game because of a lame shoulder, ran for him. He took second on a passed ball and scored the tying run on Hunnefield's double to center. Barrett drove over the winning run when Hunnefield scored on a two base hit to left field.

Thurston held the Yankees to four hits but his own wildness cost him a run in the seventh inning. Koenig started the round with a sacrifice double to center after which Thurston filled the bases by walking Severeid and Shocker. Combs forced Severeid at second, Koenig scoring the run which saved the Yankees from a whitewash. Score:

WHITEHILL'S COLLAPSE GIVES SENATORS VICTORY

DETROIT, Sept. 22—(AP)—After pitching hitless ball for six innings, Earl Whitehill's cunning left him and Philadelphia drove him from the box to beat Detroit today, 3 to 2. Holloway, who succeeded him, was little better. Manush, who is leading the American league hitters, emerged from his batting slump, making three hits in five times at bat. Score:

CARDINALS PRACTICALLY CLINCH THE PENNANT

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 22—(AP)—The hard hitting Cardinals slugged Brooklyn Robins into submission here today to the tune of 15 to 7, burying three opposing hurlers under an avalanche of 17 hits for a total of 36 bases.

As Cincinnati was idle today the St. Louis lead on first place was increased to two games and a half.

In winning the game they practically clinched the championship. Bottomley and Thevenow hit home runs, Lester Bell three triples and a double, O'Farrell, a triple and Southworth a three bagger, a double and a single.

Arthur Reinhart went the route in the box for the Cardinals, yielding eleven hits. He had little trouble for his teammates piled up an early lead with three runs in the opening inning and five more in the second.

Jess Barnes was knocked out of the box in the second inning when five successive hits were made after two were out. Rube Ehrhardt followed Barnes and in the fourth St. Louis scored four runs at his expense. Bob McGraw finished the contest.

The game was the last of the season between the two clubs. The Cardinals won 15 out of 22. The score:

BRILLIANT PITCHING BATTLE EXPECTED IN SATURDAY'S GAME

A brilliant pitching battle is anticipated Saturday when Riverview and Taftville meet in the fourth game of the series at the Riverview diamond. Zemke will probably use Johnny Tillman who has won two games for Riverview, and Manager Troland of Taftville will send in Hughie Canavan against Riverview. Zemke has also signed Joe Faber for his infield.

J., has been substituted for Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, as the opponent of Knute Hansen, Racine, Wis., in one of the six-round preliminaries to the Dempsey-Tunney championship battle tomorrow night. Risko's withdrawal was due to a cut over one eye received in a recent bout.

KEARNS PLACES WAGER OF $150,000 ON DEMPSEY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23—(AP)—The animosity that has sprung up between Jack Dempsey and his former manager, Jack Kearns, reflected in numerous court actions, has not influenced Kearn's judgment on the outcome of the champion's battle with Gene Tunney tomorrow night.

Kearns is convinced Dempsey will win and authorized a broker today to wager $150,000 on the champion at the best available odds.

DEFEAT OF SARAZEN IS AN UPSET IN PROFESSIONAL GOLF TOURNEY

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Sept. 22.—(AP)—Gene Sarzaen ended a plucky fight to regain the Professional Golf association crown he held four years ago on the thirty-third green at Salisbury today.

Unable to match the masterful iron play of his opponent, Sarazen resigned at that point to Johnny Golden of Paterson, N. J. who thus dashed the hopes of two strong contenders in consecutive days with startling suddenness. Both conquests of the New Jersey veteran came like bolts out of a clear sky, for Golden never previously has figured prominently in the competitions for America's major links laurels. Both also were clinched on the 33rd green, where Golden toppled Harry Nopet of Kansas City in the first round yesterday.

The passing of Sarazen, an old foe of Hagen, took a colorful candidate out of the picture in a day otherwise marked by triumph for favorites. Hagen galloped away from 22-year old Dick Grout of Oklahoma City, 7 and 6, Johnny Farrell of Mamaroneck, N. Y., smothered Dick Linnard of Long Beach, Calif., 6 and 5, Harry Hampton of Memphis, Tenn., had a similar margin over Tommy Harmon of Yonkers, N. Y., and Leo Diegel of New York, finished six holes up on Neal McIntyre of Gary, Ind.

A lone knight of the Niblick remained to carry in the banner of the west in the hunt tonight as the result of a verdict on the home green for Abe Espinosa of Chicago over Mike Brady of New York, one up. Their see-saw battle was eclipsed, however, by a struggle between Bill Leach of Philadelphia and George Christ of Rochester, N. Y., with the latter finally squeezing through after two extra holes. In the eighth match of the round, Pat Doyle of White Plains, N. Y., nosed out Marshall Crichton of Kanuga, N. C. 3 and 2.

Golden did the pace-setting in his match against Sarazen from their very first lunges at the ball, lofting his approach almost under the flag on the first green for an eagle three to Gene's birdie four. Sarazen trailed from that point until the fifth hole of the afternoon round, where he finally squared the match.

Coming to the 16th tee four down this morning, Sarazen profited by a poor aproach on the part of Golden to bag the next hole in par and then closed with a 30-footer to taken the home hole in a birdie three, cutting his rival's advantage to two up. A spectacular pitch out of a deep trap to within three inches of the cup gave Sarazen the 21st hole, after which he squared the tilt with a neat par three at the 23rd.

Here the rally ended, Golden never thereafter yielding a single hole to the former champion. A trapped ball lost Gene the 26th, while the New Jersey player added another hole with a remarkable pitch and a ten-foot putt at the 28th.

Gene saved the next with a long putt after being in trouble but Golden, playing all the inward holes in par, took advantage of another slip by Sarazen in his approaching at the 31st, to gain his place in the quarter-finals.

Although Hagen had two three-putt Greens and was not as sure with his irons as usual, Grout never pressed the champion closely enough to give him concern. Diegel, despite uncertain putting, dashed away to such a commanding lead at the outset of his match against McIntyre that the result never appeared in doubt.

The tide of battle swung back and forth like a pendulum in the Espinosa Brady duel. All square at the end of the first eighteen, Brady shot away to take three of the first five afternoon holes, only to have Espinosa come back and win four straight. Ragged putting by the eastern professional gave Espinosa his chance at this period of the battle.

Rounding the turn one up, Espinosa dropped the thirtieth and they came to the 36th tee all square. Here Brady sliced all the way up to the green, while the Chicago man chipped up dead and dropped in his par four for victory.

Hmapton played the best golf of the round to defeat Harmon, building on a first round lead of one up with an outgoing afternoon nine of thirty two strokes, four under par. He then reeled off two successive birdies and three pars to clinch the match.

PIRATES TAKE ODD GAME OF SERIES WITH PHILLIES

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22—(AP)—Pittsburg took the odd game of the series of three with the Phillies by winning 9 to 3 today. Pie Traynor led a slugging attack with a single, double and home run that accounted for a total of five runs.

In the fourth inning a youth, about 20 years old, ran to the batter's box and tried to bat in Al Nixon's turn At first it was supposed to be a stunt, and then most of the fans decided the youth had been drinking. It developed later, however, he was mentally unsound.

Cy Rigler, the umpire behind the plate, knocked the youth down and ordered him off the field. Throughout the remainder of the game Rigler was hissed and booed by the crowd, and after the game he was escorted from the field by policemen. The youth was taken from the park by his brother, who withheld his name. Score:

VELVETMEN - TAFTVILLE A. A. CLASH AGAIN ON SUNDAY

The scene of the battle of the little world series of Taftville will be shifted to the J. B. Martin diamond on Sunday when Taftville A. A. and the J. B. Martin teams clash in the third game of their series. As rivalry of these two clubs is keen there is no doubt that the fans will have a chance to witness one of the best games in semi-pro baseball on Sunday. Both these clubs have been going at a fast clip this season and are out to decide who will hold the honors in baseball for the season of 1926. This being the deciding game of the series it is rumored about town that both managers are strengthening their lineups considerably. A record breaking crowd is expected to witness this battle on Sunday and police protection has been provided. Both complete lineups will be given out the latter part of the week.

Tunney defended his title in a 15-round bout with Jeff Smith at New Orleans. Last year his only important contest was a 12-round bout with Tom Gibbons at New York, in which he proved the victor.

SPORTING NOTES

Jack Demysey fought his first professional fight at the age of 19 at Montrose, Colo. He knocked out a husky young blacksmith in three rounds and was rewarded for his victory with $25.

Under the leadership of Jack Hendricks, the Cincinnati Reds are now seeking their first National League pennant since 1919. After finishing in first place that year they defeated the Chicago White sox in the world series. Since then they have finished in second place twice, but have not been able to push their way to the top.

The Roehampton polo ground in England was recently the scene of an amusing golf contest, played by airmen, flying at a height of 100 feet from the earth. The "links" had been prepared by drawing a small white circle on the ground, which, with a flag stuck in the middle of it, represented the hole. Golf clubs were dispensed with; instead of ordinary balls, each pilot was provided with three small bags filled with flour. The object of the game was to "hole out" in as few shots as possible, by dropping the bag into the middle of the white circle while flying over it.

The Dempsey-Tunney championship contest will furnish a brilliant climax to the sesqui-centennial program of sports in the Quaker City.

Joe Sewell, shortstop of the Cleveland team, has been hitting the ball hard this season. He is now in his seventh year with the Indians.

To establish a new high record in the matter of receipts the Dempsey-Tunney fight will have to draw in excess of $1,623,360, which was the total gate recorded for the Dempsey-Carpentier contest.

Dempsey is considerably under the average age at which his predecessors relinquished the heavyweight championship. Sullivan was 34 when Corbett beat him. Corbett lost to Fitzsimmons at the age of 31. Fitzsimmons was 37 when Jeffries took the title from him. Jeffries quit the game at 30. Jack Johnson lost the honors to Jess Willard at 37 and Willard was 36 when Dempsey toppled the crown from his head.

All signs point to a merry finish in the National league pennant race this year.

AGGIES PUT IN STIFF DAY AT PRACTICE

(Special to the Bulletin)

STOORS, Conn., Sept. 22—The Connecticut Aggies spent another day of hard work which closed with a half hour of scrimmage. During the first hour of the afternoon's practice, Coach Dole worked with the line. Freshman Coach Alexander had charge of the backfield candidates and their work consisted of recovering fumbles, catching forward passes and punts. The tackling dummy was used by every man on the squad for a half hour. Three elevens were lined up for signal drill and the last half hour was given over to a hard scrimmage.

Every man on the squad was given a chance and all showed their ability to the coaches. This year Coach Dole will have more reserve material than he has ever had at the state college.

The Noise-Maker

Size by sound one ne'er can tell,
And this perhaps is just as well.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

No wonder Danny Meadow Mouse hesitated. He simply didn't know what to make of the sounds that were coming from down in the little cove of the creek. When he had first started for there he had heard what he thought was the driving of stakes. Then as he drew nearer he heard what sounded like an old wooden pump being used as he had heard a pump used in Farmer Brown's dooryard. But now where he sat he heard noises which were not like stake-driving, and not like pumping, yet which at times sounded like both. Danny began to think he had gone far enough.

Still, he couldn't make up his mind to go back. Presently he stole forward just a wee bit, and stopped. He kept doing this until he was where he could see clearly the shore in that little cove.

"That's who it is, Pumper the Bittern," replied Peep

At first he saw no one, for you see he was looking for one of those two-legged creatures called men. But presently a little motion caught his eye. Danny had rubbed his eyes two or three times that morning, but now he rubbed them again. There, close to the grass, stood a brown bird. Had it not been for that motion Danny never would have seen imh in the wide world. His bill was pointed right straight up at the sky, and when he was motionless he didn't look like a bird at all. In fact, he looked more like an old brown stick than anything.

But as Danny watched, this fellow went through a queer performance. To begin with, he opened his bill and seemed to be swallowing air. Then followed a lot of curious motions with his neck.

"Goodness!" thought Danny. "That fellow must be sic. Yes, sir, he must be sick. Perhaps he has swallowed a fish and it has stuck in his throat. That's the way he acts. There, I guess he has swallowed it now."

The bird was once more standing with his bill pointing toward the sky. To see him you wouldn't have supposed he could move. aDnny had been so interested in the performance of this bird that he had quite forgotten about those queer noises. Now he began to look about hastily for the maker of them. But there was no one else to be seen. Danny looked very carefully, this way and that way, but no one else was to be seen. Finally he glanced back at this brown stranger. "Goodness!" exclaimed Danny. "He must be swallowing another fish, or frog, or something." You see, just as Danny looked, the bird began to go through all those queer motions again. Danny actually felt sorry for him. He wondered if perhaps a fish had stuck in his throat and would neither go down nor come up. He was still wondering when it dawned on him that all those strange noises were coming from right where that bird stood.

Danny opened his eyes very wide and stared in the rudest manner. No one saw him staring, so it didn't matter, but it was rude just the same. The bird stopped his queer motions, as if at last what had stuck in his throat had gone down. Instantly the noise stopped too. After a wait of a few minutes the bird began his queer motions again, and then Danny heard the strange noises once more. Danny Meadow Mouse waked up.

"I do believe," he cried, in that squeaky little voice of his, "that that is the stake-driver, and the pumper, and the maker of all those queer sounds."

"Of course," said a voice close to him. "Didn't you know that? I could have told you that!" It was Peep the Least Sandpiper.

"No, I didn't know it," replied Danny, "and I have run a long way to find out. Who is he, anyway?"

"It is Pumper the Bittern. That's who it is, Pumper the Bittern," replied Peep. "Did you ever hear such a noise from one of his size?"

"I never did," said Danny.

Stomach Trouble Gone, Bakes 40 Pies

"I was a nervous wreck with stomach trouble. Had dizzy spells and could scarcely walk. I began taking Adlerika, and now I run a restaurant and bake 40 pies a day. When my friends ask how I do it, I tell them about Adlerika."—Mrs. L. Amrol.

Adlerika differs from most medicines because it acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel. It gives the system a REAL cleansing, and clears out old poisons which usually cause sour, gassy stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache. Just ONE spoonful stops GAS, and relieves that full, bloated feeling so that you can eat better and sleep better. Even if bowels move daily, Adlerika brings out much additional poison which you never guessed was in your system and which may have long caused trouble. No matter what you have tried for stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. At leading druggists.

EVERYTHING MAKES FOR SUCCESS OF FAIR AT BROOKLYN WEDNESDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

BROOKLYN, Conn., Sept. 22—This year's exhibition by the Windham County Agricultural society at Brooklyn rates about the best fair Brooklyn has seen in the past decade. This was the opinion of a great many people who visited the show today and have been familiar with it for years.

While no innovations have been introduced, there has been a bolstering up of displays and it is not to be overlooked that what has been done by farmers, co-operating with the Windham County Farmers' association, in the way of applying modern scientific methods of culture to crops, has resulted in better displays of vegetables, fruit and flowers and brought forth such herds of cattle as were not to be found on Windham county farms in days gone by.

The Brooklyn fair is not one of the many in the state that have drifted into vaudeville, sports and fashion displays to interest a public given to thinking little and caring less about who feeds it. It remains pre-eminently an agricultural show. As the oldest fair in the United States it has not found it necessary to abandon the features that have made it of widespread interest for generations of eastern Connecticut people, and in later years, for hundreds who come from outside the state.

The crowd came early today and stayed late. From 10 until well after 2 o'clock there was a steady flow of pedestrians and vehicles through the gates. Exhibition buildings were jammed with people the greater part of the day that it was impossible for a great many to make as careful an examination of some of the exhibits as they would have liked.

As in years past, grange displays were an outstanding feature in the main exhibition building. Brooklyn, Canterbury and Scotland granges make these exhibits this year, Plainfield and Woodstock being missing from the list. These large displays are fascinating in that they contain all sorts of farm products—fruits, vegetables, flowers, dairy products, examples of culinary art and needlecraft and what not. They constitute a display of evidence that even to this day there is no one so independent of his fellowmen, as to getting an abundant living, as the farmer—a farmer who works today with many labor-saving devices and whose farm buildings are electrically lighted, his premises connected with the wide world by telephone and his creature comforts greater than ever before. The grange displays at the Brooklyn fair impresses one with all of these thoughts.

An especially interesting display of vegetables is by C. B. Jewett and Son, of Hampton. The Jewetts specialize in vegetable growing and have done so well that several hundred people visited their place on the Farmers' field trip in August to look over their crops and hear about how they have developed their business into a profitable enterprise. What has been done on this farm is significant of the strides the county is making agriculturally.

The Brooklyn Vegetable Growers' association has a very fine display at the fair.

In addition to the vegetable displays mentioned there are many smaller ones by individuals who have entered one class or another to show some unusually fine products of garden.

The floral display this year is particularly attractive and comprehensive. Dahlias and gladiolus are shown in profusion. Holding the attention of all was the wonderful display of dahlias by Rev. Charles A. Downs of Goodyear and another of the same variety of flower by the Maple Crest gardens of Moosup. Floral exhibits occupy a large section of the exhibition building and proved a great interest to the fair visitors.

The County Farmers' association has gone in for a statistical display at the fair and is improving the opportunity to distribute many pamphlets dealing with various farm problems. As to statistics, a poster shows that there are 2270 farms in Windham county and that with their equipment they represent an investment of $13,233,507, a tidy sum of money, as anyone would admit. Of all the more than 300,000 acres of land that are included within the limits of the county, 65.6 per cent. is farm land. As at Woodstock fair the past week, the Farmers' association is stressing the strategic position Windham county occupies geographically in its relation to the finest markets for farm products in New England—Boston, Worcester, Providence and many other smaller cities and innumerable towns and villages. "Produce high quality products" is the slogan for Windham county farmers, for there is a ready market and good prices for such things.

Various concerns have space in the exhibition building for displays of merchandise or distribution of souvenirs and literature. Souvenir collectors by the way, had a field day. When they took all that was proffered them at various places around the grounds they became loaded down like pack peddlers.

The Brooklyn Savings bank, The Danielson Trust company and the Cargill Trust company, all had booths at the fair. At the Cargill Trust company booth, where Treasurer J. Dyer Potter was in charge, was about as strange and quaint a bank as one might hope to see. It was the depository for the money accumulated by a man who lived in an out-of-the-way corner of one of the agricultural towns near Putnam. It consists of a big block of stove wood, split in half. A section of one half had been bored out to make a sizeable pocket and in this the money was placed and then the halves of the block nailed together. Lying in a woodbox with other stove wood one never would suspect it was a bank, yet the halves can be taken apart easily if one knows about the arrangement.

The cattle show is a big feature of the fair this year. On Wednesday there were 158 head on exhibition, representative of about all the well known kinds of cattle owned on Windham county farms. Judges were busy during the afternoon inspecting and comparing the entries with a view to awarding premiums.

Matching other departments in interest and variety of entries was the poultry show. There are many exhibitors in this department, from poultrymen who have hundreds of hens to boys who make their first displays in competition. Turkeys, geese, ducks, guinea hens and pigeons also are shown by a number of exhibitors.

The women's department, a center of interest throughout the day for the many hundred women who were at the fair, is unusually attractive this year. Scores of beautiful pieces of needlework are on display and many other lines of things usually shown in this department.

Displays of new automobiles, of washing machines, farm machinery, electrical devices for farm use, etc., interested hundreds on Wednesday. D. Blumenthal put on a radio show at the fair and passed out something like a cord of yard sticks as souvenirs to those who visited his exhibit.

No one feature of the fair, and a comparatively new feature, attracted more attention than the dog show arranged by the Windham County Kennel club for the fair management. Entries came from various towns in Windham and New London counties. The dogs ranged from types of Yorkshire terriers up to the majestic Russian wolf hound. The crowd liked the dog show and proved it by the continuous interest shown. There were some splendid canine specimens on the bench. Walter Bromley of Danielson showed Fashionable Stylo, a Pomeranian, black, that has won 11 first and 3 special prizes in competition. Mrs. John Shipp of Providence, one of the judges, for exhibition only showed a three times champion Yorkshire terrier. Joseph Birch showed a champion Pekinese for exhibition. Prentice W. Chase of Jewett City had a splendid Airedale, Montana Fred—Sheik Lion Hearted—as an especially interesting entry. Michael Longen showed a beautiful Russian wolf hound. There were many other interesting entries.

Judging of the dogs began at 2 o'clock the judge for the police dog entries being Ray Wood. Two professional judges gave their services to pass on entries in other classes. Tom Whitpinglow of Greystone, R. I., was judge of terriers and varieties and Mrs. John Shipp of Providence the toys and varieties.

Band music and vaudeville were added attractions for those who filled the grandstand and lined the rails to watch the horse races in the afternoon, as well as to see the driving classes and such other features as were presented for view. More race horses are at the fair this year than have been entered for several years, and good racing resulted and seems assured for today. J. C. Witter acted as starter of the races, and the other race officials were as follows: Judges, Dr. F. C. Baldwin, Samuel Roberts, Dr. James Hutchins, timers, Dr. F. W. Page, George W. Miller, Otis Fox; clerk, Dr. F. W. Page. The race results were as follows:

New Wrinkle-Removing Method Acts Like Magic

Will wonders never cease? The latest is a home method to remove wrinkles, age-lines and flabbiness from the face "while you wait." Marvelously effective, entirely harmless, simple, inexpensive, it bids fair to supercede cosmetics, make-ups, massage and all other things used for the purpose. All you need do is to mix a spoonful of powdered tarkroot with a spoonful of lemon juice, apply the soothing, creamy mixture to your face—then go to the mirror and behold a most wonderful transformation. Wrinkles, crowsfeet, furrows and sags actually disappear before your very eyes! Your face becomes remarkably young looking. You are perfectly amazed. And you are delighted to find no unfavorable after-effect whatever.

Tarkroot is very helpful to the complexion. It is not a cosmetic, because it is to be washed off after doing its work, leaving nothing artificial. An original package from the druggist costs less than 3 cents a treatment.

NEW LONDON HONORS NATHAN HALE, HANGED BY BRITISH 150 YEARS AGO

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 22—Nathan Hale was recalled as a school master in New London and as one of the outstanding figures of the Revolutionary war when the 150th anniversary of his execution by the British was commemorated. Exercises were held in the several schools of the city and later the pupils were taken to the little red school building in which Hale was a teacher before he answered the call of his country and bore arms in the struggle that brought independence to America. The teachers cited the history of Hale and dwelt upon the example his life suggested to the young men and women of today. This afternoon at the old Nathan Hale school, State Treasurer E. E. Rogers talked to the pupils of the grammar school and the Jennings school.

NORWICH MAN LOSES $50 WHILE ON WAY TO MONTAUK

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 22—Thomas McCusker had hard luck in this city when he sought pleasure through the absorption of what goes for liquor. He said he was on the way from Norwich to Montauk Point where he was to be employed as the manipulator of a hoisting engine. He had been relieved of $50 while he was in this city, but he was certain he could get accommodation from Johnny Dolan, at Norwich, if he was allowed to seek it. The court had sympathy for Tom and allowed him to hit the path for Montauk point.

Edward Kelly assumed an attitude indicating that he was being accused wrongfully when he was charged today with begging in public. Kelly said he was guilty of intoxication, but that he begged from any person he denied. Then his bluff was called, for Policeman Babcock, who arrested Kelly, was ordered to tell just what happened. He was in the Eslahan store when Kelly rolled in, half drunk and sought to gather in whatever loose change the patrons of the store or the clerks would give him. Policeman Babcock was not in uniform so Kelly supposed he was free to make his appeal. He got no money in the store so he sought to take collections in other places of business and then he was nabbed. He told the court a story about selling lead pencils, but it was not accepted as true and Kelly was sent to jail for ten days as a vagrant and was fined $5 for intoxication, an offense he admitted.

James Rogers, a solicitor for a magazine, was reported to the police as having left an unpaid bill at the Mohican hotel. Later it proved that Rogers had an automobile in use and that it was left in the street more than twelve hours. The car was tagged and then it was established that Rogers claimed the machine, which was registered in the name of Dorothy Crane of Stratford, now, it is said, the wife of Rogers. Judge Crandall talked effectually to Rogers as to what course he should pursue in parking his auto and suspended judgment.

Fr. Reagan.

Felix Lyle, 578 Main street, made complaint to the police this morning that his Buick automobile that he had left parked for the night in front of his residence, had been stolen. A short time afterwards and after the police of Norwich, Westerly, New Haven and Hartford, as well as the state police at Groton and Centerbrook had been requested to be on the lookout for the automobile, Lyle notified the police that he had recovered the automobile. It was found on Montauk avenue, south of Thames street where it had been abandoned by the thief.

A New York automobile truck came to grief on Fort Hill, Groton, last night, yet although the truck overturned, its three occupants escaped injury. The truck, which is owned by a New York concern, was returning from Boston to New York when the accident occurred. It had descended Fort Hill but about half the distance when one of the front springs parted, causing the driver to lose control of the steering gear. Breed Theater

Directed by Victor Schertzinger and boasting one of the most evenly-balanced casts ever assembled in an American studio, Siberia, Fox Films version of Bartley Campbell's memorable play, which comes Friday to the Breed theater, furnishes additional proof that the screen is the ideal medium for sounding the uttermost depths of human emotion. Siberia, with its terrific dramatic sweep, its great scope, and its marvelous settings, is a distinct departure in motion picture entertainment.

No expense was spared by the Fox organization to make this one of the most elaborate productions ever attempted at the West Coast studio. It is replete with thrills, scenic beauty and action. Petrograd interiors, Siberian exteriors and innumerable Russian settings were fashioned under the watchful eye of European experts specially employed for this purpose.

One scene, in particular—that of the home of the lordly Vronsky in Petrograd—is the most gorgeous interior ever built for a single moving picture production. Another, the private rooms of Leonid Petroff, furnishes ample proof of the technical skill that contributed to the making of Siberia. These scenes, handsomely hand-painted, were many weeks in the making.

The action ranges from Petrograd, with its dazzling beauty, to Siberia, with its squalor, and centers about Alma Rubens. Edmund Lowe, Lou Telegen and Tom Santschi. Others in the all-star cast are Lilyan Tashman, Vadim Uraneff, Daniel Makarenko, James Marcus, Samuel Blum, Harry Gripp and others.

KINGDOM OF SWEDEN OVER 1,200 YEARS OLD

By comparing evidences from two independent sources, the Nordic sagas and recent archeological discoveries, Prof. Birger Nerman of the Upsala university, in Sweden, has come to the conclusion that as a unified kingdom Sweden is about 1,200 years old, and therefore one of the most ancient in Europe. Anthropological measurements of skeletons unearthed in several parts of the country tend to prove that direct ancestors of the present population lived in Sweden at least 5,000 years ago, and probably much longer. Other remnants, such as amber beads, throw much light on the Swedish foreign trade of 2,000 years ago. Even in the extreme north the Swedes preceded the Lapps and Finns, about 2,500 B. C.

As historical sources the sagas were once discounted by research workers, but now Prof. Nerman, who is both a linguist and archeologist, has backed them up with the results of recent excavations, and his deductions are that the chief incidents are founded on actual occurrences. Originally Sweden was divided up into a number of smaller kingdoms, and Prof. Nerman believes that the process of unification took place much longer ago than previous writers have supposed. The final submission of the southern provinces to the "Svea" kings of the central regions did not take place until the latter half of the eighth century, he concludes, or just before the beginning of the Viking period.

APARTMENTS NEEDED IN CAPITAL OF JAPAN

In Tokio one often hears the statement that the housing problem can be solved by the erection of apartment houses.

Newly arrived foreigners in the big cities of Japan, perplexed by the search for moderate accommodations, wonder why enterprising builders do not seize the opportunity to make a quick return on the investment by putting up apartments, for which there is so urgent a demand. To many Japanese who have returned from residence abroad the apartment house would make a special appeal. The so-called "foreign" house as built in Japan—except the mansions of the wealthy—justifies its name only in outward form, and does not justify the increased rental asked just because it is "foreign." Native-style houses, with their complete absence of modern comforts as known in the west, are difficult to heat in the cold seasons. Because of their lack of conveniences they are costly to operate. They require many domestic servants.

MOSCOW STRAPHANGING COMPLICATED PROBLEM

Moscow's complicated street car rules have been increased by a new one that children more than 42 inches high must not get on the front platform. The little cars are packed like sardines through the day. To get on one is a wild scramble and those who cannot fight their way to a foothold before the conductor gives the bell are left. As a conductor cannot get through a car to collect the fares, a strict rule is that passengers must mount by the rear platform and leave by the forward one. The only exception is women with babies, cripples and persons with bundles, and there are plenty of the latter, often as large as trunks. Many have avoided the rush by bringing children, who would not be crushed by the rear platform melee, and the 42-inch rule has been promulgated. Other new rules prohibit intoxicated hunters with guns, animals, birds, explosives, or women with long hatpins from riding on the cars.

EIGHT BATHS A YEAR AVERAGE IN MOSCOW

Careful investigation has resulted in the denouncing as a canard of the story published in the United States that near Lake Baikal has been discovered a village in which the inhabitants never bathed. Careful investigation by the Moscow economy department shows that the 1,800,000 inhabitants of this city average eight or nine baths a year.

Dangerous Varicose Veins Can Be Reduced

Chappell Experience Reflects the Growth of 90 Years

THE standards of efficiency, economy and reliability set by the Edward Chappell Company for serving coal and lumber buyers is not an accident, but a result of more than 90 years of experience in selling the highest quality coal and lumber.

The same expert knowledge responsible for always supplying the highest grades of lumber is reflected in the many buildings in and about Norwich which have 25, 35, 50 years behind them.

In the long run you pay more for inferior coal and lumber than you do for the superior grades.

Leadership in the exacting fields of coal and lumber prepared the ground for Chappell's present position in supplying the best coal and lumber in Norwich.

Are you planning to build? Then confer with us and we will be pleased to furnish you with practical building advice. Have you filled your coal bin? We have saved thousands of dollars on coal bills for people in Norwich by advising them on the correct sizes of coal to buy. No obligation, of course.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

HOURIGAN BROTHERS NEW FUNERAL HOME

Hourigan Bros. funeral directors have remodelled the apartment in their building No. 35 Church street into a modern funeral home. It is the first of its kind in this city and great care has been taken that same is up to date in every particular for the convenience of the public.

The funeral home is a modern place where people may bring their loved ones and have the funeral held under homelike conditions. This home consists of six rooms, beautifully furnished and decorated to make it attractive and homelike. Its location on Church street, a residential street away from traffic and noise, also adds to its convenience to the public.

The funeral home together with the modern equipment places this firm on a par with those of the large cities.

The display rooms and office will be located on Main street as usual.

Palace Theatre.

The remarkable service rendered by the news reel to the public was never more pronounced than in the showing on the Palace screen of the motion pictures of the great Florida hurricane and the wreck of Capt. Fonck's New York to Paris plane only a few hours after the actual occurrences, a truly wonderful demonstration of modern methods and while Gene Tunney is in his great battle with Jack Dempsey for the world championship he may be seen on the Palace screen in his famous serial picture, "The Fighting Marine." The management will also announce the returns from the fight in Philadelphia from the stage this evening. And with all these items of immediate interest the main picture programme has not been neglected, far from it, for the feature picture is Zane Grey's greatest story, "Born to the West," filled with thrilling action and romance of the great out doors, starring Jack Holt, supported by Margaret Morris and Raymond Hatton. Zane Grey's latest romantic thriller is no ordinary western, but a blood tingling he man action drama of the open spaces. A new Mack Sennett comedy entitled "Hubby's Quiet Little Game," can be counted on to supply much merriment, and Walter Lang and his popular orchestra will furnish tuneful music in keeping with the picture programme.

Broadway Theatre.

The sheik's coming back to town!

Yes, it's Rudolph Valentino, and he's billed to appear on the screen next Sunday at the Broadway theatre in a sequel to the story which brought him his greatest fame.

"The Son of the Sheik" is the title of Valentino's latest United Artists picture, which was produced by John W. Considine, Jr. The original tale upon which the scenario is based was written by E. M. Hull.

From all reports, the dashing Rudy has carried out his determination to make "The Son of the Sheik" the most entertaining and lavish of all his pictures and to establish a record for all future screen desert romances to aim at. "The Son of the Sheik" was directed by George Fitzmaurice.

Valentino has surrounded himself with a notable supporting cast including Vilma Banky, his leading lady for the second consecutive time; Agnes Ayres, who rose to fame with Rudy in the original "Sheik;" Geo. Fawcett, veteran character actor; Montagu Love, who plays one of the chief villains; the huge Karl Dane, of "Big Parade" fame; Bull Montana, in a role totally different from anything he has ever acted; Erwin Connelly, who won new laurels for his work in Norma Talmadge's "Kiki"; Charles Requa and other sterling players.

In addition to the highly amorous scenes, "The Son of the Sheik" is offered to the public by the management as one of the greatest thrill pictures ever filmed.

Valentino risks his neck in daredevil feats of horsemanship and athletic stunts, and takes part in two fights that are said to be most vicious.

This is Valentino's latest and best picture—your last opportunity to see the world's greatest lover on the screen.

Broadway Theatre.

The Keith-Albee five act vaudeville programme that is offered at the Broadway theatre for the last half of this week has been chosen to please the most discriminate theatregoer, no matter how hard to please he may be.

The main feature turn is "Bargain Days," a miniature musical comedy with six people—four of dainty loveliness—giving many bargains in laughter and dance. Notice is also called to the four other acts as advertised in the theatre ad of today.

"Step this way for the big show ladeeze and gentlimen—!" which in other words means that "Hearts and Spangles," now at the Broadway theatre, is a real honest-to-goodness circus picture. In this clever Gotham production one not only gets the full view of the circus from the front but also many interesting side-lights of the life of the circus people themselves when they are not in the ring.

That clever juvenile actor, Frankie Darrow, does a fine bit of screen acting and Barbara Tennant and Eric Mayne also give a good account of themselves. Frank O'Connor who directed the picture, deserves commendation for turning out a photoplay that is authentic of the real circus atmosphere and an entertainment that can be safely recommended to anyone.

Capitol Theater, Willimantic

It is welcome news that, No, No, Nanette, now the reigning sensation of New York, London and Australia, and which played to packed houses for more than a year in Chicago, is booked for this evening, Sept. 23, in this city. No, No, Nanette, with its famous song hits, I Want to Be Happy and Tea for Two, is the outstanding musical sensation of this generation, its irresistible toe-tickling melodies being literally sung nightly in all the great amusement capitals of the world.

When H. H. Frazee opened No, No, Nanette originally in Chicago, he looked for possibly eight good weeks at the Harris theatre. So, he felt safe in promising his new musical comedy for a fairly early engagement in New York. However, No, No, Nanette soon began to make history in Chicago. The town went wild over I Want to Be Happy and all the other song hits. And it laughed itself into hysteria over the brilliant humor of the book. The girls of the ensemble were declared to be the pick of the revues in smartness and beauty. The feature reached a solid and sustained "sell out" record and the booking was extended indefinitely, rounding out 500 performances.

JEWETT CITY

who had arranged several numbers for social entertainment.

Merton H. Bartlett, when called upon, responded with a very interesting description of the twelve days' tour through New England states, arranged under the auspices of the State grange. Mr. Bartlett told of seeing potatoes in bloom up in the Maine potato fields, which had fully developed tubers in the hills, differing from potatoes in this vicinity which only have very small potatoes in the hills when in bloom.

Miss Aileen Burdick and Bessie LaLiberte played a fine piano duet. The applause showed that those present enjoyed good music.

The topic for discussion during the evening was then presented "Should Military Training Be Compulsory?" This topic was considered because of the increasing numbers of young men throughout the country, who attend the Citizens' Military Training Camps each summer.

The discussion was opened by Leon D. Howe who in an able manner presented his opinion of the subject. Following him Rev. J. W. Carter gave his opinion on the subject from his experience at the Submarine Base during the World war.

Delwyn H. Martin then sang a pleasing voice "Path of My Dreams." Mr. Martin's solos are always well received by the class members. Ham and eggs sandwiches, pickles, nutted lemonade, English walnut cake, chocolate cocoanut cake and coffee were then served by Mrs. Thornton who was assisted by the Misses Burdick and LaLiberte.

Following the refreshments several others who were present expressed their opinion in regard to military training, some citing the opportunities of their former days who had seen military service.

The meeting closed with the singing of the class hymn "Till We Meet Again." The closing was led by R. W. Robertson, a past president of the class, following which the benediction was pronounced. The interest of the twenty-one present gives a good indication of the work of the class to be undertaken during the coming fall and winter.

The class voted to accept the invitation of Lewis D. Howe to meet at his home on Palmer avenue in October.

Sheik Lionheart, the Airdale terrier owned by P. W. Chase, took first honors in his class in the parade of dogs at Brooklyn Fair. He was also in the limit, first in the open and first in American bred. And in the special which included all the dogs in the parade special premium. There were one hundred dogs entered in the parade.

STOCK PRICES REACTIONARY

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The stock market turned reactionary today after an early display of strength. The setback in its initial form was not unexpected with the development in the day's news, but the maintenance of a somewhat easy money rates interested the uneasiness over the credit situation with the result that bear traders were again able to force the liquidation of stocks by raising the fear of another increase in the Reserve rediscount rates. Director, of the Boston Federal Reserve Bank met today and decided to continue the four percent rate. A vote of the New York rate will be taken after those tomorrow.

The market was largely professional in character with much of the day's business originating with floor traders. Public participation, according to some of the larger commission houses, was on a relatively small scale. Despite the fact that freight car loadings were being maintained in record proportions, the total during today was exceeding one million mark for the fifteenth time this year, the newest source of a slowing up was in some important lines although production is being maintained on a large volume. With election day only six weeks away, the political situation is coming in for increased attention.

Other speculative interest in today's market was directed among three issues, Motor common, General Motors preferred, chemical, steel common and U. S. Steel common. Motors made a new high record at 146 3-4 after touching 147 3-4 with some of the selling probably influenced by the action steel prices in Chicago. Report reports that incoming business this month was running substantially above deliveries, indicating another boom in unfilled orders Allied Chemical was bid up 3 points to a new record high at 147 on reports that the preferred stock would be retired. The common split on a 2 for one basis and a dividend of $4 or $5 paid on the new issues. The present stock pays only $4.

General Motors closed nearly a point over at 146 3-4 after fluctuating between 145 5-8 and 150. Some of the buying may have been inspired by the published remarks of President Sloan on the eve of his departure for Europe in which he called attention to the fact that the outlook for the company is good with "not a cloud in sight." The automotive industry experiences a seasonal decline in business during the fall and winter and that production will be adjusted in accordance with the trend of retail sales.

Rails dropped out in some of the early sessions. Hudson falling 2 points and Mack Trucks 2 1-8 and Willys-Overland and Pierce Arrow a point or so.

Railroad operations were aggressive in contrast with the amusement shares Warner Pictures A was bid up over 4 points on the announcement of a second 'phone (sound reproducing) film with a new group of stars will be released next month, closing 3 3-4 on realizing. Fox Film A gained 3 points but lost all but a fraction of its gain. Famous Players gained 1-2 points higher. Consolidated Film was the weakness of the group, declining 3 points. Commercial Solvents, Electric Storage Battery, Brothers, Pullman and Stewart Warner.

Sinclair Oil reached a new record high at 29 1-4 on the Curb. Pure Oil" common at 27 1-8 on strength and activity of Ohio and Lake Erie issues while the balance of New York Central issues and otherwise quiet rail list.

Sterling was off a cent at 3 1-2 percent. Foreign exchanges and Commercial Cables were unchanged.

The commodity markets were heavy. Wheat values tumbled 6 cents a bushel with consequent developments of a settlement movement

STRIKES TRUCK WHILE DRIVER LIGHTS LANTERNS

A Dodge coupe owned by the Yantic Grain company and operated by Milton Adnopoz of 53 Fairmount street, this city, and a truck owned by the O. C. Lyons and Sons of West Warwick and driven by Richard J. Cies were in collision about 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening near the Raymound Congdon place in Yantic. There was no damage to the truck, but a lantern attached to its rear was broken, while the lighter car sustained a broken windshield and other minor damage.

The truck driver had parked alongside the road near the town line in order to light the lanterns on the truck and was in the act of lighting them in the front of the car when the coupe came along. At the same time another car was approaching the opposite direction and the driver of the coupe claimed that its lights blinded him, so that he did not have a clear vision of the highway. Before he noticed the taillights on the truck he was so close he could not avoid hitting it.

A quantity of iron piping with which the truck was loaded and bound for New York went through the windshield of the coupe smashing it and inflicting a cut on the finger of Mr. Adnopoz, his only injury. Constable Lincoln Benton of Norwich Town was called and investigated the accident.

PRIZES IN NORWICH TOWN GARDEN CONTEST

In response to the general invitation sent out by the Norwich Rural association, a large company of garden lovers attended the special meeting Wednesday evening in the Congregational chapel on the Norwich Town Green, to hear the decision of the judges in the garden contest conducted during the summer under the auspices of the association. At the meeting the prize ribbons were also awarded the winners in the contest.

President Walter C. Camp presided and made a few preliminary remarks in behalf of the association's interests in behalf of the association's interests in beautifying Norwich Town. He also spoke in commendatory words of the efficient judges that made up the impartial committee. President Camp expressed the hope that there would be enough interest aroused to repeat the contest in 1927.

In conclusion, he alluded to the fact that everything should be done to perpetuate Norwich as to its title, "Rose of New England" and presumably the rose was planted in Norwich Town Tree Enough for an applause.

President Camp then introduced Miss Amy Cogswell, formerly principal of Lowthorpe School of Gardening, and Landscape Architecture who gave an intensely interesting address on "Old Fashioned Gardens." WILLIMANTIC CELEBRATION INTERRUPTED BY A FIRE

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 22—About 10:15 tonight the three trucks of Engine Company No. 1 speeded up Main to Pleasant street in answer to a still alarm, quickly followed by a box alarm, from Box 18, for a fire in the unoccupied new two-story residence being erected at the west end of the street by Salvatore Bertora. The rear of the building was in flames. A rubbish pile some 20 feet in the rear of the building had become ignited and sparks had set fire to the creosoted wall and roof shingles.

Damage of several hundred dollars was caused by fire and water. The building was nearly ready for occupancy. Bertora stated that he had not been on the premises today. With the aid of two streams of water the blaze was quickly gotten under control.

Fire Chief Henry J. Kelly with Alderman Walter R. King, Charles H. Beebe and Aime J. Martineau were just driving into the city from Elmira, N. Y., and New Jersey, where they had inspected fire apparatus when they saw the blaze and were at the fire before the trucks.

Arthur McCarthy, running across Main street, opposite the Capital theatre building, was knocked down when struck by a motorcycle operated by Traffic Officer Pierre Marotte on his way to the fire. McCarthy received slight injuries to his knee and his clothing was torn.

DESCRIBES WORK OF HOSPITAL LABORATORIES

What the laboratory work at the W. W. Backus hospital means to the people of Norwich was ably brought to the attention of the members of the Norwich Rotary club at the meeting held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel when Mrs. Abbie Palmer Carley, bacteriologist at the hospital, delivered a very interesting paper on the subject. Mrs. Carley showed that the laboratory work at the hospital was one of the most essential things of hospital work.

In part Mrs. Carley spoke as follows:

The functions of the modern hospital regardless of size, are multiple and indivisible and closely linked with the general efficiency of the hospital as a whole, all are of equal importance and none capable of undue accentuation at the expense of the others. They embody much more than the housing of the sick, as I have said before. They may be looked upon first, the scientific, skilful and ethical care of the sick; second, teaching, as concerns the nurse, the interne, the staff and the community, third, research, as concerned with the evaluation of old methods, and the evolution of new, whether concerned with the diagnosis or treatment or with the better understanding of the mechanism and manifestations.

The department chosen for discussion today will be the clinical laboratory. We will consider its scope and function.

I feel that my subject should be of special interest to this club for the instigators and promoters of the clinical laboratory at Backus hospital happen to be members of your organization: Dr. Freeman and Dr. Agnew. Both have long dreamed, hoped and I might say even fought for this department, which to them modern scientific outlook was an essential branch of the hospital of today.

Help was near at hand for The College of Surgeons in standardizing of hospitals, which was done primarily to give every person adequate medical service near home, recognized that no scientific work in the diagnosis and treatment could be carried out successfully without the aid of the laboratory. Thus we have the clinical laboratory here at the present time because certain laws demand it, but I am sure that the time is not far away when we can say, we have the laboratory because the people demand it. Only through educating the public can this be accomplished.

The clinical laboratory is the compass of the physician. It enables him to sail fearlessly over hitherto uncharted waters; to invade areas closed to his predecessors, and to achieve conquests where only defeats were known. It has broadened and strengthened, sustained and stabilized the entire sphere of medicine, and has born its full share in redeeming the tropical world from its old heritage of disease and death. The modern doctor acknowledges without question his dependence upon the laboratory to assist him in his work. For many conditions, the knowledge gained solely through this source becomes indispensable in the proper conduct of a case. For example, in diseases of the blood, differentiation, with resulting variation in prognosis and treatment cannot be determined without the continued support of expert laboratory examinations. In the diagnosis of diphtheria, typhoid, malaria, tuberculosis, diabetes and pyelitis, we become still further indebted.

The American College of Surgeons have listed as minimum standard requirements of all laboratories for the study, diagnosis and treatment of patients the following: Cytology, bacteriology, serology, pathology and X-ray. The college has wisely refrained from laying down definite or detailed specifications as to the kind or the amount of clinical laboratory service to be given in the various classes admitted to the hospital. It has left it to time and to the discretion of each hospital to work out its own problems. Routine tests. Our plan at the Backus hospital is to perform certain so called routine tests on every patient admitted to the hospital, regardless of the nature of the ailment. This method is a time saver, for when the doctor calls to see his patient and finds an operation necessary, the laboratory findings can tell him whether he is justified in his procedure and also if the patient is in a fit condition for an operation. For remember no patient should go to the operating table, (except in emergency cases) or under the anesthetic without the accompanying report of the urinalysis and blood test. It is as much a part and parcel of hospital routine as the obtaining the temperature and pulse, a procedure to which the patient is entitled by right as included in his implied contract with the hospital management.

For a flat rate we do the routine tests, such as blood counts, hemoglobin estimation, Wassermann tests, feces examination, sputum examination, cultures in throat and pus cases and simple bacteriological smears. By request of the doctors the newer methods of blood chemistry, seriology procedures, as Widal tests, etc., blood cultures, preparation of vaccines and spinal fluid examinations, gastric analysis and many other diagnostic and helpful tests can be carried out in our modern well equipped laboratory, at comparatively reasonable rates. It is our aim as soon as possible to make all tissue examinations routine, so that no operation is performed without the results fully known and listed in our reports.

I want to impress upon you that it is not the function of the laboratory report to make the diagnosis, or to furnish the sole or predominant basis for diagnostic assertions. The laboratory report is merely a source of information. A means of supplying the doctor with data not otherwise available and the data should be supplied and sought for with the distinct understanding that it is to be weighed, evaluated and interpreted, that it is not in itself, a complete study but a phase of such a study with which all the other information must be correlated.

Records of all laboratory work is an essential to adequate service. A duplicate of all reports is kept in proper form for reference. All tissue slides are also kept for further study and these are carefully indexed.

Our outside department gives the necessary service to the patient at home, the work being ordered by the doctor in charge. The diabetic patient and those suffering with chronic troubles appreciate this service. This branch of our service is useful in checking up with your present state of health. A few dollars invested now may prevent a greater loss of time and money later on. One owes it to oneself and to his family to keep fit. An Arabian proberb worth remembering is: He who has health has hope and he who has hope has everything. Do you not wish to possess everything. Today is the tomorrow of yesterday, the day on which you promised yourself that you would attend to this question of health. Have you done it? Health and disposition are the most important things in life. Good health enables you to live with yourself; a good disposition to live successfully with others. Have you not a duty to the community to preserve your present good health or to improve a poorer condition?

The sun dial records the sunny hours. Let the doctor with the aid of the clinical laboratory enable you to have many more sunny hours to record. Think a minute, is it not worth while?

Compare what our hospital has to offer for service with other like institutions and I am sure you will be happily surprised and pleased that your own home hospital can give as good and even better service as other places at I am sure no more expenditure.

Why look further when you have the best near at hand? Visit your hospital and learn for yourself how we have advanced in medical service.

Folowing Mrs. Carley's paper, Dr. R. R. Agnew added much weight to the subject when he stated two specific cases where the laboratory work done by Mrs. Carley had saved two lives. These cases were, one, a child that had the similar symptoms of appendicitis and typhoid fever; and the other, a man who was suffering from what was apparently diabetis. In the first case a test was made in the laboratory and it was found that the child had a ruptured appendix, and the operation was made. Had the child been suffering from typhoid the operation would have caused the patient's death. The laboratory test made it safe to operate. In the other case the laboratory test showed that the man instead of having diabetis was suffering from the lack of sugar in the blood and glucoes was injected and he recovered.

The speaker of the day was introduced by Dr. A. C. Freman who was in charge of the day's program.

At the business session of the meeting President Edwin A. Harris presided and John J. O'Rourke was the song leader with Henry J. LaFontaine at the piano. Included in the musical features of the meeting were two delightful solos by Fred (Shorty) Wallen of Hartford who sang The Gypsy Love Song and Carry Me Back to Old Virginny. There was also a group number by the manufacturing members of the club.

Secretary Edward Jewett announced that the members of the local club had been invited to be the guests of the Willimantic club at a meeting on the evening of Oct. 5th in the new Nathan Hale hotel at Willimantic. It is planned to make this an intercity meeting of the eastern Conn. clubs.

Charles A. Saxton, manager of the Rotary club baseball team, made a report in which he said that the team was shaping up fine and predicted that his club would successfully defend their title of champions of the 30th district against the challenging Hartford club. There will be practice this (Thursday) evening at the Academy campus.

Cigars were passed around at the meeting, the gift of Joseph C. Wood in celebration of the most recent member of his family who arrived in Sept. 18th.

President Harris congratulated Mayor Milo R. Waters on his nomination for the office of lieutenant governor on the democratic ticket.

A city of bungalows offices and stores entirely for women is to be built in Wisconsin.

TUNNEY, FIGHTING MARINE, DETHRONES DEMPSEY AS HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION BY DECISIVE VICTORY IN TEN ROUNDS

A Crowd of 132,000 Spectators Witnessed Tunney Smash His Way to the Kingship of Pugilism—Dempsey, Entering the Ring a 4 to 1 Favorite, Was Beaten in Eight of the Ten Rounds—There Were No Knock Downs During the Savage Battle—At the End One of Dempsey's Eyes Was Closed, Blood Was Dripping From a Cut Under His Right Eye and He was Reeling.

(By Alan J. Gould).

RINGSIDE, Sesqui-Centennial Stadium, Philadelphia, Sept. 23—(AP)—Gene Tunney, the fighting marine, is the new heavyweight champion of the world. He dethroned Jack Dempsey, king for the last seven years, tonight by smashing his way to decisive victory in a ten round match that went the limit and furnished one of the greatest upsets in boxing history.

Dempsey, only a shell of his old fighting self, was outboxed and outfought from start to finish, groggy and bleeding in a one-sided battle that was decided in a driving rain before a record crowd of 132,000 spectators.

This great throng, forming a spectacle unprecedented in sports annals, paid close to $2,000,000 to witness a match that fell far from the sensational heights expected of it.

Stunned at first by the amazing slowness, the lethargy and lack of old fighting fire in the champion's attack, the dripping throng cheered on the challenger as he steadily hammered and battered his way to triumph, piling up points that gave him an overwhelming margin and earned him the unanimous decision of the judges.

Tunney, reaching the pinnacle of a fighting career that started when he was a buck private in the ranks of the marines, fought a masterful battle, outgeneralling Dempsey at nearly every turn as well as outpunching the champion with convincing ease. The battling product of the sidewalks of New York's Greenwich Village, at the age of 28, fairly won his laurels and cleanly demonstrated his right to the purple robes of pugilism.

But the handsome, rugged challenger dethroned a man who came to the end of the championship trail with few weapons and less stamina to defend his place at the top.

Dempsey Proclaimed Fit

Dempsey entered the ring a 4 to 1 favorite, backed as heavily as any champion in history. Experts had proclaimed him fit, in spite of his three year lay off, but except for a gallant stand and a few flashes of his old self, he was outclassed.

Dempsey was far from the furious fighter the "tigerman" who smashed his way to sensational victories over Jess Willard, Georges Carpentier and Luis Firpo. Gone was the devastating power, the furious aggressiveness that marked him as one of the most feared men in the ring.

Instead, he seemed in a daze from the start unable at any time to sustain his attack more than a few seconds. Occasionally he connected with long left or right hooks to the head and body, but these no more than jarred the challenger temporarily. Always Tunney came back, punching with rights and lefts from the shoulder, rocking Dempsey's head with short but powerful blows.

It was Tunney's terrific right hand blows to the head, chin and ribs that decided the battle. This blow, delivered like a ram-rod, broke up Dempsey's rushes, opened cuts about his face, and finally, in the last round, closed his left eye completely.

Dempsey a Sorry Sight

Dempsey was a sorry sight in the final round as Tunney, realizing victory and the goal of his fighting career was within grasp, threw caution to the winds and lashed the champion about the ring. Gamely, Dempsey, weaving and bobbing, bored in but he only succeeded in taking a steady stream of punishment.

With one eye closed, blood dripping from a gash under the title-holder's right eye, his mouth was cut and he was reeling, his knees wobbly under the furious shower of Tunney's attack.

Desperately as Tunney tried, however, he cought not bring Dempsey down. The champion, as he had done throughout the fight, absorbed his beating without giving much ground. In a final wild sally, he called his own guns into play, the weapons that had knocked out most of the men he ever faced but this time they weren't loaded.

Ovation for Tunney

The crowd gave Tunney a tumultuous ovation before the judges' decision was announced. There was no doubt as to what it would be. Dozens of the more enthusiastic climbed into the ring and it took a squad of police to clear it so that the announcer could put the formal verdict on vocal record.

Tunney won eight of the ten rounds by so decisive a margin that no doubt was left of his supremacy, the Associated Press score sheet showed. None of the rounds were scored for the champion and in only two, the sixth and seventh, was he conceded better than an even break. In both of these it was more a case of Tunney's cautiousness than Dempsey's own attacking success that affected the scoring.

Tunney Cautious at First

But for his hesitancy to open up and shit all his guns into action, Tunney might have won by a knockout or scored an even more decisive victory. The challenger was cautious at first because he feared Dempsey was holding back, purposely shifting his customary rushing tactics to upset the marine's plan of battle, but as Tunney found a ready mark for his blows, as he discovered himself outpunching Dempsey consistently at the close and long range, he became more aggressive, more confident.

This confidence grew as the battle progressed through the drenching downpour but Tunney was always a bit wary. Now and then, in such rounds as the fourth, sixth and seventh, Dempsey connected with solid smashes to the head, driving in with a flash of his old ferocity. But the spark soon faded from these outbursts.

The champion's downfall, in the disappointment of his showing, was reminiscent of the defeat of James J. Jeffries by Jack Johnson in the first heavyweight battle Tex Rickard ever promoted, in 1910. Dempsey, like Jeffries, went into the ring a big favorite, only to exhibit little championship fighting qualities.

Chiefly because of Dempsey's lethargy and Tunney's intermittent cautiousness, the bout had few thrills, few spectacular moments of the sort that have punctuated most of Dempsey's battles since he dethroned Willard on July 4, 1919.

There were no knockdowns nor the semblance of any except for one or two occasions when the fighters each slipped on the soaked and slippery surface of the ring.

Tunney was in command from the start. Before the bell had ended the first round, with the crowd amazed at Dempsey's slowness, the challenger had begun to se ize his opportunities. As the champion swung wildly, the former marine worked in his left jabs and crossed with solid rights that shook him up.

From then on, with monotonous regularity, Tunney beat off Dempsey's rushes with jolting blows to the head and body. The challenger gave ground more often than Dempsey but it was for strategic purposes, not because he was sustaining much punishment. His right eye was cut on one exchange, in the seventh round and blood flower from the reopening of cuts on his lips, but these did not bother him to any extent. He took Dempsey's stiffest punches without flinching and ducked or blocked most of the others.

Tex Rickard's weather luck finally failed and for the first time since he began promoting boxing's biggest spectacles but the soaked tens of thousands, including many women, refused to leave their seats. Many had come prepared but the big majority took their drenching smiling and stuck to the finish to cheer the advent of a new reign in pugilism.

The downpour started lightly at first, shortly after Dempsey and Tunney entered the ring. During an unusually long delay caused by the taping of their hands, it increased in intensity. By the time the final bell soundcd, the two gladiators were spattered by solid sheets of water. Tunney's gloves, soaked and crimson with Dempsey's blood, literally splashed their way to victory.

THREE GARMENT WORKERS ASSAULTED IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 23.—(AP)—In what was believed to have been an attempt to discourage workers in a non-union garment shop here, three men tonight attacked three of the workers as they walked through Meadow street. One was stabbed in the back and two others were struck over the head with heavy iron bars. The assailants escaped in an automobile.

The three workers were taken to Grace hospital. The three are employed by Henry Rawitz, who opened a plant for the manufacture of women's coats after a strike of garment workers in New York had been called. Six men have been working for him.

Accord Reached on World Court Protocol

Delegates Accepted the American Reservations and Then Adjourned.

GENEVA, Sept. 23—(AP)—A committee report concerning acceptance of American reservations to membership in the World Court today was accepted by a delegate conference after which that body adjourned.

As a result of the adoption of the report, the United States will be invited to participate in the drawing up of a special protocol which will translate the five American reservations into the language of the court and the convenant of the League of Nations. After adjournment the delegates began signing the final act embodying a draft of the protocol which will be forwarded to Washington both in behalf of the conference and the individual states involved.

The protocol was finally agreed upon, after considerable debate, will give the right to the powers in the court to withdraw their approval of American reservations if they see fit at some later date. These denunciations, however, would be operative only for two of the reservations offered by the United States. These are reservation four whereby the statute for the court cannot be amended without the consent of the United States and reservation five whereby the court cannot entertain requests for advisory opinions touching on disputes in which the United States has, or claims an interest, without the consent of that country.

In adjourning the conference President Van Eysinga frankly admitted that he did not know what attitude the United States would take.

"We have built a bridge," he said. "Let us hope that America will cross it. Our constitutional difficulties in drafting this reply certainly have been greater than was dreamed of in the United States when the reservations were formulated. We look to the United States to resume her place in the Pacific settlement of international conflicts."

U. S. ENTRY WILL HAVE TO BE RECONSIDERED BY SENATE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—(AP)—American entry into the World Court will have to be reconsidered by the senate in the judgment of a number of informed officials in the capitol if the members powers adopt the recommendations submitted to them by the Geneva advisory conference on the American reservations.

In the absence of official advices from Geneva any authorized expression of views was lacking but an undercurrent of selling was discernable that the whole question of American participation in the work of the court had been greatly complicated.

Initiative now rests with the powers participating in the Geneva discussion as the report of the conference, as adopted today, is merely of an advisory character. It recommends to the powers a formula of reply to the inquiry of the Washington government as to whether American signatures of the World Court protocol on the basis of the reservation attached by the senate would be satisfactory.

Nicaraguan Rebels Accept Armistice

A Peace Conference to End the Revolution Will be Held Next Week.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Sept. 23—(AP)—Peace negotiations, which have been in progress for some time to end to revolutionary struggle now going in Nicaragua, resulted today in the acceptance by the liberal revolutionists of the terms of an armistice proposed by the de facto government of Chamorro.

The latest government announcement says that two tanks, in the form of converted tractors, were captured yesterday at El Bluff, which has been the scene of desperate fighting for some time. It has been necessary to place Bluefields and the vicinity on short ration. No boats have been able to reach the city for the past month because of the fighting.

On September 12, Lawrence Dennis American charge, received instructions from the state department at Washington that the United States was willing to lend its good offices to assist in the re-establishment of peace and constitutional government in Nicaragua. Negotiations have since been in progress.

Yesterday General Jose Maria Moncada, liberal leader on the east coast of Nicaragua, submitted armistice proposals to the Chamorro government through Rear-Admiral Julian L. Latimer, on the U. S. S. Rochester.

Counter-proposals made by the government were modified at the request of Mr. Dennis to induce acceptance by the liberals of a fifteen-day armistice subject to extension by mutual consent. These proposals dealt with the question of the reinforcement of certain positions now held by the government and the revolutionists.

PONZI "CHARITABLE" IN HIS FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Charles Ponzi's latest scheme met with defeat here today at the hands of Mayor Oscar Holcombe from his cell in the county jail, where he is held pending the outcome of his fight against extradition to Massachusetts where he is wanted as a "common thief". Ponzi offered Mayor Holcombe warranty deeds to property he owns in Florida, which he directed should be sold to aid the victims of the Florida storm.

"This is a very poor time for Ponzi to attempt to gain publicity at the expense of those suffering the ravages of the hurricane," Mayor Holcombe said in refusing the offer of 31 deeds to 62 lots at Columbia, Fla. He said he would give "the scheme" no consideration.

Ponzi is awaiting a hearing on an appeal from an adverse habeas corpus proceeding following the collapse of his financial venture in Boston. He became a Florida real estate operator on his release from a federal sentence for using the mails to defraud. He disappeared from Florida while his real estate activities were under investigation and was later arrested in New Orleans by a Houston sheriff who found him signed as a member of the crew of an Italian ship.

CASWELLS WRITE FRIENDS FROM WEST PALM BEACH

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 23—A letter has been received from Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Caswell who are at West Palm Beach for the season to notify friends here that they weathered the Florida hurricane in safety. In descriptions of conditions existing at West Palm Beach under a date line of September 19th, they write, The cyclone has passed. It is Sunday evening and there have been no electric lights or water service since Friday night. Advance warning was sent that a hurricane was due to hit the town between midnight and 5 a. m. and it came on time. Trees were snapped off and roofs blew about like paper."

The Caswells spent all the time from 4:30 a. m until bed time mopping up water. Their stove being an electric one they could do no cooking but kind neighbors brought them in a hot dinner. Men and women venturing out in the streets wore bathing suits and no one seemed to care particularly whether the fit was good or not. The rain drops stung as they fell. Motor and row boats that had been anchored in Lake Worth were washed up onto front lawns, two or three hundred feet beyond regular high water mark.

JEWETT CITY

BOOZE FINES ARE GETTING THE TOWN OUT OF DEBT

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Sept. 23—If Good Man Bro. Volstead stays on the job long enough the town of Griswold may build a new town hall, court house and up to date police station with upholstered calaboose to match. The town records showed Thursday that during the last year the Griswold town court turned into the town treasury $4,627.

Of this amount the sum received for other than the prosecution of liquor cases, would hardly show the price to be paid for a high class pair of garters. First Selectman Maxcy Seymour has been able during the past year to reduce the town debt, $15,429.48, which is the maximum amount ever retired in a single year. There has been a new boiler put in at the town house and a part of the winter's fuel is in the bins. The amount received in the way of revenue from the Griswold town court might have showed in even larger figures only for the unavoidable drawback, that when the state troopers help out, or take over entirely a constabulary job, then Griswold has to whack up with the state.

SCH. KNOWLTON TELESCOPE SECURED BY I. M. THORNTON

(Special to the Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Sept. 23—About ten years ago, one winter night the schooner Harry Knowlton was run down and sunk, off Weekapaug, by the St. Larchmont. The crew of the sinking vessel were able to bring ashore certain of their most treasured belongings. One man saved his telescope. Irving M. Thornton during a summer visit in Stonington, got track of the glass, and was able to negotiate for the purchase so that today it is his. Before long Mr. Thornton will take the valuable glass to the top of Ross' hill in Lisbon and test out the lenses by attempting to count the small panes of glass in the little window in the rear of the highest part of the Baptist church, north gable. If, when the apparently single window swings into the field of vision, there are six panes to be made out instead of one, Mr. Thornton's glass, is worth treble the seaman's price.

Sunday, or any day of ordinary traffic over the state road, serves to show the value of the traffic staff at the Bishop's crosing detour. Sunday with long lines of automboiles waiting to move, and tailing on at the rate of a machine every thirty seconds, the stress of traffic was handled by the staff system, without confusion and with minimum delay.

Telephone or bell signals, to advance or stop at the ends of the detour, have been proven to be inferior to the staff. Some few years ago the double tracks were taken up on the Thames river railroad bridge at New London. Then the staff system, the same as in use at Bishops today, supplanted dispatching, when locomotives were operated over the single iron.

All the grades at Riverside Grammar school had some observance of Nathan Hale day. The story was told and the governor's proclamation was read, it being printed on heavy linen paper. It is to be framed and permanently displayed in assembly hall. All the other public schools in the town and St. Mary's Parochial school observed the day with talks upon the subject.

A letter from Mrs. William Dealtrey's sister, Mrs. Murdock, from New York, states that she has received word that the Dealtrey family is safe in Miami, Fla.

This (Friday) evening, members of the Congregational church, at a meeting in the vestry will decide whether to call one of two candidates for a pastor or to hear others.

Rena Casavant conducted a trinket booth, Helen Glowacki and Alice Paplenski had charge of a hoop game, Mary Parzych sold candy, Adeline Jaskiewicz assisted by Stanley Parbych was in charge of an auto game, while Roderick Casavant gave scooter rides around the lot. In the evening the boys furnished music for dancing.

Another Jewett City young woman, Miss Edith Butts, has had the thrilling experience of a trip in a aeroplane.

The Voluntown schools hold their annual exhibit of vegetables, canned goods and fancy work this (Friday) evening. It is always an event of interest and is open to the public.

At the meeting of Ruthie Rebekah lodge Tuesday evening, five dollars was voted to the Red Cross for the Florida relief fund. The seventy-fifth anniversary of the Rebekah degree was observed with a formal program and refreshments.

The postponed case against Stephen Foley, for alleged violation of the liquor law, which was to have been tried Thursday morning in the town court, is held up for two weeks. Some important witnesses for the state, necessary if actual sale is to be proven, are not at present available.

The vital statistics for Griswold for August show nine deaths: Albert G. Green, 68, cerbral hemorrhage; David Alan Edmond, seven months, enteritis; Sillian M. Brown, 73, chronic nephritis, chronic myocarchitis; Clark C. Palmer, 91, arterio achlerosis; Almira J. York, 85, chronic myocarchitis; Wilfred Monty, 19, tuberculosis of lungs; Hariet Cole, 62, cerebral hemorrhage; Doris Elizabeth Montague, one month, 13 days, inanition; Helen N. Wartcuk, four months, diarrhea and enteritis. There were five births: John Luka, mother's name Katie Naidilik; Henry Chikan, mother's name Fannie Redmitska; Milton Howell Herbert, mother's name Leoza M. Doyon; Denis Raoul Le Blanc, mother's name Rose St. Jean; Marie Aurore Eva Ramsay, mother's name Clorinthe Couture. Three marriages are recorded: Stanley Osga and Mary Konicki; Henry Van Haverbeke and Louise R. Wood; Charles A. B. Boss and Marguerite Burr Young.

some of the best bread makers in New England began buying Dietz Bread

FOR they recognized in this loaf the same choice of ingredients, the same scrupulous care they had given to their own baking.

They found that this troublesome, time-taking task could be delegated to Dietz without in any way lowering their standards. Dietz Bread was at home with the other well-cooked foods on their tables.

During forty years the high reputation of Dietz Bread has not changed. For no loaf of bread bearing the Dietz name has ever been made of inferior ingredients or with relaxed care.

Every baking has been an attempt to realize the Dietz ideal—perfection in appearance, in nutriment, in texture and in flavor.

Now the new Dietz Bread—Better than ever!

THIS ideal Mr. Walter Dietz had before him in purchasing the Dolly Madison bakery and bringing it under his personal control and management.

For Mr. Dietz believes that the independent, locally owned and personally supervised bakery is best equipped to produce the kind of fine bread which will satisfy New England housewives.

In reorganizing the bakery, Mr. Dietz has had an opportunity to introduce improvements which make Dietz Bread better than ever.

A marvelous new type of oven, for one thing, which marks an epoch in bread baking. It insures more even, perfect baking of the delicious loaves and it makes possible two bakings a day so that Dietz Bread now goes to your grocer fresh from the oven twice each day.

RICHER, crustier, more evenly browned, with a texture fine and firm, yet so soft and fresh it seems to melt in your mouth—that's the new Dietz Bread in its new red and green wrapper with the homey farmhouse and New England maples. DANIELSON

TOWN OF PLAINFIELD FORBIDS KU KLUX PARADE SATURDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 23—There will be no parade of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan in Plainfield Saturday. The town of Plainfield, as a municipal corporation, has sought for and obtained through Judge John R. Booth of the superior court now presiding in Putnam a temporary injunction strictly ordering and enjoining the Klansmen, under penalty, to desist and refrain absolutely from holding or conducting a procession and parading on the highways of the town of Plainfield.

The injunction is the culmination of weeks of fruitless effort upon representatives of the Klan to obtain from the selectmen of Plainfield a permit to hold a parade of robed knights, gathered from all over Connecticut and Rhode Island, Saturday, Sept. 25. The permit was refused because, as the writ sets forth, the parade was to be held along, as part of the route, a concrete trunk line highway, where there is heavy traffic and because such a parade was likely to cause traffic congestion and obstruct the highway; because acts perpetrated by persons in the plaintiff town and neighboring towns in painting K. K. K. frequently in the highways and upon the property of an ecclesiastical corporation (Sacred Heart church property) Wauregan has stirred public feeling against the defendant corporation and because such a parade would tend to incite ill feeling, ill will and resentment upon the part of the remaining populace, using the highways in the usual way and manner and would tend to provoke disturbance and disorder.

The town further sets forth that, although it has officially refused a permit for the parade, defendants named in the papers have threatened that the parade would be held in any event and that the selectmen of the town cannot prevent it.

On these premises the town of Plainfield sought and obtained the temporary injunction and it was indicated today that the state of Connecticut will see that the injunction is obeyed to the very letter. State officers, deputy sheriffs, constables and other officers will be on duty in Plainfield Saturday to see that the order of the court is upheld and that there is no parade, under any circumstances. The full text of the legal notice of the temporary injunction proceedings appears on another page of this paper today.

In connection with the injunction proceedings the state has ordered that Louis A. Bradford of Danielson, Frank Congdon of Plainfield and J. W. Perry of New London be summoned to appear before the superior court of Windham county, on the first Tuesday of November to answer to the town of Plainfield in the allegations set forth in its complaint.

The town of Plainfield asserts in its action that on divers times between August 15, 1926 and the date of the complaint (September 22) that Messrs. Bradford, Congdon and Perry applied to the town of Plainfield through its first selectman, Henry J. Bessette, for permission for the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan of Connecticut, Inc., to hold a parade in Plainfield on Saturday of this week. The town says that the representations of these men were that the parade would be a large and long procession participated in by a large gathering of men. It was only after the alleged threat of the Klansmen to hold the parade, with or without a permit, that the town took action to obtain the temporary injunction. Now the Klan faces the alternative of having any argument it desires over holding the parade with the state of Connecticut and the superior court thereof.

A checkup of the Klan's standing as an organization reveals that it is duly incorporated in this state as The Knights of the Ku Klux Klan of Connecticut, Inc., a corporation without capital stock. As such and under the laws of the state little about it nor the people who constitute it is revealed in the incorporation papers. Having no capital stock all that was required of those who desired to form it was that they appear, as they did, before a notary public, present a list of purposes for which it was desired to form the corporation, and these purposes as set forth are wholly innocent and laudable, and obtain the necessary authorization as a corporation.

The incorporators shown in the records are Daniel E. Rhoads, John W. Perry, John C. Polley. The notary before whom they appeared in seeking incorporation was one Howell Foster. At the time Foster was in Hartford. Now he is in New York. It is understood that he has very recently denied all knowledge as to who Perry, Rhoads or Polley are or anything about them. The office of the secretary of state at Hartford possesses no more official information about them than herein appears.

In view of these facts, the solicitors for the Plainfield parade permit—Bradford, Congdon and Perry—are summoned to appear for the Klan, when a hearing on the temporary injunction is held, on the first Tuesday in November.

In Plainfield the proposed parade is regarded outside of Klan circles as a demonstration to be held on the eve of the town election. Klansmen, talking about the proposed parade in weeks gone by and much has been heard about it, were predicting an assemblage of several thousand knights. In view of one court case that is pending trial over the painting of K. K. K. on highways of Plainfield and the painting of a church property, officials Plainfield long since made up its mind that it did not wish to risk any difficulties likely to result from Klansmen parading within its borders. Hence the successful effort to obtain the temporary injunction.

WIFE AND SEVEN CHILDREN OF DEACON GREENE, 97, ALIVE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 23—Deacon A. C. Greene, a citizen, whom Danielson holds in great respect and esteem, made gala his near-centenarian age, observes his 97th birthday today. Deacon Greene is a native of the town of Plainfield, but when he was a very young child his parents moved from that town to Canterbury, where he lived for many years. At Oxford, N. Y., September 6, 1865, he was married and it is a remarkable fact that Mrs. Greene and all of the seven children born of their union are alive. For 55 years there was not a death in the Green family circle. Early this month Deacon and Mrs. Greene observed the 61st anniversary of their marriage. Their children are Charles of New London; James A., of Fort Wayne, Ind.; Mary Eliza, a teacher in a private school at Brookline, Mass.; William B., Jersey City; Alice Louise, at home and Dr. Edward Greene of the United States army, now stationed at an aviation field in Texas and George M. Greene of Cambridge, Mass.

A heavy shower at the noon hour Thursday and threatening weather during the early afternoon caused numbers of Danielson people to cancel their plans to attend the closing session of the Brooklyn fair.

It was a very orderly crowd at the Brooklyn fair grounds Wednesday. There were no arrests and officers on duty there had little more to do than watch the passing throngs and enjoy the show on their own account.

During the coming month motorists will be able to obtain 1927 registrations for their motor vehicles (boats not for use until after January 1 next year) as keys are to be issued and will

There is to be a reduction in long distance telephone rates by the Southern New England Telephone company effective October 1. The changes will bring reductions in long distance calls.

Grocers and meat men, closing their places of business at noon Thursday continued to enjoy the weekly half holiday arrangement that has been in force since early summer.

Thursday morning the funeral of Frederick L'Homme was held from his home on Water street with a high mass of requiem at St. James' church at 10 o'clock. Rev. Oscar Normand of Moosup was celebrant of the mass. Numbers of relatives and friends were in attendance. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Louis Roberts, Alphonse Tetreault, Arthur Viens, F. X. Maillhot, A. Caron and Cleophas Beauvais. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Louis Brodeur, long a resident of Wauregan, is dead at that place after an illness of several months. Mr. Brodeur was a native of Canada, but had lived in this country for the greater part of his life. He is survived by his wife and several children.

A point of attraction for many from Danielson and vicinity this week has been the Eastern States exposition at Springfield.

Danielson members will be at Putnam this (Friday) evening for a meeting of the Quinebaug Valley Circuit league.

Very few wagers were placed in Danielson on the Dempsey-Tunney match at Philadelphia, though some took odds and backed Tunney.

Motor trucks bearing race horses have been at the Brooklyn fair this week were getting away from the grounds on Thursday. A number of the horses went from Brooklyn to Kingston.

No more, no less . . . but Quaker Oats has the flavor

THE difference in breakfast oats is in their flavor. The price mostly is the same.

Millions demand the Quaker brand because of its toasty, wonderful flavor. For flavor is the important point in food.

Some 50 years were spent perfecting that famous Quaker flavor. Once you taste it, you are spoiled for ordinary oats.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats. And that makes laxatives less often needed. Protein, carbohydrates and vitamines and "bulk" are thus combined to make Quaker Oats an excellently balanced ration.

WETHERBEE DENIES GUILT ON THE STAND THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 23. — Raymond Wetherbee of North Grosvenordale, indicted for murder in the first degree, took the witness stand at four o'clock this afternoon in the most sensational as well as the most interesting court case that has ever been tried in the county and entered a complete and sweeping denial of his guilt.

He admitted that he had had intercourse with Agnes Pytko, but denied any knowledge of her condition—that she was to become a mother, that he was present at the birth of her child or that he was in any way concerned with its death.

For the five preceding days of the trial and for all of today, except for an hour before adjournment, he has not uttered a word while court was in session. He made a decidedly favorable impression by his testimony. Although his face is impassive, his eyes are keen and alert. His evidence was given in a pleasing voice, his language was well chosen, and his entire bearing was in excellent taste.

Interest in the hearing remains unabated, rather increases. Hundreds were turned away today by officers stationed in the corridor leading to the court room. Only one rule has been observed in excluding people who desire to hear the proceedings. In addition to the court officials, the jurors and the newspaper men, there are about 50 witnesses. This leaves seats for 175 or 200 spectators and until these seats are filled, all who apply for admission are permitted to enter. They are no other restrictions.

Today, as during the other days of the hearing, between one-third and one-fourth of the spectators were women, but there were not so many young girls present as on the other days.

The examination of Dr. Lewis I. Mason of Willimantic, medical expert for the state, took the greater part of the session. He left the stand at four minutes of four o'clock and State's Attorney Bradford, after a few minutes' consultation with his associate, W. A. King, said "the state rests."

The defense immediately called Raymond Wetherbee. He was sworn by Miss Bradford, assistant clerk of courts, gave his name as Raymond A. Wetherbee, his age as 24, his birthday being in May, and his home in North Grosvenordale.

His examination was conducted by Irving H. Miron. After the preliminary questions, the examination continued as follows:

Question — Where do you live, Mr. Wetherbee?.

Answer—Up to about July 4th, I lived with my parents and brothers and sisters at North Grosvenordale; since then I have been an inmate of the county jail at Brooklyn.

Q. How many brothers have you? A. Four, all of whom live at North Grosvenordale, except Walter. Q. Are you married? A. No. I am single. Q. You are employed where? A. In the cloth room of the Grosvenordale Company, at North Grosvenordale. I have worked there since last November. Q. You know Agnes Pytko, and for how long? A. I have known her close to two years. Q. Have you been with her on different occasions? A. Yes. Q. Have you had sexual intercourse with her? A. I have. Q. How many times? A. Several. Q. Where did she live previously to going to Wilsonville? A. In Webster. Q. Did you know her in Webster? A. Yes. Q. Called on her and took her out while she was there? A. Yes. Q. You have a car? A. Yes. Q. Did you take her out driving while she lived there? A. Yes. Q. Have you been out with her when other people were in the party? A. I have. Q. How often were you out with her since she had lived in Wilsonville? I have been out with her twice. Q. How often have you been at her home in Wilsonville? A. Twice. Q. When were you arrested? A. Thursday afternoon, July 1. Q. On what charge? A. On the charge of fornication. Q. Who arrested you? A. Officer Streaman of the state police. Q. What did he do with you? A. Took me to the police station at Putnam. Q. Did he make any statement to you at the time of the arrest? A. After telling him my name, he said that Agnes Pytko was in a serious condition at the hospital in Putnam, that she had given birth to a child and that she blamed me for her condition. Q. Did he ask you if you had had intercourse with her? A. He did and I told him that I had.

What follows is the substance of Wetherbee's testimony, all given in recent answers to the questions of his attorney:

"I signed a statement that he presented. (This statement was read during Officer Streaman's examination.) On Tuesday, June 29, I worked all day at the mill in the same room in which Agnes Pytko worked. We quit work at 12:30 and I went to my home for dinner in my brother Walter's car, with my other brothers. Walter always took his dinner at our house.

"We came back to the mill at about 20 minutes to one. My three brothers were with me. We left Stephen at a store and the rest of us drove on to the mill.

"I then started my overalls and started to work and kept at it until 6 o'clock. I worked and supped and then drove down to town where I talked with several people. Then went home alone. I had a bath and went to my room. My brother, Stephen sleeps with me, but he did not come in until a half hour later. I did not leave the back of house that night and got up at 6:30 in the morning when my mother called me. I breakfast was an hour later than usual, as she had lost sleep by being up with a sick baby for two or three nights.

"I worked all day Wednesday and on Thursday I was arrested first and released on, that evening, on bail. On Saturday I was again arrested, charged with being concerned in the death of Miss Pytko's baby. I did not sing the little song that she says that I did. I did not know at any time of her pregnancy and I did not know of her giving birth to a child until told by the officer. I drink a little, but do not get drunk and never called on her when I was intoxicated. I did not go to her home on the night of June 29th, did not accompany her to the river bank, was not with her when she gave birth to a child and was in no way connected with the death of it."

It is believed that the defense will call many witnesses who will verify most of the statements made by the accused.

The greater part of the day's session was given over to Dr. Mason. Attorneys on both sides were practically agreed that all the testimony would be in by tomorrow evening, but arguments will not be made until Tuesday next.

GETTING OUT THE VOTE

Get out the vote is a slogan which has accomplished many a political campaign. It is one of the important requirements and none appreciates its value or its difficulties like those engaged in directing a campaign.

But the concerted efforts in that direction are commendable having good results. The movement has developed a National Get-Out-the-Vote club, the president of which Simon Michalet of Washington, declares that the percentage of actual votes to the voting population shows an increase rather than a decrease. He finds that during the 40 years ending with 1920, the percentage of ballots cast to the voting population dropped from 80 per cent in 1880 to approximately 50 per cent in 1920" but with the gain of nearly 2,500,000 votes in the last presidential election that percentage is moved upward with all sections of the country, except the south, showing 60 per cent or better.

That same increase in the number of votes are disclosed in Connecticut as the result of the election in 1924. Then there were 483,700 registered voters in the state and of that number 403,162 went to the polls or 83 1-3 per cent. There was the benefit of the presidential election but the increase in votes over the previous state election, when the percentage was 74 1-3 was noteworthy.

Getting out the vote should be a much easier problem than it is. Personal responsibility should bet in its work but there was no complaint that gould be raised in the towns of Marlborough, Andover and Warren in this state two years ago when all but 7, 9 and 11 voters in the respective towns cast their ballots. In the respective counties not one fell below 50 per cent while in Litchfield county 56 2-3 per cent of the vote was gotten out.

When there is a large vote there is an interested electorate and that interest is largely due to organization work. The accomplishment in this state is highly creditable to both the party workers and the voters and it should not be allowed to slump.

MUST THE POLE GO?

Driving motor vehicles at excessive speed without regard for conditions to be encountered has been the cause of many untimely deaths. It is bound to continue to be wherever there is unwarranted chance taking, a recklessness that is warranted neither by time nor emergencies.

While a Detroit young man, a student at Princeton, was returning to his home in the early morning, after taking home three companions who had attended a dinner dance, he hit a street light pole. The car was traveling at the rate of 60 miles an hour, according to the report and death was instantaneous. It was another of those needless but distressing deaths which accentuate the folly of such driving and the penalty which is too often attached to such speeding. Going so fast that he could not control his car at a corner there was no escape.

As far as the driving is concerned the case is not so different than that which occurred some months ago near Branford where the driver of a car containing four persons who had been to a roadhouse crashed into a tree when because of the speed, it was impossible for the driver to negotiate a corner. Deaths were of course the result.

Those who figured in both of these accidents will not have a chance to turn up the roads any more. They have made as big a sacrifice as they could because of their recklessness. [illegible] is an example in each instance which should stand out as a guide to others.

It is to be expected that there will be some sort of an investigation of the Detroit fatality. There was a prolonged inquiry concerning the Branford accident and deaths and there was even some consideration given to the possible need of highway improvement at that point. The suggestion was made that the tree might be removed so that it others persisted in using that road in driving along that road they could of course pass into the other direction but there could be no tree to interfere. Is it possible that it will be decided in Detroit that the pole must go?

ROADS AND LOADS

Every state has its highway problems. Some of them are common, others are peculiar to the particular state. When it comes to the construction of permanent roads all states sooner or later are obliged to give consideration to the character of the construction if the heavily loaded truck as well as the light pleasure car is going to be provided for.

In the state of Illinois a law has been urged in a resolution adopted by the Illinois Federation of Labor which would prohibit the use on city streets of trucks carrying loads over eight tons, the claim being made that trucks carrying ten tons or more are destroying city pavements and working serious injury to buildings by vibration.

It is unquestionably true that roads which were adequate for handling the highway traffic before the motor trucks were developed have undergone complete changes. Even permanent pavements have been found insufficient to stand the weight and wear and tear of the heavily loaded trucks. It has been a case of tear out the old and replace with new and heavier construction. Likewise when new construction has been planned provision has had to be made for the greater loads that are imposed upon the improved highways of the present day. And what is true of the roads is likewise true of the bridges. These have have had to be strengthened, involving in most instances reconstruction, in order to meet requirements. Whether new buildings are erected with a view to meeting the vibration is not known, but certainly there is little that can be done to the buildings which have stood for years but which are being badly jarred by the trucks, especially where there happen to be depressions.

States have applied restrictions on trucks when in the spring of the year it was found that the heavy loads were breaking up the surfaces. Apparently there are many in Illinois who believe that there is a limit to loads and expenditures for highways.

A CENATOR DISCREDITED

When a United States senator returns from France and makes statements concerning conditions over there one would suppose that he was basing his statements upon his actual knowledge, what he had seen and what was really so. If we are to judge by what Senator Caraway of Arkansas said and the denials that have followed such is not always the case, at least with the Arkansas senator.

He stirred up considerable resentment in this country when on arriving from Europe he told of the way in which the graves of American soldiers in France were disfigured and insulting sentences written on the crosses marking the graves. It was supposed that he knew what he was talking about and had seen the disfigurements. When called to account such doesn't appear to be the case.

France naturally resented such statements and the senator was obliged to admit that he never visited the war cemeteries and did not see what he was complaining about. He claimed that he was simply quoting Senator Reed of Pennsylvania and used statements which he made to the senate.

But there again he is disputed for Senator Reed declares that he never said anything in the senate about the soldiers' graves in France, but as a matter of fact he had visited the war cemeteries and to his knowledge the crosses were not disfigured and the cemeteries were well kept.

Senator Caraway hasn't brought much credit to himself for the manner in which he has attempted to throw mud and the more he has tried to get out of the unpleasant situation the deeper he has sunk in the mire. It is a discreditable position in which he stands and needlessly created.

MEXICAN BANDITS

Probably there will always be a difference of opinion as to the method that should have been followed in trying to free Jacob Rosenthal from the clutches of the Mexican bandits. From a distance it seems that had the money been turned over as demanded the man would have been released. Then it would have been possible for the authorities to have pursued the bandits and penalized them under the law. Instead of doing this the efforts were devoted to recovering the kidnapped man without the use of money.

It is realized of course that other releases have been obtained through the payment of ransoms, but the reluctance of the authorities to have it believed that they favored such action, to the extent of later being charged with convincing with the bandits can also be appreciated.

The Mexican bandits present a problem that must cause no little concern to that country. The desirability of giving protection to human life rather than taking a chance of having the threat of death carried out is of course deserving of serious consideration. Naturally Mr. Rosenthal alive was demanded as a ransom. The Mexican authorities were quite as anxious as anyone to get him alive from the hands of the bandits but it was a case where the judgment as to what should be done failed to accomplish, what was expected. But those who have dealt with highwaymen in this country as well as Mexico understand the uncertainties involved. Certainly Mexico shows no mercy for the bandits once they are captured, and they deserve none.

TEMPTING FATE

"I've been to a party and I've had such a good time!" explained the smiling lady as she rounded a corner and caught up with the woman who lived across the hall from her.

"I hate to hear you say it!" declared the lady who lived across the hall, shaking her head pessimistically. "Whenever I am out and have an especially pleasant afternoon, things always blow up at home precisely as though they were on opposite sides of the drug-store scales—one up and the other down, you know! The minute I begin to be happily foolish it seems to raise a scandal among the fates and they hastily drop a few bricks on my head to teach me that life is real and earnest.

"Take last Thursday, for instance—I went lunching downtown with some old school friends and took in a show and sat through it twice and had hysterics over a funny movie fan near us and ate candy and everything. When I started for home—late, of course—I felt perfectly gay and inconsequential, just as though I was 16 again and supposed to be light-headed. I had rehearsed a screamingly funning account of my day to enliven the dinner table and gloss over the fact that the meal would be late.

"Expecting Bill and Billee to be hanging out of the front windows anxiously watching and yearning for me, I dashed in and rang the bell. Nothing happened but dead silence. I rang again. At last the door opened casually and Bill stood before me, lathered up to his eartips. 'Where have you been?' he inquired severely.

"Though somewhat dashed I still had a hangover of my giddiness remaining. 'Oh!' I told him frivolously 'I airplaned to New York for lunch and have been playing bridge at Atlantic City all afternoon——'

"'It may interest you to know,' went on Bill in that annoying triumphant manner people use when they want to break bad news to you in such a way as to convince you it is all your own fault, 'that Billee is home ill, very ill! When I got in I found him all alone in a deserted house and I put him to bed and did everything possible expecting you to appear at least two hours ago! He has a temperature of 102! The butcher left the steak out on the back step and the Ranking' dog ate it up. The dog left the charge slip of 98 cents, which of course helps a lot. Somebody forgot the plug in the washbowl where that faucet drips and the water had run all over the bathroom floor, too. When I tried to find the medical thermometer, being naturally worried, and all alone here with all the responsibility and everything, I knocked over the iodine bottle and I guess those cutwork towels on the rack are all sort of splashed up. Your mother has telephoned three times since I got home and was perfectly certain you had been run over down—'

"But by this time I had fled on into Billee's room. The nearly six feet of him was stretched out in bed, compresses upon his head. The temperature of the room stood at 90 at the least and so while I opened the window with one hand I removed about four or five of my best guestroom blankets with the other—the first thing a distracted man does, you know, when unexpected sickness is upon him, is to pile on all the bedding in the house and turn on the heat. There was no denying that his head was red hot. However, I was not as scared as I might have been. I sat down beside him and managed to get the attention of one of his eyes.

"'Er—just what did you have for lunch today, Billee?' I asked casually as one man to another. My son considered and, as he did so, his face contracted distastefully. 'Why,' he told me in suffering tones, 'the fellows all went over to Mike's place this noon and we had some fried hamburger sandwiches with lots of mustard and hot chocolate and meringue butter-scotch pie and a bag of popcorn and some dill pickles. I've got an awful pain right here and I feel queer and I don't believe I want any dinner except maybe later on I could eat——'

"I replaced the cold compresses and joined the anxious father, who was pacing the living room with pale face. 'Isn't he awfully sick?' he wanted to know. 'I've phoned the doctor——'

"'Then you can unphone him,' I snapped, mopping my brow, for I had not taken time to remove my wraps. 'Our child registers a 102 and no doubt it will be 104 presently because he might just as well have parked some cats and dogs or lighted matches and kerosene in his tummy as what he did put in this noon! After I introduce him to the castor oil bottle I'll cook you some eggs and maybe there's some lettuce, but I don't feel very hopeful about it—and if you dare fuss I shall have hysterics.' Oh, it was a ghastly evening."

"Well, the more I think of it," said the hitherto smiling lady who was looking quite sad by this time, "I don't believe I had such an awfully good time after all."—Chicago News.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D.

Invigorate the Mind

When we realize how few books the men of antiquity had we understand that they were obliged to read not many things but much. Homer probably had no books at all. Socrates had very few and even Cicero, the accomplished scholar, few in comparison with a modern library. He never read Dante or Milton or Shakespeare.

The habit of communing with great thoughts gives health and vigor to the mind. Men who habitually read the classics have a breadth of view and a toughness of mental fibre which cannot be obtained by those whose highest inspiration is derived from the newspaper and the last novel. Reading the best books gives an elevation of thought which raises above the level of common things, ennobles and makes fine the ordinary daily occupations, dignifies life and makes it worth living. The woman who keeps her Bible open while she is sewing and refreshes herself with the Psalms or Gospels is deriving mental as well as spiritual nourishment; without such inspiration her labor would fade into the light of common day.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Miles Lampson, whose appointment as British ambassador to China is announced from London, is comparatively a young man to be honored with the selection for the Peking post, which is regarded as one of the most important in the diplomatic service. He has had wide experience in British diplomacy, however, and has the further advantage of a personal acquaintance with affairs in the Far East. Mr. Lampson was born 46 years ago and was educated at Eton. Soon after completing his studies he entered upon his career as a clerk in the foreign office. In 1906 he accompanied the British mission sent to Japan, headed by Prince Arthur of Connaught, to confer the Order of the Garter upon the Japanese emperor. In 1908 he returned to Tokio and remained there two years as an attache of the British embassy. Mr. Lampson later became head of the far eastern section of the British foreign office.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Backus Hospital Laboratory.

Mr. Editor: I object to the statement of Miss Carley as to two physicians being the instigators and promotors of the laboratory at the W. W. Backus hospital. The subject of a new laboratory had been under discussion by the hospital staff and encouraged and assisted in every way possible by every member of the staff; also by the superintendent of the hospital, and the executive board. Miss Carley's connection with the hospital began only after the laboratory was an accomplished fact and any such loose statement as that attributed to her in her remarks at the meeting of the Rotarians on Wednesday, the 22nd, is entirely unfounded by the facts.

YOUR HEALTH

DO YOU KNOW HOW TO WALK

By Jesse F. Williams, M. D. New York City
Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

It is rather frequently noted that civilization is on wheels. Moreover, the effort to rid man of the need for transporting himself by "shank's mare" has been extended to all phases of modern life so that now, quite generally, physical work of all kind is replaced by mechanical means.

There are times, however, when man relies upon his own mechanisms. Recently, on Fifth avenue, a parade of business and professional men revealed an unusual number of men who did not know how to walk. The corpulent body with thin legs, the weak-back type, the tense and wasteful, out-of-step model were illustrative of civilization on wheels. Riding in an automobile one may conceal one's physical limitations, but join a parade that leads from 23rd to 59th streets and one's abject failure to become adjusted to modern life is exhibited.

There are numerous instances where man is failing to adjust to modern conditions. He tries to supplement his neglect of essentials by short cuts and side issues in the form of breathing exercises, such as Coueism, physical culture frauds, and other get-rich-quick methods.

He discards these one by one, as they reveal their inherent worthlessness. Occasionally he finds a true diagnosis and pays attention to fundamentals.

For many generations at least man will be required to walk some, to do some sitting each day, to life objects of medium weight, and to climb stairs. To perform these physical acts sufficiently requires frequently more than knowledge of their proper execution.

It may demand change in habit of dress, increase in physical strength, freedom from worry and apprehensions, rather careful dietary regimen—any or all of these or others, may be needed.

These four acts, walking, sitting, lifting and climbing stairs, have certain technics. Notice your brothers and sisters in parades, in street cars, in stores and offices, in the subway and elevated entrances and exits.

Have you noticed how the stenographer stands to open the window, apparently totally unaware of the first principles involved in the efficient application of power? Watch the denizens of the world of business standing or sitting in the subways, street cars, or waiting on the platform for the 7.18.

Are the lines on faces, and the wild hunted look in eyes due entirely to economic strain? Not entirely! The expert will tell you that improper weight placement, unusual joint strains, weak musculatures, give their contributions to these signs of maladjustment.

One may learn how to use the body and keep the human mechanism in such condition that the ordinary physical acts of life may be performed readily, easily and efficiently. Or one may degenerate.

Stories That Recall Others

His Understanding

A certain Sunday school teacher exhausted every means within her power to give the children an understanding of the pillar of cloud and fire that guided the children of Israel. In one instance, however, her labor was in vain. A small boy electrified the family when arriving home by giving the astounding information that a caterpillar went before the people and showed them where to go.

Ancestors

There was a gathering of self styled patriots and their conversation turned to ancestors and their accomplishments. One man wished to impress the others of the group with the importance of his great grandfolk and selected his great grandfather as his idol.

His opportunity came. "My great grandfather," he said, with emphasis on the 'm' "was part of the garrison in Fort ..... In the fort they had a pet dog, and as the men grew hungrier and hungrier it was decided the dog should be eaten. So the dog was led out behind the barracks and shot. And my great grandfather (more emphasis on the 'my') ate a part of the pet dog."

Little Talks on Thrift

ROAD TO INDEPENDANCE

There is no royal road to independence. There is a roadway, sometimes not easy to travel, however, that leads directly to that goal.

That roadway is thrift.

Here are a few figures that show what may be expected along that road:

Save $90 a month during 25 years of your life at 6 per cent compounded semi-annually and you will have $61,975.

Five dollars a week for 15 years at 6 1-2 per cent compounded semi-annually will give you $3,506.

What better plan could be carried out for the education of one's children.

Even $1 deposited weekly for ten years will amount to $635.32 at 4 per cent compound interest. Start at the age of 20 and save $33.14 per month with interest compounded it 4 per cent semi-annually and at 65 one's accumulations will be $50,090.

Let us suppose you are a young man 25 years old and that your earnings are sufficient to make it possible to save $25 a month. You go along on this basis, saving systematically for a period of five years, when your earning capacity makes possible the regular saving of $50 a month.

At 35 you increase your savings to $100 a month. When 40 you find yourself able to save $150 a month and at 45 you still further increase your monthly savings to $200.

By following this plan you will at the age of 50 have $54,946.61, providing your savings have been compounded semi-annually at 6 per cent.—American Society for thrift.

Women's cloaks and suits, valued at $100,000 were slashed with knives and burned with acid by a group of 25 men who bound a watchman of the Carter-et Cloak company, at Carteret, N. J., and spent the greater part of the night at their work of destruction.

Gas in the Stomach is Dangerous

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

ANOTHER CHANCE

If we could live our lives again,
How different would things be?
We've made a lot of sad mistakes,
As now we plainly see.
If we could have another chance,
Should we be always wise,
And so behave that every one
Would view us with surprise?

Should we take more heed what we said,
And say a great deal less?
Should we dispute the Boss's views,
Or safely acquiesce?
Should we spend hours of precious time
In futile argument
Or just agree with all our friends,
To their bewilderment?

Perhaps some foolish things we've done
We should not do again;
Perhaps we always should amaze
Our wondering fellow-men;
But if we had another chance
To play life's little game,
The chances are we'd make mistakes
And blunder just the same.

GREENSTEIN AUTO WAS RECOVERED IN HARTFORD

Attorney J. Greenstein is again in possession of his Hudson coach which was stolen from him a week ago Sunday after it had been standing parked on Gillette treet for four days. Residents of the street finally complained to have the car removed and it was then learned by the police that it was the machine stolen from the Norwich man when he left it parked in Temple street four days before.

Two overcoats that had been in the machine were missing when it was recovered. Fresh worn spots on the upholstery where it looked as if a box had rubbed against certain parts, Mr. Greenstein believes that the car may have been used by bootleggers to deliver a load of liquor somewhere and then driven back into a side street in Hartford.

The machine was not damaged and did not appear to have been driven any great distance.

NORWICH PEOPLE NARROWLY ESCAPED DEATH IN FLORIDA HURRICANE

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Fillmore, Jr., of this city, were among those who narrowly escaped death in the terrific hurricane that virtually laid Miami, Fla., in ruins several days ago. In a letter to Mr. and Mrs. James M. Fillmore of 23 Spring street, Mrs. Fillmore describes her experience as follows:

"I cannot start to explain how we are all here and safe, without even a scratch. We were flooded right out of our house. When we saw the water coming in we put on our bathing suits, gathered all our money and valuables we could, and started to escape. In less than 15 minutes the water was up to our knees. When we stepped off the porch it was up to our waists and in places nearly to our shoulders. I thought that Jim and Leo would have to swim with us. We got shelter in a house on the corner. The roof of our house was coming off and it was raining something terrible. I have never been so near death in my life and you don't know what a feeling it is to think that you may never see dear ones again.

"There is not a wire working in the city. Jim went to work this morning and goodness knows when he will be home. The telephone office is closed and matial law has been declared. No one is allowed in the city after six o'clock. The house we lived in is a wreck and I don't believe we can ever use the furniture again."

Mr. and Mrs. Fillmore are among the thousands that escaped death when the disastrous wind storm laid waste the beautiful city of Miami. They have been located in the southern city for some months, Mr. Fillmore being employed by the telephone company in that city. They are planning to return north within a short time, as Mr. Fillmore expects to locate in Willimantic this fall.

OPENING OF STYLE DAYS BRINGS OUT THE SHOPPERS

Although the weather was not particularly favorable, there was good interest manifested in the first of the three Fall opening days of the Norwich stores Thursday.

Many out of town as well as local residents had evidently checked up the list of over 100 merchants participating in the special bargain day movement, for shoppers knew just what they wanted and just where to find it.

As is usual, there was special keenness in the stores which deal in fall apparel and all day long visitors went the rounds, getting points on the autumnal styles.

Both in millinery and garments they were informed that the leading colors this season are jungle green—the tint once called bottle green—and Chanel red, which is almost a Burgundy. At the same time black holds its own in millinery and garments, also blue and brown are strong in coats.

Hats are mostly small, or medium, although there are some very attractive large shapes displayed. Velour, felts and metallic cloth are all good, while there is a novelty in appliqued effects in angora which is considered very dressy.

It is noticeable that the use of fancy pins and the like has been revived and rhinestones and similar ornaments are greatly favored.

The coats shown are fur-trimmed, fox being featured, also beaver, and squirrel, natural and dyed. Plaid coats in sport models show up well. A striking Channel red coat seen Thursday with imitation 'possum collar and muff cuffs was a good type of the coat which sells at from $35 up.

In the two remaining Style Days the stores have much to offer in smart millinery and garments, as indicated by The Bulletin's advertising columns today.

Connecticut College

Connecticut College at New London formally entered its eleventh year at chapel Thursday morning when President Benjamin T. Marshall welcomed the entire student body. There are now a total number and form 534 students enrolled on "the College on the Hill." These students come from almost every state in the Union. Connecticut still leading and New York coming second in the number of girls. There are one hundred and fifty two girls in the entering class. These freshmen have been here for the past week getting acquainted with each other and their surroundings before the Upperclassmen arrived. This precedent was introduced at Connecticut college in order to make the first few weeks of the incoming members free from the strain which academic appointments make.

Thursday morning at chapel President Marshall addressed the college on the importance and significance of higher education. He especially stressed the dignity of higher education. His statement of it in his words: "Noble activity in modern life." President Marshall said that higher education was all in the direction of the suppression of self. Then beautiful theory interests in debatable intervals. It is at college that one gets some philosophy—the idea of life as a whole. He asked the student body to help maintain the college as it has been and to help make it grow clear upon and more "a college of distinction." Doctor David D. Lech, director of admissions then addressed the assembled students.

BRIAN BELL GIVES HIS IMPRESSIONS OF BOUT FROM THE RINGSIDE

(Brian Bell)

Ringside, Sesqui-Centennial Stadium, PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Looking up out of the darkness about a brightly lighted ringside here tonight, 132,000 persons, who had paid nearly $2,000,000 to participate in the breaking of a half a dozen records, saw a world's boxing title decided.

From New Orleans to Kalamazoo, from Brisbane to Paris, the fans gathered to fill a stadium which has no equal in the United States. The sesquicentennial furnished the battle and sport loving nation did the rest. Records were broken before the gates were opened; when a paid attendance surpassing anything before known in words sports history was insured by the advance sale of tickets.

In waves, the unprecedented mass came until after darkness when the great enclosure seemed finally filled to the last nook and cranny. Gigantic lights illuminated the ring and lesser lights furnished a background for the great crowd. Between the preliminary bouts, the back lights were turned on to flash in relief closely packed thousands, all looking to the magnet of attraction—a ring in which a world's championship was decided for the first time in three years.

With the magnitude of the crowd, more than 135,000 of the assembly having paid in advance to participate in the festival of sport, was also noted variety in abundance. The eternal feminine was in evidence, the entrance of half a dozen well known women screen stars bringing people in the vicinity of their seats to their feet. The speaking stage also was well represented in the group about the arena.

Every walk of life claimed a place in the picture. Newsboy rubbed elbows with bankers and world figures in international politics begged matches from common or garden variety of worshippers of pugs.

A martial air was added by officers of the army, navy and Gene Tunney's own marine corps. Officers of high rank were on hand early but the rank and file came later, greater in number and enthusiasm. The fighting men out of the ring were here to cheer the men in the squared circle. It was their night to howl and howl they did.

The crowd was not uproarious in the early stages of the evening's entertainment. The enthusiasm grew as the night wore on and when the world's champion and the challenger entered the ring, the top was ready to blow off. It did.

The roar of the multitude was like the combined yell of a week's attendance at a major league ball game. In the final swirl of enthusiasm there was no lessening of sentiment for the challenger among his thousands of well wishers but lengthening of the odds to 4 to 1 on the chances of the champion indicated that the real wealthy bettors were not listening to their hearts beats. Little discussion of wagers was heard in the stadium, growing more and more crowded each minute.

Tunney's sensational airplane flight from Shawnee-on-Delaware caught the fancy of the crowd and supplied an unexpected preliminary thrill.

The machine entry threw terror into the heart of Tex Rickard when it took to the air to reach Philadelphia. The promoter made no secret of his wish that one-half of his championship fighting crew had landed until the title was decided before he took the second lesson in aviation.

Tunney touched off the concern his daring dash caused those most interested in the financial end of the bout, taking refuge in the trite, but expressive idea that "all's well that ends well."

The calm characterizing the challenger in the closing days of his training did not desert him as he attempted and completed a forward pass to start off. Stepping into the plane, Tunney asked "Casey" Jones if he rated a parachute. When told that he did not, but had the assurance of the airplane driver that they would go down together, Tunney laughed and said:

"That's enough assurance for me."

Arriving in Philadelphia for the formal weighing-in ceremony and physical examination by the medical representative of the Pennsylvania Athletic commission, Tunney's heart was found normal. No extra pulse beats had been added by the novel conveyance chosen for the last lap. This bore out the conviction of those who estimate the contender for his nerve in plenty, but no nerves.

Tunney's weight proved a surprise when he scaled 185 1-2 pounds at 2 o'clock; this was expected to see him in the ring at approximately 186 to 187 pounds. Claiming from the first of his training period that he knew better than anyone else his condition and what he needed to perfect it, Tunney set his weight for 186 pounds at bout time.

Jack Dempsey, although his crown was still on perfectly straight, was pushed out of the early spotlight by his rival. Dempsey, weighing 190 pounds at 2 o'clock, also surprised the wise ones by his weight, being under the figure expected.

Dempsey, however, had no airplane and could not make a dramatic entrance. He contended himself with the slower but safer train and had the Philadelphia welcome for his arrival not long before time for him to enter the ring.

The failure of the expected sell-out to materialize (some 2,000 seats being left at box office) had the spectators "out" on their feet. Many were overstocked with the higher priced bits of pasteboard and were forced to take a loss. Some tickets with a retail value of $27.50 were reported sold on the auction block at the stadium gates for as low as $15.

Before the first of the preliminary bouts claimed the attention of the multitude, the musical program passed through a gradual change. Starting with "Mammy," songs, a transition followed and finally the program was completely overtaken by a sentimental rugs. It was all the same to the crowd.

As the first taste of boxing was given the crowd a constant reaction was presented. Thousands were interested and applauded as the massive Monte Munn opened the evenings program by streiching Hughie Clements on the canvas in the first round. Others sat stolidly and refused to become excited over anything less than the big show.

The preliminaries found most of the customers before the counter, waiting to be shown.

With the rank and file of boxing fans were some who came for the big parade of the crowd. These looked over the stadium with hardly a glance at the ring where two negro pugilists had followed the caucasian gladiators under the spotlight.

Mayors of two cities had front row seats. W. Freeland Kendrick municipal head of the host city Philadelphia, was close enough to get an estimate from Rickard as to the probable amount to enrich the coffers of the sesquicentennial as a result of the bout. Jimmy Walker, mayor of New York the city which passed when the championship pot was opened was close to the ring.

John Ringling, who would welcome a small percentage of the crowd under the big top of the circus, found the first bouts interesting as a relish for the big event to follow. James W. Wadsworth, United States senator from New York, was another with an unobstructed view of the ring.

PERSSON KNOCKS OUT ADAMS IN SEMI-FINAL

RINGSIDE, Sesqui-Centennial Stadium, Philadelphia, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Harry Persson, the heavyweight champion of Sweden, scored a technical knockout victory over Sergeant Jack Adams of St. Louis in the fourth round of a six round match, semi-final to the Dempsey-Tunney title match tonight. The referee stopped the bout after Adams had absorbed a terrific battering. He was knocked down for a count of eight in the second round, of five in the third, and collapsed on the floor against the ropes from the force of a right hander to the chin when the battle was halted. The sergeant was a sorry sight, bleeding profusely from cuts about the nose, eyes and mouth. Perssons weighed 203, Adams 196 1-2.

The fight was the feature of five preliminary six round matches.

Munn Kayoes Clements

Monte Munn, sensational heavyweight, scored a one-round knockout tonight over Hughie Clements, of Gloucester, N. J., in the first preliminary.

Munn, touted by many critics as a potential champion, added Clements to his string of victories in such order that the great crowd hardly knew what had happened.

A succession of battering hooks to the head weakened Clements and he dropped to the floor for the final count from a right clip to the chin, delivered at close range.

He was counted out after being in the ring only two minutes and fifty-two seconds.

Munn, a former football lineman and ex-Nebraska legislator, outclassed his opponent from the tpa of the gong. He had advantages in every respect, weighing 210 1-2 pounds to 189 1-2 for Clements.

Godfrey Gets Verdict

Capitalizing ad advantage of nearly 43 pounds in weight, George Godfrey, Philadelphia negro, carried off the judges' decision over "Fighting Bob" Lawson, Alabama negro, in a six-round clawing match.

Godfrey towered over his opponent, but Lawson was game and gave his big rival a lively battle on the few occasions when they stood up to trade wallops. Otherwise, it was a wrestling and mauling exhibition.

Godfrey weighed 223 and Lawson 180 1-2

Loughran Beats Delaney

In a slashing six-rounder between riva isparing mates of the title bout participants, Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia light heavyweight, who helped train Dempsey, won the judges' decision from Jimmy Delaney, of St. Paul, a training partner of Tunney.

De Mave Wins in Third

Jack De Mave, the "fighting fool" of Hoboken, N. J., conceded more than 35 pounds in weight andadministered a knockout to Joe Stoessel, former New York amateur, in the third round of another six-round match.

DEMPSEY SAYS HE HAS NO ALIBIS TO OFFER

RINGSIDE, Sesqui-Centennial Stadium, Philadelphia, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Gene Tunney's smile, laid aside for a thinlippe dlook of determination during his victorious fight, returned as he left the ring, mobbed by a wildly enthusiastic group of friends and handlers.

"I am naturally gratified," was the first comment of the studious ex-marine. "I knew soon after the start that I was the champion's master. I fought a carefully planned battle and it succeeded to the fondest of my expectation. Dempsey was game. He gave me trouble but I was never doubtful of the outcome."

Dempsey declared:

"It's the old story. The best man won. I have no alibis. Give all the credit to Gene. He's a great champion."

The champion badly battered as he was, rushed from his corner after the announcement of the decision and embraced Tunney in the middle of the ring.

DEMPSEY BREAKS DOWN AND CRIES AFTER FIGHT

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey broke down and cried like a baby when he reached the seclusion of his hotel and was alone in the room with Jerry, the Greek, his faithful little trainer and Mike Trant, his companion. He was tremendously affected by his defeat but bravely held up while making the trip from stadium to the hotel.

Dempsey, his left eye closed shut, and his right eye cut, was a pathetic figure. After burying his face in his hands for a few seconds he quickly regained his composure and stretched himself on the bed for a soothing rub down at the hands of Jerry. Then Dempsey went to bed happy in knowing that his wife would be with him tomorrow.

Dempsey wants another fight with his conquerpr. When he rushed to the center of the ring to greet Tunney, he asked him for another chance. Dempsey's handlers said that Tunney had agreed.

The defeated champion knew he was licked as early as the eighth round. He did not want to wait for the verdict of the two judges to be announced before rushing over to greet Tunney, and his handlers had difficulty in keeping him in his seat, until the new champion had been acclaimed.

Dempsey praised Tunney declaring that he won honestly. "I couldn't seem to get going," Dempsey said, "but I have no complaint to offer. I knew I was going to get licked some time, and I am glad I lost the championship to an American. I defeated all the foreigners they could send over. I think I have given the public a run for its money every time I started. I licked Firpo, I licked Carpentier. If I had to lose I am glad that a fellow like Tunney won the championship. He is a credit to the sport, a clean, fine fellow."

Tunney in Good Shape

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Gene Tunney, new heavyweight king, was in almost perfect shape after his battle with Jack Dempsey tonight. He bore practically no marks to indicate that he had been in a contest that brought him the world's championship. His bruised lip, which he received in training, was slightly discolored, but otherwise he declared he was not hurt.

Jabs and Jolts

RINGSIDE, Sesqui-Centennial Stadium, Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 23.—(AP)—Crowding into the gigantic sesqui arena tonight was as bad as running an old time gauntlet or pasing through the customs line at a port of entry. Sixteen policemen, six ushers, two firemen and one official bouncer scrutinized the early titleholders and their pasteboards.

Eleven batteries of incandescent lights, the most powerful group ever turned on an arena, blazed upon the swirling vista of humanity. Over the ring, 37 cone-shaped lamps glared down upon the scene of combat.

Jack McAuliffe, old undefeated lightweight champion, who once defended his title in a 75-round fight—London prize ring rules—for a small side bet and before a gallery of 500, was a member of the $1,750,000 crowd. "Some people," said Jack, "were born lucky. The rest of us were born right after the Civil war."

Battling Nelson, who almost twenty years ago fought Joe Gans for Tex Rickard in the premier promoter's first big pugilistic venture at Goldfield, Nevada, sat mouth agape, for five minutes, awed by the spectacle.

John C. Kennedy, claiming to be 90 years of age, and a native of San Francisco, drove his own flivver to the battle ground and bought a $5.50 ticket for $10, from a speculator. He scorned the offer of a set of binoculars, declaring his eyes as good as any other youngster.

Jack Skelly, who used to evade the law and fight on a barge anchored in the middle of the Hudson river, echoed McAuliffe's observation.

Clustered about the ring, some three hundred correspondents filing the news of the spectacle to all parts of the world, worked as feverishly as their allotment of 16-inches of space a person would admit. A complicated network of 92 wires carried close to 1,000,000 words, with the blow-by-blow descriptive going to Australia, South America and all of the big European countries.

"Diger" MacPherson, a six footer from the "out-back" country of Australia who aspires to be a heavyweight fighter, spent three years savings to see the battle.

FOUR METROPOLITAN PLAYERS REACH SEMI-FINALS IN PROFESSIONAL GOLF

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Sept. 23.—(AP)—The thin links battle-line of the south and midwest broke under whirlwind finishes today, and a quartet of metropolitan players, including Walter Hagen, stepped through the gaps into the semi-final round of the Professional Golf association championship.

Until mid-afternoon every favorite in the hunt appeared threatened by dogged, determined pursuit, with Harry Hampton of Memphis, Tenn., and Abe Espinosa of Chicago, carrying on in the face of almost unbeatable golf. But in the end they yielded to stroking which slashed the difficult par of Salisbury to shreds and, swept Johnny Farrell, Leo Diegel and Johnny Golden along with Hagen to the most impressive victories of the event.

Mixture of phenomenal putting and fortune breaks saved Farrell in a desperately fought match with Hampton, three and one, while Espinosa forced Diegel to go to the top of his game for a three and two victory.

The two other duels of the third round ended in routs, however. Hagen pulled away from Pat Doyle of White Plains, N. Y., to win at six and five after battling for twenty-three holes on even terms and at the same time Golden, playing just behind the champion, followed suit with another crushing finish to topple George Christ, of Rochester, N. Y., 7 and 6.

Starting under a drizzle this morning Hagen immediately encountered difficulty holding the greens on his approaches. He was repeatedly short in his pitching, while his first putts time after time failed to roll within easy sinking distance. The damp grass, on the other hand, failed to affect the game of the White Plains man; who closed with two shots almost the length of the green on the seventeenth and eighteenth to cut the champion's margin to a single hole.

Doyle finally drew even on the fourth hole of the afternoon round when Hagen crashed his second full into a bunker. That short brought Hagen out of his slump. He came back with a rush to take the next hole with a birdie two, and from then on he fairly galloped to victory, playing the last nine holes of the match in four under even fours.

Par golf was not good enough, to win for the stout-hearted Hampton. He was unable to finish the first eighteen-hole round this morning on even terms with the hard-hitting Farrell, who suffered his first lapse into rugged golf this week when he lost three out of four holes to the southern professional on the in-coming nine. But after the lunch hour, the Quaker Ridge club player burned up the course with a withering fire of birdies which included three putts of more than twenty feet.

A fortunate break gave Farrell his triumph on the thirty-fifth. There his pitch appeared to be sailing over the green, when it struck the pole and dropped almost into the cup. He then holed out an easy birdie four to Hampton's well-played five. Farrell needed only a par four on the home hole to give him an afternoon round of sixty-nine.

Sound and safe iron play brought Diegel his triumph over Espinosa, who might have turned the tables with a little luck on the greens. He kept the former Canadian open champion within easy reach until the incoming journey of the second round, when Leo finally spurted away to qualify for a semi-final duel with Golden tomorrow.

The latter, a veteran from Patterson, N. J., continued the same brand of consistently good golf which in earlier matches prevailed over Harry Cooper and Gene Sarazen. He played both rounds today in better than par, while Christ was off at the fairway to make a battle of it after the morning brush.

REDS AND PHILLIES BATTLE TO TIE SCORE

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The battling Cincinnati Reds, hanging desperately on the tail of the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals, today forced the Phillies to go fifteen innings, before darkness finally decided the contest, neither a victor with the score 6-6.

Carlson was invincible in the pinches and showed no signs of weakening under the Ohioans' attack, although the game went well over two hours Donohue also held the Phillies scoreless after the eighth inning when they took the lead by a two run rally, only to lose it in the same inning by the tying Cincinnati score.

It was a nip and tuck game through out. Hal Carlson was in a couple of tight places in the overtime innings but bore down at critical times.

Dressen made four of the Reds fifteen hits. Walker had three. Sothern and Pipp hit home runs. Score:

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The World Champion Pirates fell victims to Boston's late season drive today, the Braves defeating Pittsburgh 2 to 1. Singles by J. FIRST HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE WON BY DECISION

RINGSIDE, Sesqui-Centennial Stadium, Philadelphia, Sept. 23.—(AP)—The heavyweight title passed tonight from Jack Dempsey to Gene Tunney on a judges' decision for the first time in nearly four decades of glove fighting.

Every previous champion, from the days of John L. Sullivan's reign, has passed from the throne via a knockout. Down through an illustrious line—Sullivan, Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, Burns, Johnson and Willard—the count often has been tolled to effect every shift of the sceptor.

Dempsey's downfall ended a seven year reign that shared the distinction of being the longest on record. Johnson was the only other titleholder to rule for as long a period.

GREENWICH VILLAGE CELEBRATES VICTORY

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Abington square, a part of Greenwich Village and the home of Gene Tunney, new heavyweight champion of the world, tonight was celebrating the victory of a favorite son.

Crowds thronged the streets armed with bells, horns and other noise making instruments as soon as news of the victory over Jack Dempsey reached them. Some invaded neighboring churches and soon church bells added their peals to the clamor.

Bonfires were lighted in the center of the square.

LARGEST CROWD EVER, HEARS DEMPSEY-TUNNEY FIGHT

The largest crowd that ever heard the returns of a sporting event given out by the Norwich Morning Bulletin was in front of the Bulletin building last night when Gene Tunney wrested the heavyweight crowd from the brow of Jack Dempsey where it has rested for the past seven years. The crowd received the fight round by round direct from the ringside at the arena at the Sesqui-centennial by the Associated Press. The wire which ran from the ringside looped together practically every newspaper of any size in America, and ran from Bangor, Me., to San Francisco, Calif.

The crowd that gathered in front of the Bulletin building last night was distinctly of a Tunney flavor. There were a few Dempsey supporters but they were in the minority. Announcements favoring Tunney were greeted with a roar while those that gave Dempsey an edge were applauded less loudly. The crowd gathered shortly after seven o'clock and continued to swell until it was estimated that nearly 2,000 persons were packed in the street within hearing distance of the megaphone.

Sergeant Mathew Delaney and Officers Patrick Shahan and Alfred Patterson held the crowd well in hand and directed traffic. When it was seen that the crowd was assuming large proportions, Sergeant Delaney had traffic through Franklin street diverted at Willow and Bath streets. The Bulletin thanks the police for their co-operation.

YALE CANCELS ITS HOCKEY SCHEDULE FOR THE SEASON

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 23.—(AP)—Yale has cancelled the thirty intercollegiate hockey contests on the 1926-27 schedule. It was announced tonight by the Yale Athletic association. This action was made necessary when it was learned that the new hockey arena, now being constructed here, would not be completed this fall.

NEW ORLEANS TAKES FIRST OF DIXIE SERIES

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 23.—(AP)—New Orleans went on a batting rampage against Dallas in the "lucky seventh" of the first game of the Dixie series herd today, scoring five runs and enough to win five to one. New Orleans won the title in the Southern association and Dallas is the Texas league pennant winner.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Queer Singer

That which is harsh to you or me
To love may sweet and tender be.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

Danny Meadow Mouse was sorry for Jumper the Bittern. Of course, he was delighted to find out who it was that made those noises that sounded like driving stake and pumping water in an old-fashioned wooden pump. But just the same he was sorry for Pumper the Bittern. You see, Pumper went through such a performance while he was making those noises that it looked as if he must be most uncomfortable. He seemed to work so hard to get those sounds out that when he had finished he looked sick and tired. So Danny was sorry for him.

"What does he do it for?" asked Danny of Peep the Least Sandpiper.

"He does it because he is in love," chuckled Peep. "He does it because he's in love and he thinks he's singing."

"Watch out. He's got a long bill, and a sharp one"

"Not really!" cried Danny.

"Yes, really," replied Peep.

"Doesn't he know he isn't singing?" inquired Danny.

"Just what is singing?" asked Peep in his turn.

Danny thought over all the different kinds of singing he had heard and then he decided that that wasn't a good question to answer. "I suppose," said Danny, "that he likes the sound of his own voice."

"Some one else likes it, too," replied Peep.

"Who?" demanded Danny. "Who under the sun can like such a noise as that?"

"Mrs. Bittern," replied Peep promptly. "That is his way of singing to her."

"Singing!" cried Danny. "Singing! Ha, ha, ha, do you call that singing?"

"It doesn't matter what I call it. It is what Mrs. Bittern calls it, and I guess if you should ask her she would tell you that it is the finest singing in the world," replied Peep. "Love is the only real judge of singing."

"I'm going over to get acquainted with that fellow," said Danny.

"Watch out!" warned Peep. "Watch out! He's got a long bill and a sharp one; and he's got a long neck."

"He doesn't look it," declared Danny. "I mean, he doesn't look as if he has a long neck. I wonder what you call a long neck, anyway."

"If you get too near that fellow you may find out," replied Peep. "Yes, sir, you may find out. If you do, don't say I didn't warn you."

Danny moved around to where he could get a good view of Pumper. Pumper caught a glimpse of him and straightened out his neck, which he had had folded back between his shoulders. Danny saw then that he did have a long neck. He had a long neck and fairly long legs, and he looked to be just about the size of Black-crown the Night Heron. He was of a general brownish color, quite light in places and darker in other places. His legs and feet were greenish-yellow. Danny had once seen one of Black-crown's children, who was dressed all in brown and Pumper reminded him of this young Night Heron. But when Danny got a good look at that long, sharp bill, he decided that the advice of Peep was good. So Danny was very polite. He remained at a respectful distance, and in his funny, squeaky little voice, he said: "I hope you are feeling very fine today, Mr. Bittern."

WAR TO THE FINISH.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

War!

War, with a big W!

War, relentless and merciless!

War without ceasing, and aimed at the extinction of the human race!

War with an enemy even less open to considerations of humanity or appeals to pity than "tameless tigers hungering for blood!"

——That's what we are facing, according to Dr. L. O. Howard, chief of the federal bureau of entomology, who ought to know what he's talking about and who apparently does know.

It's not a war between nations; not even one between differing human races; but a war to the death between men and insects which he is discussing.

"Pooh!" I hear some of you saying: "Who's scared of a few bugs?"

The answer to that question is very simple and prompt. Those who are scared by the bugs are those who happen to know the most about them. It has often been said that fools rush in where wise men fear to tread. That is because, having eyes they see not and having ears they hear not the warnings which keener observers find clear and imperative.

"A few bugs," forsooth! There are said to be about a thousand million people, men, women and children, on the earth. How many times ten million potato-bugs do you suppose invade the fields of this country alone, every season?

"A few bugs." eh? And every once in a while a horde of locusts or grasshoppers sweeps across some African plain or some Kansas prairie, billions upon billions strong, utterly ignoring the futile efforts of men to stay their course, and leaving a bare desert behind them.

"A few bugs?" Did you never read how astonished travellers in Africa or South America have been halted in their journeys by the armies of embattled ants marching in absolutely countless hordes across country, with skirmishers flung out on either side and ready to pick clean the bones of anything from mouse to man which got in their way?

No-o, you will have to drop that adjective "few," as applied to insects. As a matter of fact, they are certainly ten times, possibly a 100 times more numerous than men.

"But they are so little and weak," you say. Well, weakness is a comparative term. Men are stronger than mice, for example, but they are impotently weak in comparison with some of the forces which surround them. Why, all the strength of all the human race, put forth at one effort, wouldn't avail to alter by so much as a hair's breadth the rise of the tide on an ocean shore, or even the course of such a local flurry in the air as we call a thunder-storm. We're weak in comparison with the attraction of gravitation. And the bugs are weak, individually, as compared with us. But I've heard of the grasshoppers stopping a railroad train, by the simple tactics of letting themselves be crushed beneath the wheels till the rails became so slippery the drivers wouldn't "bite". To be sure, this cost some millions of 'hoppers. But what of that? The loss was more than made up by a new hatch in 24 or 48 hours.

The loss of a million men in battle would plunge the whole world into mourning. But the loss of ten million grasshoppers or army ants doesn't make the other 'hoppers and ants even blink. What do they care? There is no evidence that they are capable of affection or sorrow. And they can renew all losses in a few hours or days, at the outside.

From time immemorial, large areas of the tropics have been made and kept humanly uninhabitable by the accepted supremacy of the yellow-fever bearing mosquito. It is only within a generation that his dominion has been questioned in a few restricted limits. While he has been checked, it is by no means certain that he has been finally overcome, even in these narrow bounds.

There are extensive districts of Africa into which no ox, dog or horse can venture with impunity to dispute the rule of the tsetse fly, whose bite is fatal to all three.

The very existence of the farmer depends upon his ceaseless warfare against destructive insects. The western wheat farmer can have his entire crop hopelessly ruined in a single day by one of the periodic incursions of grasshoppers. The eastern potato-grower can lose his hope of any potatoes to sell if he doesn't poison off the countless hordes of beetles which attack the vines every season as regularly and remorselessly as fate. The forest owners of the northeast have had to sit back in futile helplessness during the last ten years and see the chestnut trees of their woods killed before their eyes by the bark blight, which is simply a freak of bacteria life. The farmer who tries to raise cabbages or corn or peppers must fight cut-worms; he must make constant war on the striped beetles, the vine-borers and the fetid "stink-bugs" on his squashes, melons, cucumbers or pumpkins; he must expect to lose a certain proportion of his tomatoes to crawling wire-worms or snails.

And so on and so on, ad infinitum, ad nauseam. There is hardly a crop he can plant which he must not fight for, as soon as it begins to show any life of its own.

"Insects in this country," says Dr. Howard, "continually nullify the labor of 1,000,000 men." And he goes on: "If human beings are to continue to exist, they must first gain the mastery over insects."

One of the mysteries of history is found in the end of former civilizations, now completely wiped out of existence concerning which end no certain information exists. A considerable number of scientists believe that these dead and buried civilizations were destroyed by insect invasions.

One of the most striking examples is that of Angkor in southeastern Asia. In what is now an almost impenetrable jungle were found, a generation ago, deserted cities of vast size and ambitious architecture, many of their palaces and temples still intact, almost as perfect as when first built. There is absolutely no evidence of the destruction which would have been caused by war and sack, no trace of fire, no least little record of how the end came. Bas reliefs on the walls picture the magnificence of the kings who once reigned there, and carvings of endless ranks of soldiery tell of their fighting power. One Chinese traveller, whose diaries have been preserved in China, seems to have visited the country in its hey-day, and his description corroborates the mute testimony of the carvings.

Yet this vast and powerful empire was actually wiped out of existence so that its very memory had ceased to be known for hundreds of years. It was not by war nor by earthquake nor by flood nor by cyclone, for all such agencies would have left indelible traces. The only apparent explanations lie in assuming a pestilence of elsewhere unheard of intensity and completeness, or an insect invasion which brought famine in its train. Both are possible, yet many adhere to the belief that the latter was the more probable cause.

Right in our own continent we have a somewhat similar puzzle. At one time the lower parts of Mexico and neighboring Central America were sown thick with stone built cities, connected by superb highways, all of whose ruins, now in process of discovery, show a desertion for which there is no present explanation attainable. They were not overthrown by earthquake, they were not buried by volcanic eruptions, they were not swept away by flood, they show no evidences of destruction by warlike conquerors. Yet they were deserted while still habitable. For what reason? Again we are thrown back to the guess that either pestilence or insect invasion was responsible.

Says The New Orleans Time-Picayune, commenting on the general question:

"Dr Howard's statement is at least partially substantiated by our own national history. The wars which man wages against man are less costly both in life and in treasure than are the wars constantly waged by insects against man. That latter conflict never ends, and the scientists who devise new weapons for human defense, notwithstanding their vitally important discoveries, have not yet overcome the odds against humanity. Man still wages a defensive battle against the insect hosts that constantly carry their fight to him."

The worst of it is that there can never be a peace arrived at between insects and humans. There is no approach from either to the other. No communication is possible. There is no common ground. They are not consciously hostile to us: they are simply engaged in taking their living. Whether, that taking starves out the human race is absolutely no concern of theirs. It is simply an incident by the way. They are neither angry nor revengeful nor wantonly destructive. They feel neither pity nor remorse. They just go the way they were made to go, paying no heed and incapable of giving thought to the effects of their devastations. They are as impersonal as earthquakes and tornadoes.

And just about as hard to prevent or control.

The New Orleans editor is right in saying that, despite all our assumption of greater knowledge and higher power, we are still waging what is only a "defensive fight" against our insect raiders. Nor can we ever win that war till we are able to change our defense into attack.

In which line I wonder if one can find a ray of hope in Prof. Esten's taking over the bacterial hordes and making them work as allies? There is some doubt whether, bacteria are "bugs" or not. But most of them, wild and untamed, are admittedly pests. If Esten can master and manipulate them so as to make them build up and feed the crops we want to raise, why may not some future scientist devise a way to steer the blind activities of our insect foes into helpfulness?

As things are, we men are on the run and the bugs are chasing us,—have been since men and bugs began to be. All we try to do is to defend ourselves against them. That can last forever. Our only real hope lies in somebody finding a way to utilize their tremendous vigor and uncountable numbers as allies and servants.

Who will attempt that task?

THE FARMER.

During the past summer, the campaign for Red Cross swimmers and life savers has been exceptionally successful. Robert E. Loomis, a qualified examiner in Red Cross life saving, conducted the classes during the summer months.

Lacking a swimming pool, the Red Cross was forced to use a swimming hole in the upper Pawcatuck river and the beach at Weekapaug but the reports submitted by Mr. Loomis show that lack of a swimming pool did not hamper the instruction work.

The report follows: Eighty swimming classes held, eight all-day classes in life-saving, eight one-hour classes in life-saving, twenty-four candidates for the grade of junior life saver passed, one hundred and twenty taught to swim 50 yards or more, fifty taught to swim a few strokes, seventy-five was the average attendance at the swimming classes (boys 30, girls 45).

The Red Cross Life Saving Corps includes three types of life saver; the junior grade which boys and girls up to the age of 18 may hold, the senior grade for adults requiring a high degree of efficiency in life saving, and the Red Cross examiner, which is the highest.

AWARDS IN DOG SHOW ANNOUNCED ON CLOSING DAY OF BROOKLYN FAIR

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 23.—Not many went to Brooklyn today, the closing day of the fair. While the attendance on the last day is never heavy, it was even more limited this year, because a heavy shower came at noon, when no more than 200 or 300 people were on the grounds, and threatening weather later promised a wet afternoon.

However, those who do enjoy the fair on the closing day better than on the big day, because there is no such great crush of people, had an enjoyable time in inspecting exhibits to their hearts content. The displays were intact and the judgment of the experts who passed upon them there for all to see.

It may be mentioned that, among the granges, Canterbury won first premium for its display, while second went to Brooklyn and third to Scotland grange.

To Frederick C. Littleworth of Brooklyn, as superintendent of the exhibition hall, goes much of the credit for the excellence of this year's arrangement and classification of exhibits. His policy of grouping won many compliments, made it easier to see any particular set of exhibits than it has been in the past and to compare one entry in any given group with another.

Judging of the vegetables this year was by Prof. Stevens of the Connecticut Agricultural college, while W. H. Darrow of the same institution passed, as a fruit specialist, on the fruit entries and Miss Edith Mason of the home economics department of the college made the awards in the woman's department. All of these lent their aid in making the grange exhibits awards.

In commenting on the displays in the exhibition building Mr. Littleworth expressed his particular pleasure with the display of flowers, the entries judged by John R. Davies. The dahlias and gladioli collections were particularly beautiful.

As to vegetables, associations and market gardeners made a particular impressive showing. Mr. Littleworth complimented the junior displays of vegetables made by young people of the county towns, particularly because they had done so well in an adverse growing season.

Secretary Marshall J. Frink of the fair association had the right to beam as he did with pleasure over this year's exhibition. He has put a great deal of time, thought and effort over many weeks to the end that Brooklyn fair might be the great success it proved this year. Mr. Frink had one regret—that all of the vaudeville acts scheduled for Wednesday did not put in an appearance until Thursday morning. This was due to the inability of some of the performers to make train connections that would bring them to Brooklyn in time for Wednesday's fair. While this was something beyond Mr. Frink's ability to control, he said Thursday that he felt it was his duty to the public to have the matter explained, for the Brooklyn fair never advertises what it does not intend to have.

Signs of Worms are: Constipation, deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, offensive breath, hard and full stomach with pains, pale face, eyes heavy, short dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red points on the tongue, starting during sleep with troublesome dreams, slow fever.

EX-STATE POLICEMAN'S VILE LETTER GETS HIM INTO COURT AT NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 23—William J. Kirschner, of Waterford, former state police officer, was presented before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran this afternoon charged with using the mails for obscene purposes. Probable cause was found and Kirschner was held for trial in the United States District court. He furnished a surety on his bond of $500.

Kirschner is accused in the complaint of having written a spicy letter to a young woman residing near Hartford, so vulgar were the contents of the missive that the receiver of the letter turned it over to United States District Attorney George Cohen. After that official had read the letter he issued a warrant for Kirschner's arrest and gave it to United States Marshal Jacob Waters to serve. Kirschner was arrested a day or two later at his home and since then has been at liberty on bail.

Kirschner was not a member of the state police for a long time. He trained at the Groton barracks and upon qualifying was sent to barracks about the state. He finally had charges of misconduct made against him and was discharged.

TRAVELING SALESMAN FINED—PARKED CAR IN THE STREET

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 23.—Edmund Wilhelm, a traveling salesman, had a scheme to avoid garage rent for the care of his car, but it failed to operate as he supposed it would, when he left his machine in Union street during a period of fifty-nine hours. When the car was served in the highway during a couple of days the tag that attaches to traffic ordinance violators went upon the machine and Wilhelm appeared in court this morning. He divulged that he was not accustomed to paying garage hire and didn't propose to begin in New London if he could avoid it. He said he inquired at a hotel as to whether he would be allowed to park his car at the curbing and received the information that such a privilege was accorded people. Wilhelm didn't say he proposed to allow his car to stand on the curbing a couple of days else the hotel clerk would have advised him that he would find garage hire cheaper than [illegible] fines.

Wilhelm was fined $5 [illegible] was advised that he was [illegible] to cheat a scale.

Perry of the Town and City of New London, County of New London and State of Connecticut, Frank Congdon of the Town of Plainfield, County of Windham and State of Connecticut, Louis A. Bradford of the Town of Killingly, in said Windham County, The Knights of the Ku Klux Klan of Connecticut, Incorporated, a corporation without capital stock organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Connecticut and located in the Town and City of Hartford, County of Hartford and State of Connecticut, the officers, members and definite location of which corporation are to the plaintiff unknown, and the officers, members, agents, associates and employes of the above named corporation without capital stock, to appear before the Superior Court to be held within and for the County of Windham on the First Tuesday of November, A. D. 1926, then and there to answer unto the Town of Plainfield, a municipal corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Connecticut and located in said Windham County, in a civil action wherein the plaintiff complains and says

First: The plaintiff is a municipal corporation and as such is charged with the duty of protecting its citizens and others within its borders, maintaining the public peace and keeping the highways within its borders free of obstructions and open for the travel of the public, without the [illegible]

Second: On divers times between August 1, 1926, and the day of this complaint, the defendants, J. W. Perry, Frank Congdon and Louis A. Bradford, aspired to the plaintiff through a first [illegible] Daily Journal, [illegible] the [illegible] of the members of the defendants, The Knights of the Ku Klux Klan of Connecticut, Incorporated, to conduct a procession and parade during the afternoon of September 25, 1926, in the Village of Plainfield, upon the highways leading from the Junction House, so-called, to and through the Canterbury Road, to and through Railroad Avenue, across the tracks of the New London Northern Railroad, to and through Babcock Avenue, to the cement road leading from Plainfield Street to Norwich at the Episcopal Church, thence southerly on said cement road indefinitely, without the consent of the selectmen; (2) holding a procession and parading upon any highways of the Town of Plainfield, without the consent of the selectmen.

Third: Said streets and highways in said Village of the plaintiff town, are traveled to a large and great extent, and [illegible] traffic upon them at all hours during the day and evening, and on Saturday afternoons.

Fourth: On or about the 25th day of September, 1926, at [illegible] o'clock in the forenoon, the said defendants, Perry, Congdon and Bradford, started to march in said parade, and [illegible] that they represented the said The Knights of the Ku Klux Klan of Connecticut, Incorporated.

Sixth: The defendants, Perry, Congdon and Bradford, have stated that the said proposed parade would be a large and [illegible] participated in by a large gathering of men.

Seventh: The plaintiff refused permission for said parade because such a demonstration would inconvenience and [illegible] the [illegible] travel upon said highways, would obstruct said highways and constitute a public nuisance.

Eighth: Because of acts perpetrated by persons in the plaintiff town and [illegible] signs by painting K K K [illegible] upon the highways and upon the property of an [illegible] corporation public feeling is stirred up against the defendants operations; and such a parade and procession as permission was asked for, as set forth in Second, would tend to incite ill feeling, ill will and [illegible] upon the part of remaining [illegible] using the highways in the usual way and manner, and would tend to provoke disturbance and disorder.

Ninth: Although the plaintiff refused permission for said parade as set forth in Seventh, the defendants, Congdon and Bradford, have stated and threatened that said parade will be held in any event and that the selectmen of the plaintiff town cannot prevent it.

Tenth: If said parade is held as threatened, the plaintiff will suffer irreparable injury.

Eleventh: The plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law.

The plaintiff claims:

An injunction restraining the defendants, the [illegible] associates and all persons acting in connection with the aforesaid defendants, or any of them, or in their behalf, whether or not specifically named defendants in the above writ of summons or complaint, from (1) holding a procession and parading in the highways of the Town of Plainfield which lead from the Junction House, so-called, to and through the Canterbury Road, to and through Railroad Avenue, across the tracks of the Providence and Worcester and New London Railroad, to and through Babcock Avenue to the cement road leading from Plainfield Street to Norwich at the Episcopal Church, thence southerly on said cement road indefinitely, without the consent of the selectmen; (2) holding a procession and parading upon any highways of the Town of Plainfield, without the consent of the selectmen.

STOCK PRICES RECOVER

NEW YORK, Sept. 23—(AP)—Stock prices made irregular recovery from an early period of unsettlement today when the call money rate was lowered from 5 1-2 to 5 per cent. Wall street which has been greatly concerned over the credit situation, construed cheaper call money as an indication that no change would be made today in the rediscount rate of the New York Federal Reserve bank and the surmise was correct as directors of the bank met after the close of the market and decided to maintain the 4 per cent rate for at least another week.

Chief speculative interest of the day, however, centered in the cotton market which broke $6.50 a bale to the lowest price in years on publication of a government estimate of nearly 16,000,000 bales. Other commodities showed little change, wheat and rubber advancing slightly.

Chesapeake and Ohio common stock was the outstanding individual feature in the stock market, soaring 9 points to a record high for all time at 178, as against a low of 112 earlier in the year.

Buying of this issue was predicted on the belief that future inducements would be offered to minority stockholders in order to win their approval of the revised "Nickel Plate" merger plan. "Nickel Plate" common soared nearly 7 points to a new record top at 204 1-2 and Pere Marquette advanced 3 points to 112, also a new top. Erie common advanced fractionally and the two preferred issues moved up about a point each.

Little progress was made by recent industrial favorites. U. S. Steel common closed fractionally higher at 145 5-8 but General Motors and Allied Chemical lost ground. Pools were again active in a number of specialties, with some of the best gains being recorded by such stocks as Advance Rumely, Baldwin, By-Products Coke, Chrysler, Consolidated Cigar, Consolidated Gas, General Asphalt, Lambert Co., Shubert Theatres, Sterling Products, and Texas Gulf Sulphur Revival of activity and strength in Safety Cable was based on report of a substantial increase in the new business of the company.

Union Oil of California was marked up to 58 3-8 on unconfirmed merger rumors and then broke to 54 5-8 for a small fractional loss of the day. Weakness cropped out in the American Woolen issues, Hayes Wheel, Manhattan Electrical Supply and a few minor specialties.

Outside of the Van Sweringen group, little interest developed in the rails although the publication of additional August earnings statements by class 1 carriers furnished cumulative evidence of current prosperity.

Call money renewed at 5 1-2 per cent but was lowered to 5 in the early afternoon when funds reached the market in large volume. In the "outside market" the rate was reported as low as 4 1-2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady.

Except for a further decline in silver which carried the Chinese exchanges to the lowest level in years, there was little interest manifested in the foreign exchanges. Demand sterling held steady around $4.85 and French francs yielded slightly to around 2.77 cents. Italian lire broke 5 points to 3.66 cents but other changes were nominal.

SCHOOL BUILDINGS HAVE BEEN EXTENSIVELY REPAIRED IN SUMMER

During the summer vacation it is customary for the town school board to make such repairs as seem necessary for the upkeep of the buildings and the comfort and convenience of the teachers and pupils. Below is a partial list of the work done at the several buildings this year.

Bishop school—The new flag pole was painted two coats. Wire cages were put on all lights in the two basement recreation rooms. All the hollow tile that was exposed in the basement has been plastered, all desks and chairs revarnished and the lawn reseeded and rolled.

Boswell avenue school—Owing to the change of grade the front of this school lot is greatly improved by a new stone wall with wide comfortable steps. In the center the steps are 12 feet wide with a seven inch rise. A two pipe dividing rail up the center and the same kind of rail along the top of the wall makes it safe for the children. All windows of the building have been gone over, 36 broken lights of glass have been replaced, new floors laid in the hallway, new sash cords placed in many of the windows, a new electric light installed in front, the halls, third grade room, toilet, boiler room and all desks and chairs were refinished.

Broad street school—The teachers room was re-decorated, the roof repaired, the drinking fountains and boys' toilets were repaired, a new electrical gong was installed, a new rose arbor built, the flag pole was painted two coats and a new rope attached to the pole. All desks and chairs were refinished. The boilers at this school have not been satisfactory for some time. They have been taken down and re-built. Several blasts were needed to remove rocks to make adequate depth for ash pits, three new sections were put in each boiler with other new parts, including grates, two chimneys were rebuilt from the roof, a cement floor was laid in the boiler room, 85 feet of picket fence was built, and the old fence repaired. A new tar walk was laid along one side of the building and all the woodwork on the outside of the building was painted two coats.

Broadway school—The wooden fence was repaired, the wall rebuilt and pointed on Chestnut street with rail fences on top, 48 lights of glass were put in and almost as many window cords were installed. Nearly all the windows needed repairs and had to be gone over. The desks, toilets and the chairs were repaired and all the desks and chairs were revarnished. The flag pole was also painted.

Falls school—Two new cellar way doors were installed, 16 lights of glass placed in windows, seats, desks and chairs were revarnished and a number of desks repaired.

East Great Plain school—All desks, seats and chairs were re-finished and 4 lights of glass set.

Laurel Hill school—All outside work received two coats of paint, 20 lights of glass were put in, the flag pole was painted and a new rope attached. The desks, seats and chairs were renovated with a coat of varnish.

Elizabeth street school—A new concrete walk from the school building to Benjamin street was put in, all the wood work on the outside of the building had two coats of paint, and the front doors were varnished, 20 lights of glass were replaced, the ventilators on the roof were painted as was the iron fence. The ashes accumulating during the winter were put on walks and driveway where needed. A new drinking fountain was installed by the boiler room door in the playground, so the children when thirsty at play need not go into the building for water.

Greeneville school—The tar walk at the Prospect street building was relaid and the tar walk in front of the Central avenue building was also relaid. A cement walk from Central avenue to Prospect street was laid, the plastering in the school mended, the retaining wall was repaired and six lights of glass were replaced. Broken window cords were replaced, the flag pole was painted, all desks, seats and chairs were varnished in both schools, new desks and a blackboard were put in the auditorium to take care of the crowded conditions. The electric wiring has all been installed according to requirements in the halls and class rooms.

Hobart avenue school—Leaks in the roof were repaired, all desks, seats and chairs were varnished and 6 new lights of glass set.

High street school—A lot of the plastering had to be repaired in the toilets and halls. The front doors were repaired and painted, 60 lights of glass put in, and other repairs made to the windows, a new outside door was placed in the basement, and all the windows examined and repaired.

Mt. Pleasant street school—Doors and platform at both entrances were repaired, 52 broken lights of glass put in and a number of new sash cords installed. A total of 118 feet of picket fence was rebuilt, the concrete sidewalk to Benjamin street was completed, 118 feet long and 5 feet wide, two new drinking fountains were installed on the main floor, the flag pole received two coats of paint and all desks, seats and chairs were varnished.

Pearl street school—150 feet of picket fence was rebuilt, and the balance of the fence was repaired. 32 lights of glass were replaced and many sash cords were replaced. The roof was repaired and the desks, seats and chairs varnished.

Occum school—New cupboards were built, coat rooms were painted, desks, seats and chairs were varnished.

Over 300 panes of glass were broken at the town schools the past summer.

BANQUET FOR OPENING OF NATHAN HALE HOTEL

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 23—Willimantic's new Nathan Hale hotel, the center for social and civic functions in the near future and a priceless commercial asset, came into official being Thursday night with the main banquet of the three day opening celebration which was an outstanding social success, covers being laid for about 150 guests. The lobby was filled with beautiful dahlias presented by William B. Sweeney. Justice George E. Hinman of this city was toastmaster. Delightful music was rendered by Gibson's orchestra and the vocal treat of the evening was by Miss Theresa Sprague, famous singer of Boston and a member of the Metropolitan opera company. Harry W. Standish was song leader for the group singing, and the invocation was by Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock, pastor of the First Congregational church.

All of the speakers embodying complimentary remarks to Willimantic's citizenry on its splendid achievement and predictions of a new era of success were warmly applauded. Justice Arthur S. Ells of Litchfield gave an inspiring treatise on the four fundamentals of happiness: Work, play, love and worship. Other speakers were Hon. Richard P. Freeman, congressman from the second congressional district, Gen. F. E. Kaley of New York, director of the American Thread Co., Gen. J. Leslie Kincaid, president of the American Hotels corporation, William P. Jordan, president of the Community Hotels corporation and James G. BRADFORD FAMILY ROUSED BY FIRE IN KITCHEN

WESTERLY, R. I., Sept. 23—Fire alarm No. 38 for an out-of-the-district fire, was sounded at 10.35 o'clock tonight on the bell of the Westerly fire station. The Ahrens Fox pumper with Chief Egger and firemen went to Bradford, where, at the postoffice they were for some time unable to learn where the fire was located.

Soon after 10 o'clock Salvatore Spezzino, who was in bed with his wife and two children Tom, age 3, and Viola, two months, smelled smoke and rushed to the kitchen of the house which is owned by James Landone, of Peck Hollow, Bradford. The family made a hasty exit, when the kitchen was found to be a mass of flames around the chimney, although no fire had been in the range since early in the morning. Neighbors rushed to their assistance with pails of water and soon had the fire out. John Capalbo telephoned the Westerly central and the Westerly department responded to the call. The family of the first floor of the house had moved out the previous week. Damage from fire and water will not exceed $50.

Next Sunday is to be rally Sunday in the First Baptist church school, a special program being forecasted by an announcement on the church calendar.

DISCHARGE IN ASSAULT CASE IN COLCHESTER

A discharge in the case of Hyman Morrison of Colchester was ordered by Justice of the Peace F. A. Baker when the case came up before him Wednesday night at Colchester after several continuances. Morrison was charged with breach of the peace, having been arrested by state policemen on Aug. 29 on suspicion after an attack had been made by six armed men on employes of the Levine Suit & Cloak Co while they were on their way to work.

The attacking party was supposed to have been gangsters from New York who had come to Colchester to intimidate workers at the Levine factory. They used sawed-off billiard cues as weapons, beating one of the employes so severely that he had to be taken to a Hartford hospital.

NORWICH TOWN

For the past several days men under the supervision of Thomas Dodd, have been at work on the new pipe line for the Deep River reservoir, at Harlands corner, Norwich Town, where the connection into the city's main pipe line on Washington street, is to be made. Work was resumed at the end of the new pipe line on Town street, where it was suspended in the spring, after laying the pipe through that street.

At Harland's corner, a manhole is being constructed to accommodate a modern gate about five feet in height, and at the shut-off two feet in diameter. Work has been greatly handicapped because of so much ledge encountered at both sections where the digging has been going on. The gate arrived at Harlands corner Tuesday.

It is expected that two connections will be made into the main pipe line on Washington street at the junction with Town street at Harland's corner. This is in preparation for receiving the water into the main line from the Deep River reservoir, on completion of the reservoir.

It is the aim of Supervisor Dodd to have this part of the work completed as soon as possible, as this is a most dangerous spot, especially during heavy traffic, and at night, when the service of a watchman is required Saturday afternoon and Sundays. As a precaution he has closed a part of the highway at the corner. Mr. Dodd also exercises great care to have the school children pass over this spot in safety. For the past two Sundays, auto traffic over this highway was heavier than in any Sunday during the summer.

In recognition of her long and faithful services as teacher of the Primary department, also leader of the Cradle Roll, of the First Congregational Sunday school, Miss Marion Latham Bailey, whose marriage with Frank Donald Brigham, took place last Saturday evening, at the Congregational parsonage, was presented a substantial gift of gold, by the church school.

The pupils were greatly attached to her. She also has been active in the Young People's Christian Endeavor society.

Following two weeks' stay at Backus hospital during a serious operation for appendicitis, from which she has made steady recovery, Mrs. Albert Birdsie was removed to her home on Elm avenue, Sunday.

Former Norwich Town residents, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Bennett, and their foster-son, Master Francis Oats Bennett, until recently residents of West Main street, having sold their home, moved to one of William Yeomans' cottages on Lafayette street.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Flemming of Town street, are entertaining Mrs. Flemming's brother, Edward Burns of Chicago, who is passing a vacation of a month with Connecticut relatives. Another brother, Joseph Burns, of New Britain was a guest over the week end at the home of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Flemming.

Friends of Mrs. Richard Carter of Norwich Town, are congratulating her for being successful in being awarded a building lot at Rogers Lake Shore, during the New London County fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Bellveau and family of 55 Sturtevant avenue, have returned from Canada, Mr. Bellveau and his brothers, Edward and Edgar, being called there by the death of their father.

The mid-week service of the Congregational church was held Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Tague have returned from Springfield after ten days' visit with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Wood. While there they attended the Springfield fair, returning to Norwich Town Tuesday night.

MAL DAUGHERTY TESTIFIES AGAINST BROTHER, HARRY

Banker Daugherty Was Forced to Tell on the Witness Stand That His Brother Had Wilfully Destroyed Evidence Which the Government Claims Would Have Shown That He Received Graft Money Totalling $150,000—Harry Daugherty, the Accused, Twisted His Horn Rimmed Glasses as Mal Was Sworn.

NEW YORK, Setp. 24—(AP)—Brother was forced to testify against brother today as the Daugherty-Miller conspiracy trial reached the highest point of tension since it opened almost three weeks ago.

Mal S Daugherty, small town banker and brother of Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, was forced to tell on the witness stand that his brother had wilfully destroyed evidence which the government claims would have shown that he received graft money totalling $150,000.

Admissibility of the banker's testimony was hotly contested by the defense and opening of the court session was held up half an hour while attorneys for both sides argued in Judge Mack's chambers.

The banker was visibly nervous as he was sworn. Harry Daugherty set at the defense table twirling his horn rimmed glasses.

Other witnesses" Buckner began, "have testified that the ledger sheets of the Midland National bank of Washington Courthouse, O., of which you were president, referring to the accounts of you, your brother and Jesse W. Smith, his aide, are now missing. When did you see them last?"

"In October of last year."

"That was when you brought them to New York at the time Jesse Smith was subpoenaed in connection with the conspiracy?"

"Yes."

"And they were not examined by the grand jury at that time?"

"They were not."

"What did you do with them then?"

"My brother took them back."

"When you were subpoenaed again in December," Buckner continued, "and ordered to bring these papers to New York, what did you do?"

"I immediately went to my brother's home in Columbus."

"What was your conversation with him there?"

"I told him that he had been the last one to have those sheets and that I needed them to comply with the new subpoena."

"What did he tell you then?"

"He said he had destroyed the sheets."

"Why had he destroyed them?"

"He said he had burned them."

"Why did he say he had burned them?"

"He gave no reason."

"Had you and he frequently discussed these sheets and the entries they bore?"

"We had."

"That is all, Mr. Daugherty."

After this testimony the government brought out through documents and witnesses that Thomas W. Miller, co-defendant in the present trial, had two accounts for $50,000 each in the Midland National bank as alien property custodian and that he had been influential in placing another account for $75,000 with the bank.

Mal Daugherty was recalled to the stand to tell about this. He was asked whether or not the accounts had been brought to the bank by Smith, who is alleged by the government to be the "fixer" through whom John T. King, "reached" Daugherty and Miller in his successful attempt to obtain release of $7,000,000 impounded enemy property for Richard Merton, German metal magnate.

He admitted that Smith had been influential in getting the business for the bank and then Max X. Steuer, counsel for Harry Daugherty, took the witness for cross-examination. Under his guidance the witness said that he had never asked any favor of his brother while the latter was attorney general. He said he thought it perfectly natural that he should turn to Smith in this matter, since he knew him well and was aware that he was a close friend of the attorney general, the alien property custodian and of President Harding. The $75,000 account placed with his bank through the influence of Smith and Miller, he said was that of Stoenr and Son of New York, which controlled the Botany Mills of Passaic, N. J. This was an enemy controlled firm and was at the time under guidance of the alien property custodian's office.

The government next turned to its attempt to prove that Daugherty received the interest from $100,000 worth of liberty bonds which were a part of Merton's payment to King. When court was adjourned until Monday a check for $2 125, representing interest payment of these bonds, in 1923, had been traced to the Cincinnati branch of the Cleveland, O. Federal Reserve bank. Records of the Midland National bank were introduced to show that Harry M Daugherty deposited the same amount to his account there at about the same time.

Held For [illegible] Workers

Nine Men, Believed to be New York Gangsters, Arrested in Stamford.

STAMFORD, Sept. 24—(AP)—Nine men, believed to be New York gangsters, who were arrested this morning after two employes of a Stamford clothing factory had been assaulted, were transferred to the Bridgeport jail tonight, under a heavy guard. The transfer was made on a bench warrant issued by Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin of superior court upon application of State's Attorney Comley at Bridgeport after it became known that the men were wanted in connection with similar offenses in Norwalk, Bridgeport, New Haven and Colchester. In these places, garment workers in non-union shops have been assaulted recently.

Each of the men is charged with assault with intent to kill.

The two men assaulted, Henry Pozzuli, and his brother, Ulric, were being taken to work in a taxicab this morning when the machine was stopped by the nine men who had driven up in two automobiles. The windows of the taxicab were smashed, the Pozzuli brothers were pulled out and after being assaulted, were left lying in the street.

The nine alleged gangsters fled but five were captured by pursuing Stamford police in Greenwich and the other four were found half an hour later in the same town.

Henry Pozzuli, remained in the Stamford hospital tonight suffering from a deep hole in his skull. Ulric was badly cut about the head and face but later was released from the hospital.

Following the attack the police found clubs, bullets and pieces of lead pipe believed to have been carried by the gangsters. These were turned over to the state's attorneys office.

The police are of the opinion that the nine men who attacked the garment workers here, were the same who assaulted three workers in New Haven last night.

INDIAN SUMMER ROUTED BY SNOW IN NORTHWEST

CHICAGO, Sept. 24—(AP)—Unseasonable cold weather stalked out of the northern Rockies today and advanced across the northwest to cap with snow and frost the rout of Indian summer.

Wyoming and Montana, the Dakotas, Nebraska and finally Iowa and Minnesota felt successively their first snowfalls of the season. All suffered frost, too, as did Kansas and tonight the storm was moving into Wisconsin and across the Great Lakes, bringing to many localities the lowest temperatures ever experienced in September.

The storm's whim brought more rain to flood-racked Illinois, a fall of more than four inches centering at Ottumwa, Illinois; where five factories were compelled to close, two railroads and an interurban line suspended service and some of the city's inhabitants were driven from their homes by rising waters.

Canada's grain belt was ankle deep in snow from Winnipeg to British Columbia, with damage to unharvested crops estimated at $12,000,000.

Ohio, at the eastern end of the storm zone, counted the losses from a tornado which killed a child and did $300,000 damage as it swept through three counties along Lake Erie last night.

The Open Road

Suppose you came suddenly upon two roads—one straight, well trodden and the other thin and twisting off into undergrowth. If you didn't want to arrive at any place in particular you might choose the latter. But not otherwise.

Before you, as buyer, run two roads. One is the road of knowledge of an advertised product. There's no mystery about it, no doubtings, nothing hidden. When you use an advertisement, you use an open road.

When you don't use advertisements you go the doubtful road. You have only hazy knowledge of the product ahead.

Read the Bulletin advertisements. Anything widely advertised has proved itself good by advertising. Advertisements put you on the open road to satisfaction.

Program Presented by State Foresters

Includes a Recommendation That Every Town Have Its Own Forest.

BRETTON WOODS, N. H. Sept. 24—(AP)—Recommendation that every town have its own forest, that, every state acquire ten per cent of its forest area, and that taxation on growing trees be adjusted were made to the New England council tonight by state foresters of six New England states. Professor R. T. Fisher of the Harvard Forest told the council that in the face of threatened loss of New England's present and potential income from forestry products the forestry interests have not sufficiently adapted their policies to market and economic conditions. He urged research within the industry to solve its problems.

A definite program was presented by the state foresters to the council, which was gathered for its third quarterly meeting besides urging town forests, taxation adjustments and state ownership of ten per cent of forest areas, the foresters recommended that larger appropriations be made for preventing forest fires and various pests and diseases, that the government forestry station at Amherst, Mass., for New England and New York be developed and that state nurseries and private forests be extended.

From the standpoint of land utilization forestry is the most important problem New England has to face, the foresters declared. This, they explained, was because four-fifths of New England's original virgin forest area should be producing forest products, whereas less than half of the area is producing timber of any value.

In detailing their program, the foresters said that too much emphasis could not be placed upon the question of tax adjustments. In some states, it was pointed out, the timberland owner who had just planted a crop of trees was taxed upon the potential value of those trees each year that they are growing, although would be ten or fifteen years before he realized upon that value.

New England cannot afford to lose its income from forestry products, worth $16,000,000 a year, to this region, Professor Fisher asserted. He said that the industry was "showing an alarming shrinkage," but that "on the other hand, timber, the raw material, can be permanently supplied only by the practice of forestry."

The first essential in retaining this income, he said, was to keep the wood-working industries successful and permanent.

FOREIGN JURY DENIED IN HALL-MILLS MURDER CASE

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept 24—(AP)—Informed of the denial of his plea for a foreign jury to try the Hall-Mills case, Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson tonight announced that his next move would be an application for the severance of the trials of the four defendants.

The October calendar in Somerset county will be a "serious handicap," in the opinion of Mr. Simpson. The supreme court was not to be outfigured, Mr. Simpson declared but he expressed great surprise at the denial of his application.

In a statement replying to charges by Inspector J. J. Underwood that the defendants' lawyers were attempting to influence the state's witnesses, Mr. McCarter declared that it was "improper to characterize, in advance of the trial, anybody as a witness of the state or of the defense."

There was no impropriety, he asserted in interviewing persons who are supposed to know something concerning the crime.

"If," the statement continues," the suggestion includes the idea that we are brow-beating, or attempting to dissuade witnesses, or are endeavoring to put words into their mouths, then we unequivocally deny the accusation."

PRESIDENT OF THE U. OF P. CRITICISES "FUNNY" CLOTHES

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24—(AP)—Collegiate trousers that make a student look "like the hind legs of a stage elephant" and society pins carry no special privileges at the University of Pennsylvania, Dr. Josiah H. Penniman, president of the university, asserted today, in addressing the students at the opening of the 187th academic year. More than 8,500 full-time students are enrolled in the various schools.

"Wearing funny clothes, peculiar hats, society pins or college badges," said Dr. Penniman, "is quite incidental to be original, it is not necessary to be peculiar. To be respected it is necessary to be worthy of respect, and if you are worthy of respect you will be respected.

"It requires exactly the same qualities to succeed in college life that are required in the world at large, and you will be judged and measured by your fellows, in college and out of college, by your possession of these qualities."

COOLIDGE WARY OF ARMS LIMITATION CONFERENCE

Chief Executive is Disinclined to Consider Question of American Participation Until the Exact Nature of the Geneva Proposal is Clearly Understood—Mr. Coolidge Has Been Somewhat Disappointed With the Proceedings of the Preliminary Arms Conference at Geneva.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—President Coolidge is disinclined to consider the question of American participation in the arms limitation conference proposed today in Geneva until its exact nature is clearly understood.

It was emphasized at the white house that the good wishes of the president would be given to every effort made in Geneva to reduce armaments and that he was anxious to give any help in his power to that end. There can be no question, however, that he has been somewhat disappointed with regard to the proceedings of the preliminary arms commission, particularly insofar as the expert committees of that gathering have touched upon naval matters.

The Washington government has not lost sight of the fact that representatives of nations which have no navies participated in these technical discussions, and this point has been brought out by the American delegates and others in the course of the expert committee sessions.

If the general conference proposed today will include within the discussion of purely naval questions the representatives of non-naval powers, there are grave doubts which the Washington government would participate.

It was also made clear today at the white house that in this respect the Washington government would be unlikely to regard such a conference of all powers on naval matters, regardless whether these powers maintained substantial naval forces or not, as calculated to bring about the results for which it is pressing, and it seems probably the answer to any invitation that may be received in such a conference would be framed in the light of this feeling.

GENERAL CONFERENCE FOR REDUCTION OF ARMAMENTS

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 24.—(AP)—International disarmament that will mean something, accepting the active collaboration of the United States, now can be more simply realized by calling the league of nations assembly unanimously adopted a resolution that a general conference for the reduction of armaments should be held before next September unless unusual difficulties prevent.

M. Paul-Boncour, for France, Viscount Cecil, for Great Britain, and Herr Von Schubert, for Germany, pledge their countries to support the conference. Lord Cecil portrayed the world as anxiously awaiting results from Geneva, but warned that it would be fatal to call the conference before arrangements were complete, because if it met and failed it would be the greatest disaster to the cause of peace since the founding of the league of nations.

The German spokesman said that the country deemed disarmament the league's greatest task because it was the interest of humanity. He emphasized that Germany had agreed with alacrity to participate in the league's special preparatory disarmament commission before Germany entered the league.

China, duly recently elected a member of the league council caused a sensation today by launching an accusation against Great Britain of bombardment and the killing of Chinese on the Wangtse river. It is unusual but not unprecedented, for one member of the league to make charges publicly against another from the rostrum, especially when both belong to the council, and this incident is described as showing that the assembly is becoming a real forum for airing international grievances.

Chao-Hsin Chu stated that on July 6, August 7 and August 29 a number of native ships and small boats were wrecked by British merchantment and more than 100 passengers were drowned. He added that Chinese soldiers who sought to investigate were prevented by a British gunboat, and the Chinese were obliged to detain the merchantmen.

On Sept. 5 the Chinese spokesman charged a gunboat bombarded and killed 100 gendarmes at Wanhsien, while others bombarded the town, destroying 1,000 houses and slaying 1,000 civilians, obliging Chinese troops to return the fire in self-defense. In conclusion he stated that the situation was so serious that if it were allowed to become worse, it would endanger peace in the Far East.

Lord Cecil criticised Chao-Hsin Chu for giving previous notice that he would raise the question. He did not agree with Chu's statement of the facts but believed the matter would be settled. He insisted, however, that the Chinese statement did not help friendly negotiations.

FAULTY LANDING GEAR CAUSED WRECK OF BI-PLANE

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., Sept. 24—(AP)—Failure of auxiliary landing gear to function properly was chiefly to blame for the wreck of the giant Sikorsky bi-plane and the death of two of his companions on Curtiss Field, Long Island, Russian aviation leader and designer of many famous planes in Europe, it was declared today by Igor Sikorsky, who piloted the ill-fated flying ship after the plane crashed at the attempted take off.

Earlier in the day District Attorney Edwards made public an affidavit from Col. H. E. Hartney, former general manager of the Aeronautical Corporation of America, the original promoters of the flight in which Col. Hartney declined to be assigned from the organization because of Capt. Fonck's participation. He gave as his reason Capt. Fonck's alleged lack of rehearsal flights, poor balance, irresponsibility and incompetency and a desire not to jeopardize the friendly relations between France and America.

What action if any the grand jury may take and will probably be determined by the findings of the coroner's inquest.

ADMISSION OF GUILT BY EVANGELIST M'PHERSON

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24—(AP)—Aimee Semple McPherson Los Angeles evangelist, in altered attempts to manufacture false evidence in connection with her mysterious disappearance, revealed that during her absence she spent ten days in a cottage in Carmel, Calif., with Kenneth G. Ormiston, her former radio operator, it was charged here today by Harry Melosh, who was arrested for Los Angeles authorities.

Mrs. Babe Daniels, ex of Chicago, also taken into custody here today as a material witness, admitted she signed the affidavit declaring she was the woman who occupied the cottage at Carmel with Ormiston and not Mrs. McPherson.

Melosh was started back to Los Angeles under guard to answer charges of conspiracy to defeat justice. He will be arraigned Monday with Mrs. McPherson, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, and Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman Sielaff, who also has admitted she was employed by the evangelist to produce false evidence in an effort to clear Mrs. McPherson's name in connection with the Carmel cottage episode, Mrs. Daniels also was taken to Los Angeles.

Ormiston is still being sought.

35 MEN ENTOMBED IN IRON MINE IN MICHIGAN

IRONWOOD, Mich., Sept. 24—(AP)—Three men are missing and are believed to have perished and thirty two others are held prisoners in a drift in the eighth level of a shaft in an Oliver Iron Mining company mine here as the result of a cave-in this afternoon. Tons of earth crashed to the bottom of the shaft.

Crews are working feverishly in an attempt to dig out the dirt and reach the cage.

Mine officials believe that the thirty two men held prisoners are unhurt, unless some of them made an attempt to go down the shaft after the cave-in. Families of the imprisoned and dead miners gathered at the entrance to the mine soon after word of the cave-in was received.

SOUTHERN FLORIDA STARTS REPAIRING STORM RAVAGES

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 24—(AP)—With most of its dead buried, its injured and homeless cared for, southeastern Florida, tossed with renewed determination today the gigantic task of repairing the ravages wrought by the tropical hurricane of a week ago.

Weeks, and in some cases, months, will be required to restore cities and villages which stood in the pathway of the storm. Millions of dollars will be needed but state and municipal officials expressed confidence that efforts would not be abated until the last trace of the disaster had been eliminated.

Typical of the general spirit through the storm area was that displayed by some 200 survivors in the village of Moore Haven, who protested vigorously against orders of the state health and military authorities requiring them to evacuate their town until sanitary conditions have been returned to something like normal.

Their appeals to Governor Martin for the rescinding of the evacuation order having failed, the refugees doggedly began the long trek through flooded streets and roads to points where steamers or trains could take them to nearby towns.

Many of the refugees loaded their belongings upon small boats which they hailed through the water. Still others went out leading cows or pigs behin dthem. Some were practically empty-handed, having lost their all when the town practically was wiped out by the high winds and the deluge of water from Lake Okeechobee.

LETTERS TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT FROM KAISER

BOSTON, Sept 24—(AP)—When Theodore Roosevelt was president he received letters from Kaiser Wilhelm which, if published, would then have brought on a world war, the president told William Dana Orcutt, typographic expert and former head of the University Press of Cambridge.

Mr. Orcutt quoted a Washington conference he had with President Roosevelt, in a volume entitled "In Quest of the Perfect Book," to be published tomorrow by Little, Brown and company.

"During an afternoon in the president's library, he showed me among other things, some line drawings made personally by the kaiser, showing in detail every ship in our navy," Mr. Orcutt says. "When I expressed surprise that such exact knowledge should be in the possession of another country, my host became serious.

"The kaiser is a most extraordinary fellow, he said, deliberately—'not every one realizes how extraordinary. He and I have corresponded ever since I became president, and I tell you that if his letters were ever published they would bring on a world war. Thank God I don't have to leave them behind when I retire."

MATERIAL IMPROVEMENT IN INDUSTRIES OF STATE

HARTFORD, Sept. 24—(AP)—A material improvement in the conditions of industries in the state has been noted during the past few weeks, it was stated today by Charlotte M. Holloway, statistical investigator of the department of labor.

The improvement has been particularly noticeable in Hartford and New Haven counties and in the cities of the Naugatuck valley, she said. A recent investigation shows that the hours of labor per week now average 45.3 in industries which are not working full time and 40.1 in those which are on a full time basis.

The amount of unemployment in the state has decreased in the past few months, according to Arthur L. Thompson of the local office of the state free employment bureau. Unemployment was confined almost entirely to migrants from other states and to that class of persons who never can hold a job for long, he said.

CABINET OF POLAND TO PRESENT ITS RESIGNATION

WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 24—(AP)—The cabinet has decided to present its resignation. This action is the outcome of criticism by the diet of the ministers of interior and minister of education for the conduct of their departments.

Although the diet, by reason of governmental pressure, approved the credits demanded by the government for the last quarter of 1926, it consoled itself by severely criticising the policies of Minister of Interior Lodzia-nowski and Minister of Education Sujowski. Immediately after the diet's vote today, Premier Bartel called an extraordinary session of the cabinet, which decided to support its two colleagues by announcing the resignation of the entire ministry.

ULLMAN FACTION SETTLES WITH STATE REP. GROUP

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 24—(AP)—The so-called Ullman republican faction, the controlling factor in republican activities in this city, has reached an agreement and has settled all differences with the state republican organization, it was announced here tonight.

The New Haven organization has been at odds with the state organization headed by J. Henry Roraback, chairman of the state central committee, for several years.

The agreement was brought about through the activities of a committee of five prominent New Haven republicans who went to Hartford today and who were in conference with Chairman Roraback for several hours. This committee reported upon its return here tonight that agreement between the state and state organizations, had been reached and that all opposition would disappear.

The committee was composed by Mayor J. B. Tower, Major D. A. Blakeslee, Republican Town Chairman Joseph F. Morrissey, Major L. M. Ullman and Michael D. McGovern director of public works.

Several attempts to end the differences between the state and local organizations have been made in the past but all have failed.

The republican organization here goes back to the state body, it was said by members of the committee and is expected to receive every recognition from the state organization to which a city of this size and importance is entitled. Representatives and senators in the next legislature are expected to receive important assignments on the committees.

A quiet move has been under way for some time among party leaders towards the adjustment of the differences between the two organizations, under the leadership of Colonel L. M. Ullman and Major L. M. Ullman.

Among the local organization leaders strong for the reconciliation move has been Joseph F. Morrissey, chairman of the republican town committee. Within the last two weeks, Mr. Morrissey has been in touch with state leaders including Motor Vehicles Commissioner R. O. Stoeckel.

STATE HIGHWAY FOREMEN HOLD ALL-DAY MEETING

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 24—Some forty-five foremen of the state highway department of districts 6, 9 and 10, headed respectively by Supervisors Henry T. Gorman of Norwich, Oscar Diesmeier of West Willington and Luther M. Keith of Putnam, held an all-day meeting here today to listen to talks and witness demonstrations on Accident Prevention and First Aid Treatment, by James G. Buckley and Dr. Richard Whiting, representatives of the Travelers' Insurance company, of Hartford. During the forenoon Mr. Buckley, who is connected with the engineering division of the insurance company, gave an interesting talk on road construction and methods of preventing accidents.

At noon the party went to the Nathan Hale hotel for luncheon. The afternoon session convened at the Chamber of Commerce parlors, with exhibitions on First Aid Treatment by Dr. Whiting. After showing the proper manner of bandaging the more common wounds to fingers, leg, eye and scalp, Dr. Whiting impressed on the foremen the advisability of not removing a person seriously injured, especially back injuries. Making allowances for cases where it is impossible to secure a doctor, Dr. Whiting explained how persons thus injured and in a state of shock are at death's door and the slightest disturbance might prove fatal. In such cases the person should be wrapped in blankets and kept as warm as possible until a physician arrives. He warned against giving anyone thus injured drink of any nature.

Mr. Buckley gave a demonstration of a simple but effective resuscitating method and closed with a plea to the men to make accident prevention part of their work.

Supervisor Luther M. Keith of Putnam was chairman of the meeting which is the first of this nature in the state, to cover the eleven state highway districts. The next and last meeting will be in Hartford.

CITY'S BIG ACHIEVEMENT IN SECURING FINE HOTEL

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 24—Representative Allen B. Lincoln of Ashford gave an address at the first of the Nathan Hale Hotel dinners last night. The program began with high praise of William P. Jordan, president of the Community Hotel corporation. It soon drifted to the subject of the Nathan Hale hotel, which Mr. Jordan owned. Mr. Jordan with the wealth of glory and the car-feather of accomplishment, the latter drawn from the wealth and charge from the gander. He said: "Charles W. Hall, a Connecticut boy south who was president of the Willimantic Chamber of Commerce in 1919, set out to get a new hotel for the city. Associated with him was the late Fred D. Jordan, one of the most useful and beloved citizens Willimantic ever had, and another two were who is still here to share in the baffling of civic progress and share rewards of service. James P. Bath. Their first attempt was to endeavor to raise capital to remodel the Hotel Hooker, established years ago by the late Charles Hooker. They failed. Somehow it was not the right proposition. But Cranbe Hill never lost faith and then along came Rotary, eager for civic service. This body with the chamber of commerce secured the promoting service of The Hockenbury system. Willimantic was duly surveyed, and found to need and be able to support a new hotel. Then the day came when over one hundred public spirited men issued forth, sold the stock and but for the construction of it, the hotel was a reality. The sales of stock were conducted under the able leadership of such men as William P. Jordan and James B. Fullerton. HIGH SCHOOL OPENING ANNOUNCED FOR MONDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 24—Supt. William E. Parker of Killingly school said today that Killingly high school now including the junior high school with pupils of the seventh and eighth grades of the Danielson and South Killingly schools will open Monday morning at 8:30. The sessions will continue until 1:45 p. m. with a recess period from 11:35 a. m. to 12:25 p. m. That pupils in the seventh and eighth grades who live in Danielson may go home to lunch and an additional 20 minutes over the regular recess will be allowed, this giving them 80 minutes of free time. The Monday session will be short for registration. The regular classes will begin Tuesday.

There is no such general enthusiasm for getting down to Florida for the winter as existed here a year ago this fall. In spite of the dire predictions of the Cloud Digger, the average person will remain at home. This is largely due to the outrageous prices many people from this territory were charged in the south last winter, to once going south and not wanting to go again and to the scare recently caused by the hurricane. Of course the regulars who have been south for years will go again, but there will be few others.

This week's dog show at the Brooklyn fair created much more interest than one would imagine. The affair was so successful that there are those who would be pleased if a dog show were staged in Danielson next spring. A great variety of dogs are owned in the territory from which entries would be attracted for such a show, and many of them are very fine animals.

Longo and Williams, graduates of Killingly high school and members of former teams at Connecticut Agricultural college, are again members of the college football squad this season. Both are heavy, powerful and experienced players and likely to be a big factor in the team's showing during the fall.

The Windham County Council of Religious Education is to meet at the Methodist Episcopal church in Danielson Monday October 4. The program arranged includes three lectures. One of these by Prof. Alexander C. Purdy of the Hartford Theological Seminary will be on How to Teach the Bible. Prof. James P. Berkeley of the Newton Theological school will be heard on The Task of the Child. He will also be heard on the subjects Keeping the Religious Life of Young People, and The Challenge of Religious Education.

It is indicated that the final checkup of receipts of the Brooklyn fair this week will show that the association again made money. The attendance of approximately 8,000 people Wednesday brought in important revenue at the gate and there are, of course, other avenues of receipts.

A final game of the season for St. Louis' school baseball team that was scheduled for Sunday has been called off. The C. L. A. team to have furnished the opposition, decided they did not care to enter the contest.

Russell Hammond, of East Killingly, who had a hand mangled when it came in contact with the saw of a wood sawing machine, has been a patient at the Day Kimball hospital and has the prospect of recovering from the injury without the loss of any fingers.

No matter of great moment is included in the warning for the annual town meeting to be held a week from next Monday. There are the usual appropriations to be made for Memorial and Armistice day. The electors will be asked to pass upon the proposition of discontinuing a short stretch of highway that leads from the old town house site at Killingly Center to Killian's corner, so-called. There is also the matter of accepting the layout of L Hourne street extension.

Vaudeville, which was discontinued during the summer season, came back to please the audiences at the Orpheum theatre on Friday, in conjunction with the usual showing of pictures.

The Clergy Fellowship of Putnam and vicinity has a meeting scheduled to be held at the Putnam Baptist church next Monday. Rev. Roger C. Stimson of the Methodist Episcopal church of Danielson is the secretary-treasurer of the organization.

About 90 persons will leave here in busses next Wednesday evening for the evening of pleasure that has been arranged for players and officials of the Danielson Twilight league, that closed its season a week ago. The party will see a show in Providence and then come back to an inn at North Scituate, for a dinner party.

Joseph Louis Foster, 75, who died September 14, at Oakland Beach, R. I., was the father of Mrs. Charles Rapp and George Foster of Danielson. Other children are Mrs. Mildred Mahar of Middletown, Frank Foster of Passaic, Charles Foster of New York and Mary Foster of Uxbridge, Mass.

More opinions than money changed hands in Danielson over the Tunney-Dempsey battle in Philadelphia. There was little betting on the affair in town, though a majority while hoping the opposite, felt that Dempsey might be crowned the winner.

Why Overland's amazing Price Cuts are possible

- on the two most successful cars of their size and price class

Retail sales during July and August were the largest in Willys-Overland history. Over 39,000 were sold in these two months.

The original Whippet production schedule laid out in July called for 500 cars a day. Within 60 days it has been increased to 650. And now, at these amazing new low prices we anticipate a volume of 1000 Whippets a day—and from every present indication it will be quickly attained.

Sales of the Overland Six have also been gaining in tremendous volume. Over 60,000 were made last year. Each month sees another record broken. And at these startling, low prices we believe Overland Six production will reach over 100,000 this year.

Big volume makes low prices possible. Low prices bring big volume. This in brief is the economic reason behind this amazing price reduction.

If orders are placed at once prompt deliveries can be made. The time to buy is NOW!

CONNECTICUT OUT OF DEBT

The people of Connecticut will read with interest the article on Connecticut Entirely Out of Debt by Governor Trumbull as printed in the Financial Digest and reproduced in part elsewhere on this page.

On more than one occasion President Coolidge has had occasion to call attention to the progress that was being made by the federal government in the reduction of taxation and at the same time the reduction in the federal debt, and to point out to the states the need of following a similar policy, for through the curtailment on the part of the states it would be possible to accomplish a large part of the relief from taxation that the people of the country are seeking.

By the figures which are presented by Governor Trumbull it is positively shown that Connecticut is and has been doing this very thing. While debt increase was voted in years since the war prompt steps were also taken for its elimination and wisely it is pointed out that the state stands to completely out of debt, able to liquidate and have a surplus in the treasury. It reflects credit upon the directors of the state's finances and upon the methods which they have employed in getting such results. For while Connecticut has been moving toward its present position other states have been going in the opposite direction. There are few commonwealths that stand in the enviable position of Connecticut.

The idea of collect as you go and pay as you go has produced gratifying results. It not only looks good upon paper but it stands to the credit of the people of this state. They have been receiving an administration of their affairs that is prompt, dependable and stands out conspicuously in comparison with other states. The policy has been in keeping with that which was recently announced in connection with the saving of hundreds of dollars through the despatch obtained by prompt payment of electric bills.

Connecticut out of debt. Connecticut with a larger revenue than its current figures, carries its own fair measure to the thinking taxpayers and citizens. It is as it should be, but Connecticut must realize it is getting what others should have but are not getting.

INTERSTATE POWER LINES

Transmission of power from one state to another like the operation of bus lines from one state to another furnishes an interstate problem which, if dealt with in the same way that interstate commerce is, would result in federal control.

But federal control of such business would result in placing a tremendous amount of business under government agency, distributed as it would be from one end of the country to the other wherever power is sent across a state border. It really involves matters which concerns two states.

With that situation in mind the power committee of the New England council at its session at Poston Woods this week advocates an arrangement whereby the public utilities commissions of the respective states should have the final jurisdiction over the matter in the interest of the public. Such would leave the relation in the respective states but is unquestionably a sensible solution. Such commissions are now in charge of utility lines in their respective states and it is only proper that they should deal with an interstate problem which concerns their states as a neighbor.

The power situation is quite different than the railroad transportation problem placed in charge by congress. There is need of regulation of interstate business transportation quite as there is for regulation of interstate railroads. Probably that phase of the matter would have been handled at the time the interstate commerce's duties were set forth had the highway situation been what it is today. But even the interstate commerce commission recognizes the task that would be involved if it was saddled with that work, and it is not impossible that it will be given the right, if it is directed, to handle interstate commerce on the highways, to delegate its authority to the respective state commissions to act jointly for the regulation of such lines.

The plans regarding the power lines would call for action by the states to the same end before a move for federal control was attempted.

FLORIDA'S FUTURE

That Florida will rebuild is a foregone conclusion. Disasters have come to cities and regions in varying degrees of severity but the instances are few where they have resulted in the abandonment of the ruins and a refusal to carry on. On the slopes of volcanoes, in the earthquake regions, in the valleys where floods have ravaged there is always an eagerness to clear up the debris and get started again. Disaster centers may be down but they are seldom deserted. Florida will spring up even as others have and it is natural that the slogan in each community should be for a bigger and better city than ever before.

But it is inevitable that there should be some lessons derived from the recent losses experienced in the hurricane that can be used to good advantage during the reconstruction. Florida knows that it has had storms of a hurricane nature in the past, that there is a season when they can be and are expected, that they vary in severity and while they may be light they also can be destructive, and there is need during the reconstruction to give heed to the type of building that can best withstand the wind, the construction of cellars, like the cyclones cellars of the midwest, where the people can go for protection when warnings are received and the minimizing of the flimsy construction which contributed so largely to frightful results. Florida may see the desirability of using a substitute for so much glass.

Florida cities will come back even as did Galveston after the tidal wave, San Francisco, Chicago and Jacksonville after the fires, Dayton after the flood and California cities after the earthquakes. There must, however, be a greater regard for the West Indian storms which are able in such a short period of time to completely cripple and prostrate the cities over a wide expanse of territory.

The storm has afforded the opportunity, although at a tremendous price, of correcting conditions which probably never would have received attention but for the record breaking storm. The hope will be that it will never be repeated, but there can be no safe disregard of precautions for the future.

THE NEW CHAMPION

Among the heavyweight championship in the pugilistic world has been transferred. From now on the honors rest with Gene Tunney, the exmarine who demonstrated in a ten round bout that he was a better man, in the ring than Jack Dempsey who gave a disappointing exhibition of his reputed skill. But that is characteristic in the squared arena. It is a case of "each colorum today and a feather duster tomorrow."

Championship contests do not have to be won by knockouts and Dempsey was not knocked out, but there was not one of the ten rounds in which he demonstrated greater skill than his opponent. He showed that he could take a terrific beating but he could not land a blow that would win. He lost to a clever man who was able to administer punishment while giving himself excellent protection.

Tunney's victory however unexpected, is unquestionably a popular one. The ex-champion showed the effects of his three years' layoff and evidently was not enough to get him through. It probably means that there will be no such long delays in the bouts between championship battles. Tunney's attitude in that direction remains to be seen but it will be remembered, he doesn't display a disposition to meet all comers who are ordered to put forth a challenge. He has the confidence born of a fighter, who knows he is not restricted to the best of skill and a new champion [illegible] demonstrated in the ring. He was [illegible] Philadelphia is [illegible] for were united [illegible] behind the fight [illegible] megaphones or [illegible]

WHAT PAROLES MAY DO

When a sheriff is killed by a desperado it is recognized that it is one of the possibilities which an official must take upon contemplating [illegible] this desperado is a paroled convict who used that method of [illegible] because the sheriff figured in his arrest there is [illegible] that the weaknesses of the parole system are being constantly [illegible]

In Warren county, Indiana, a bootlegger was found guilty two years ago and sent to the reformatory. He escaped and later was caught violating the law. This man apparently had a grudge against the official who was simply doing his duty in upholding the law. Before his sentence was completed the bootlegger managed to obtain his freedom but instead of displaying the penitence that might be expected under the circumstances and some gratitude for getting his freedom he proceeded to hunt out and kill the officer who had only done his duty.

It is to be realized that this man who has now become a murderer had the assistance in his carefully conceived and equally well concealed plot of the prole law and the parole [illegible] They both operated to help him before his anger had cooled, and for [illegible] reason a life has been sacrificed.

[illegible] one of many instances where [illegible] freedom to dangerous characters has ended in the very [illegible] deplorable result. Similar cases have resulted in the curbing of parole boards and modification of parole laws. The experimentation with the idea of releasing on parole those who may deserve to be released has too often been attended with [illegible] to individuals and the public [illegible]

EDITORIAL NOTES

Don't forget to turn the clocks back one hour tonight.

There are few champions who haven't had a successor.

Inasmuch as this is the last day of daylight saving this year be sure to make the most of it.

The hardest fight now is to make those who favored Dempsey understand how anyone could have beaten him.

The race to swim the English channel is so great it looks as if the procession would continue through the fall and into the winter.

It has been a bad season for champions in various branches of sports, if that is any consolation in addition to the sympathy for Dempsey.

The man on the corner says: Isn't it about time we had another special city meeting to vote some of those appropriations the annual meeting turned down?

THE MAN WHO TALKS

This material world of ours is marked with endless variety. If possible the people who inhabit it display still greater unlikenesses. Waymarks are everywhere used to measure time and space. And these waymarks themselves are so diversified that those of one nation may not fit into these of another. And those of an early date are changed with the progress of civilization. Many of these divisions are perfectly natural, and just in proportion as they are they do not change from one generation to another. On the other hand some of these waymarks are so fanciful and artificial that they are short lived. Today they are and tomorrow they are forgotten. But let us remember that they are, for the most part, extremely important, and contribute much to the pleasure and usefulness of human life.

It is quite important for business, scientific and other purposes, that the surface of the earth should submit to measurement; that is one of the great waymarks of space. Some countries make use of the mile-stone for this purpose. In this country, and most of the great countries, use is more generally made of the guide-board. That is we, of the United States think of distance in terms of miles. Some of the smaller countries have a shorter unit of measurement. This means, in a certain sense, the mastery of distance, and this is demanded by our economic order. Some time ago a stranger inquired of me the way to New London and the distance. After I had given him the information, he at once began to size up New London in terms of miles, and how long it would take him to get there. Modern business requires that we command both time and space. Ever since the world began man has been more and more conquering both.

There is also the waymark of the years and that is more valuable still. It would be a very strange world were there no computation of time and no measurement of space. The vast period of the past would be a strange confusion of events defying an intelligent interpretation, unless each could be seen and explained in its own time setting. In his letter to the Galations, the Apostle Paul reminds them of their past life under the law. It is contrasted with their present life under grace. Into both conditions the time element enters, for he reminds them, "ye observe days, and months, and times, and years;" for these divisions or observances had always entered into the religious life of man. Can anything enter into the life of a young man more important than his years? How shall he spend them? When shall he begin with a moral purpose? If more young people would live better between 15 and 25 fewer men would die between 45 and 55.

Science tells us that nature "abhors a vacuum," she also hates monotony and dead levels to that extent that she has made none outside the uninhabitable parts of the globe. They exist in the frozen regions around the poles, and in the sands tracts of the equator, but the great bulk of humanity live elsewhere on the earth's surface. Look at the north and south temperate zones where the bulk of humanity lives! How numerous and important are the waymarks found there! In the computation of time we have days, months and years; so also the measurement of space involves hills, valleys, mountains, plains, rivers and lakes. Would there be such stupendous motoring through New England in summer if it was nothing but a monotonous Sahara? Upon this infinite diversity one can easily read these words: "God is love."

No two things created by the God of nature are just alike, even though these differences cannot be detected by the naked eye. These waymarks of diversity are the most remarkable of all. As far as our power of vision is able to determine two blades of grass are just alike, so are two leaves, two bees, two sparrows, but not under the microscope. As we rise in the scale of being differences begin to appear. We can more easily distinguish two dogs than we can two clams; two trees have more points of unlikeness than two grains of sand. But the differences begin to be more prominent when we rise to man, and yet missionaries tell us that it is hard to tell one pagan from another. They dress alike, look alike, talk alike and all have the same narrow range of ideas. But with civilization individuality begins to assert itself and unlikeness becomes pronounced. We rarely mistake one person for another among those we meet.

The 12 months of the year are not alike in their social, scientific or economic value. From many viewpoints September is the leading month of the year. The most artificial of all the waymarks that separate the months is the imaginary line between the last day of December and the first of January. The old year in its entirety projects itself into the new; the connection is unbroken. With September there is a more radical change. We observe it in the delightful chill of the nights and mornings. The sun is casting the torridity of its heat quite noticeably into the southland. The mighty exodus of people that began in July and increased in August to the mountains and seashore return to their homes in September. While they are gone the usual activities slow down. Great industries mark time. But now the great machine starts up full time.

It is also by far the most important season in our entire educational system. It marks the beginning of the new school year. When the mother leads that little trembling six-year-old boy to the kindergarten it is the most important event in his life thus far. The mother is not likely to forget it, because there are some misgivings in her heart. She thinks of bad companions, automobiles and possibly untactful teachers. Is that little child to be a success or a failure in the schoolroom? It is also in September when the older children enter the academy, and this is the period of even great responsibilities. Just what is the development to be? It is the time of year that mother gets her girl ready for Smith or Wellesley and the boy for Yale or Harvard. The most precious thing she packs into the trunk is her own warm and beating heart. This is the greatest investment that September puts into the world.

This is the season when our slumbering churches begin to wake up, or at least it is the time when they ought to, for if there is not vigor now, right after vacation, when is it to appear? It is the time when the various agencies of our churches come together to organize and co-ordinate their forces for the fall and winter work. Many churches close their doors during dog-days, and whether they are justified in doing so or not depends upon circumstances. I believe something is to be said on both sides, but the trend of modern life has created conditions that did not exist 50 years ago, and for which the church is not responsible. The modern custom of taking a vacation in hot weather has brought about a state of things that the church must face, and, if possible, turn it to good account. If the true end of vacation has been found the churches will not suffer. The church has a right to get the benefit of this renewed vigor.

CONNECTICUT ENTIRELY OUT OF DEBT..

In the Financial Digest Governor John H. Trumbull presents a notable survey of the state finances and shows where Connecticut is out of debt by adopting and following the pay-as-you-go policy.

The article in part is as follows:

An amazing development in finance is taking place among our 48 states. It is a question whether the people—the taxpayers—are aware of this development.

(2) The same disease that is affecting so many people and so many families today—that of allowing expenditures to mount above income—also appears to be afflicting the majority of our 48 states. Comparatively few of our states are living within their incomes. Like the reckless installment buyer who contracts for more bills than his salary or wages will permit, most of our states are mortgaging their future to the extent of almost countless millions of dollars. Plunging head over heels into debt seems to have become the popular pastime of many states.

(3) The legislatures of many states are making appropriations so fast and furious that these states are falling far behind in the race to keep their incomes up to the increasingly high levels of their expenditures.

(4) Analyzing a survey of the finances of our states recently made public by the department of commerce, we find that for the fiscal year of 1918 the per capita debt (debt as used throughout this article is "net"—gross debt minus sinking fund) of the 48 states taken as a whole was $4.95, but that this debt for the fiscal year of 1924 had risen to $10.64—an increase of 111.9 per cent in the six years.

(5) Analysis of this survey and of previous ones also shows that for the year 1918, 17 of the 48 states spent more than their income, while for the years 1924, 27 states spent more than their income. In 1924, the expenditures of three states were over twice the amounts of their incomes. The income of Kansas was only 35.5 per cent of its expenditures; that of North Carolina but 40.8 per cent of its expenditures; that of Illinois was only 43.2 per cent of its expenditures; while the income of West Virginia was 64 per cent of its expenditures and that of Missouri was 64.2 per cent of its expenditures. Taken as a whole, the expenditures of the 48 states were greater than their income by nearly $150,000,000.

(6) A third outstanding phase of the recent enormous increase in state debts is shown by the huge size of the debts of a number of our largest states as compared with the size of their debts for the year 1918. From 1918 to 1924 40 states showed an increase in their debts.

(7) Only 21 states out of the 48 did not increase the size of their debt during the fiscal year of 1924. Twenty-seven states moved further into debt. From 1218 to 1924, 40 states increased the size of their debts, one showed no change and only seven states decreased their debts. Of these seven states only three showed a decrease of more than two million dollars. In 1918, 43 states had a debt, while in 1924, 47 states showed a debt.

(8) A fourth striking phase of the recent financial developments of our 48 states as a whole is shown by the fact that for the year 1918 their per capita expenditures ("total governmental costs") were $6.09, whereas their per capita income ("all revenue receipts") was $6.42—showing a per capita excess of income over expenditures of 33 cents. For the year 1924, the per capita governmental cost of the 48 states had risen to $18.61, whereas the per capita income had risen to only $12.32, thus showing a per capita excess of $1.29 of expenditures over income. In short, from 1918 to 1924 the per capita income of the 48 states increased 91.9 per cent, whereas the governmental cost had increased at the greater rate of 123.4 per cent.

(9) In 1918, the 48 states as a whole were spending less than their income; in 1924, they were spending more than their income.

(10) Reliable data discloses that from January 1, 1920 to January 1, 1926 the 48 states as a whole contracted new debts 20 times as fast as they paid off old debts. During this same period, state and local governments combined were plunging into debt more than four and one-half times as fast as they were before the war. Fully 10 per cent of all state expenditures are now required just to pay interest and amortization on the existing state debts. State bond issues have multiplied several times over in the last dozen years.

(11) Further study of the survey recently made public by the department of commerce indicates a striking increase between 1918 and 1924 in the taxes levied by the various state governments.

(12) Condensing the four chief aspects of state finances into one comparative sentence, it may be said that for the 48 states taken as a whole, their debts have increased tremendously, their taxes and their expenditures have likewise increased, and their incomes have also mounted.

Connecticut's Position

Let me now sketch the position that Connecticut occupies in regard to the mounting debts of our 48 states taken as a whole.

As I explained in the fourth paragraph of this article, the per capita debts of the 48 states rose from $4.95 in 1918 to $10.64 in 1924—an increase of 114.9 per cent. In this same period, Connecticut's per capita debt changed from $5.76 in 1918 to $3.11 in 1924—a decrease of 46 per cent. In the same period, the per capita debts of the 6 New England states as a whole decreased from $14.48 to $13.18—a decrease of 9 per cent.

In 1918, Connecticut's per capita debt ($5.76) was 81 cents greater than that of the 48 states as a whole ($4.95.) However in 1924 Connecticut's per capita debt ($3.11) was less than 30 per cent of the per capita debt of the 48 states taken as a whole ($10.64.) In 1918, Connecticut's per capita debt was 40 per cent of that of the six New England states ($14.48.) In 1924, however, Connecticut's per capita debt had dropped to 28.7 per cent of that of New England as a whole ($13.18.)

Comparing the per capita debts of the six New England states in 1924, we find that for Maine this debt was $19.23; for Massachusetts it was $16.91; for Rhode Island it was $15.41; for Vermont it was $5.48; for New Hampshire it was $4.76; and for Connecticut it was $3.11. The figure for New England was $13.18. Thus Connecticut showed the lowest per capita debt of any New England state.

In 1924, Connecticut's debt was .003 of the combined debt of the 48 states as a whole. Connecticut's population was .013 of the combined population of the 48 states. If Connecticut in 1924 had had the same relative debt as the 48 states as a whole, its debt would have been three and two-fifths times as large as it was in 1924.

Most important of all—by virtue of Connecticut's recent policy of living within its income, by virtue of interest accumulations in our sinking fund and by virtue of cash on hand—Connecticut is today in reality completely out of debt. I am of the opinion that this is a financial condition which is true today of but six or eight out of the 48 states. In 1924, this was true of only nine states—New Hampshire, Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Kentucky, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas. On June 30, 1924 Connecticut's debt (counting cash on hand) was $1,466,668.42, but by June 30, 1925 the state had climbed entirely out of debt and showed a net surplus of $729,261.-18.

$2,600,000—Surplus

In this connection, the records of State Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers for 1926 show the largest net surplus on hand in the history of the state of Connecticut—over $2,600,000. Furthermore, study of the records of the state treasurer for the last five years shows a healthy growth in the excess of Connecticut's income over its expenditures. Connecticut is today living within its income with an increasing margin of safety.

Evidence of the concrete realization of Connecticut's twin policies of "collect-as-you-go" and "pay-as-you-go" is shown by the fact that for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, Connecticut showed a deficit for the year of $2,039,-187.40 while one year later Connecticut showed a surplus for the year of $356,-024.44; still a year later our state surplus for the year was $1,016,300.53; for the year ending June 30, 1924 our surplus was $955,671.52; one year later it was $1,699,007.58 and for the year ending June 30, 1926 our surplus was $1,636,213.98.

No longer does Connecticut spend more than its income.

In connection with Connecticut's debt—or rather lack of it—it is interesting to note that since June 30, 1922 there have been no bond or floating debt issues and our funded debt has from that time to this remained at $16,291,100—which is more than offset by the sum of our sinking fund of $12,391,000 plus our cash on hand of $6,500,126 as of June 30, 1926.

Best Outlook of Army

It is my belief that Connecticut enjoys the best financial outlook of any state in the country. I base this belief on four factors: First, Connecticut is completely out of debt and the state can liquidate its entire outstanding obligations tomorrow and still have cash in its treasury; second, during the last five years Connecticut has shown a steadily increasing excess of income over expenditures; third, with the possible exception of a half dozen states it is extremely doubtful if any state shows such a sound trend in the relation of its income to its expenditures; fourth, our state officials, members of recent sessions of the legislature and our leading business men are becoming more and more strongly "sold" on the fundamental wisdom of the "collect-as-you-go" and "pay-as-you-go" policies.

The decided constructive financial progress which Connecticut has recently been making should appear in an even more enviable light if the 1925 and 1926 state finance figures were now available for the other 47 states. Connecticut made its best advances of all during 1925 and the first half of 1926. Connecticut came through this period with flying colors.

Sunday Morning Talk

HIS VOICE

The voice of the Lord is upon the waters; the God of glory thundereth; the Lord is upon the many waters. Ps. 29:3.

The thunder is not only poetically but instructively called, "the voice of God," since it peals from on high; it surpasses all other sounds, it inspires awe, it is entirely independent of man, and has been used on some occasions as the grand accompaniment of God's speech at Adam's sons. There is a peculiar terror in a tempest at sea. "When deep calleth unto deep," and the raging sea echoes to the angry sky.

No sight more alarming than the flash of lightning around the mast of the ship; and no sound more calculated to inspire a reverent awe than the roar of the storm. "The God of glory thundereth." Thunder is in truth no mere electrical phenomenon, but is caused by the interposition of God himself. Even the old heathen spake of Jupiter Tonans; but our modern wise men will try to have us believe in laws and forces, and anything so they may be rid of God. Electricity of itself can do nothing, it must be called and sent upon its errand, and until the Almighty God commissions it, its bolt of fire is powerless, as well might a rock of granite or a bar of iron, flying in the midst of heaven, as the lightning go without being sent by the Great First Cause. "The Lord is upon many waters." Still the Psalmist's ear hears no voice but that of Jehovah, resounding from the multitudinous and dark waters of the upper ocean of clouds and echoing from the innumerable billows of the storm tossed sea below. There is no phenomenon nature so awful as a thunder storm, almost every poet from Homer and Virgil down to Dante and Milton also down to Graham and Pollock have described it.

In the Bible we have a thunder storm, the 29th Psalm, the description of a tempest, which rising from the Mediterranean and traveling and along the inland mountains reaches Jerusalem.

To rightly appreciate the feeling of the bard, one ought to realize an Oriental storm, especially in the mountainous region of Palestine, which accompanied by the terrific thunder of the encircling mountains, by torrents of rain, like waterspouts, scatter terror on man and heart, destruction on cities and fields. Some have thought this Psalm was appointed by David to be sung in the temple in time of thunder which is not unlikely and at the close of the Psalm; "the Lord will give strength unto His people; the Lord will bless His people with peace." Why are we weak when we have divine strength to flee to? Why are we troubled when the Lord's own peace is ours?

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Elisha Lee, who has been appointed to fill the newly created position of vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad, is, a native of Chicago. He went to Boston for his special education, and was graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1892. After the fashion of so many men who have risen to high place on the Pennsylvania system, young Lee entered its employ as a roadman, and step by step, rose until, in 1909, he was selected to be superintendent of one of the subsidiary lines. Tested for two years in this position, he was brought back to the main system and made assistant to the general manager. In 1907 he was made general manager of the eastern lines and more recently he has been vice president in charge of operations of the entire system.

YOUR HEALTH

WEED IN OUR GARDEN

Albert P. Duryee, M. D., Everett, Wash. Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

For four months, off and on, I had been taking care of a young man who was suffering from attacks of pain in various parts of his body.

These attacks were due to infection from badly diseased tonsils. The germs from the tonsils would enter the blood stream and would locate one place one time and possibly the same place or another place another time.

It was impossible to do more than relieve him temporarily because his mother would not let him have his tonsils taken out. We were not permitted to pull up the weed—only pluck the seed pods as they grew—and they kept growing. Finally he became obdurate and decided to have his tonsils out anyway.

That evening when I called to see him, I knew I was in for a session. His mother looked at me in a serious and thoughtful way, and said:

"Doctor, don't you believe in God?"

"Absolutely."

She felt encouraged. Don't you believe God made everything?"

"Absolutely."

She began to take heart. "Don't you believe God knew what He was about when He made everything?"

"Absolutely."

She thought she had me, and smiled. "Then why did He make the tonsils if He didn't expect them to stay there?"

Well, I am a bit of a Yankee myself and sometimes I answer one question by asking another: "Do you believe in God?"

"Yes."

"Do you believe God knew what He was about when He made everything?"

"Yes."

"Do you believe you know His reasons for everything He does?"

"Well, No."

"You believe He makes the beautiful apple tree grow in your garden and bear the luscious fruit?"

"Yes."

"And the berry vines bear the fine berries and your rose bushes the beautiful roses."

"Yes."

"And the caterpillars on the apple trees, and the cut worms on your cabbages, and the chick weed around your pea vines?"

"Yes."

"Well, why does He make them grow there if He doesn't expect them to stay?"

"Now, the tonsils, when they become diseased are weeds in our garden and need to be plucked out to keep from choking us to death just as the chick weed needs to be plucked out to keep it from choking the pea vines to death.

"You give the plants in your garden medicine in the form of sprays and you do surgical operations upon them in the form of pruning, and all that has to be done if you want fruit good enough to sell. But when it comes to the most valuable thing God placed on this earth we say we will let it grow like the wild crab apple, and the intelligence that is given to use for our protection we allow to stagnate so that we are exposed, not only to danger but to pity.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D.

Broaden Our Nature

We need great books to take us out of ourselves, and to show us in true perspective and the future. We may find from books if we have not learned from our own observation the true heroism that is present in the pain and poverty and distress of everyday life. "Books," said Emerson, "import sympathetic activity to the moral powers. Go with mean people and you think life is mean. Then read Plutarch, and the world is a proud place, peopled with men of positive quality, with heroes and demigods standing around us, who will not let us sleep." Michael Angelo said, "When I read Homer I look to see if I am not 20 feet tall."

Stories That Recall Others

Who Was Volstead?

Speaker in addressing a number of teachers illustrated a point by telling of a questionnaire that had been submitted to students. Among the questions asked was, "Who was Volstead?"

And the answer, according to the speaker, was, "He was a great American experimenter in chemistry."

Atta Boy

Bill has been to the sesqui and was descending in an elevator filled with men at the hotel, when a woman with a small boy entered from one of the floors. Immediately all of the men doffed their hats, and the youngster looked around in amazement. As the lobby was reached the boy could not restrain himself any longer.

"We," he said, looking at his mother, "we certainly made them take off their hats, didn't we?"

A Heron Cousin

'Tis well sometimes we are not fated
To know to whom we are related.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

Pumper the Bittern looked over at Danny Meadow Mouse and Danny was a little uncomfortable. Danny imagined he saw a hungry look in those eyes of Pumper the Bittern. But perhaps that was just Danny's imagination. Be that as it may, he took care not to get within reach of that long neck.

"Did you speak to me?" croaked Pumper.

"I did," replied Danny in his funny squeaky little voice. "I said I hope you are feeling very fine today."

"Thank you," replied Pumper. "If you are feeling as good as I am you have nothing to be desired. What brought you here?"

"I came over here," replied Danny "to see who was making all that—I mean to see who it was I heard singing."

Pumper the Bittern looked very hard at Danny, and there was suspicion in those rather fierce-looking eyes. Danny saw it. He hastened to speak again. "You know, I could hear that way over across the marsh," said Danny, "and it was such a wonderful song that I just had to come over here to find out who the singer was."

Pumper the Bittern looked pleased. He was pleased. He was so pleased that he just had to hear the sound of his own voice again; and he went through that same funny-looking, distressing performance that Danny had seen before. "How did you like that?" he asked when he had finished.

"It was splendid!" cried Danny. "Yes, sir, it was splendid. I really don't see how you do it. I don't, indeed."

Pumper the Bittern looked more pleased than ever. He was flattered. Yes, sir, he was flattered. The folks who are most easily flattered are those who think they can do something that they cannot do at all. So Pumper was flattered. "You have an excellent ear," said he. "I don't believe I've seen you around here before."

"No," replied Danny, "I don't think you have. I've only been here a short time. My home is up on the Green Meadows. May I ask what family you belong to?"

"Look at me!" commanded Pumper.

"Oh!" said Danny. "You certainly look like a heron"

"Look at me! Do you really need to ask what family I belong to?"

"Well," replied Danny, "if I hadn't been told that your name was Bittern I should have said that you were a Heron."

"I am," declared Jumper. "That is to say, I belong to the Heron family. The Bitterns and the Herons are all cousins, and they all belong to the Heron family."

"Oh," said Danny, "you certainly do look like a Heron, and I am glad to know that you are one. Do you nest in trees like your cousins, the Night Herons and the Green Herons and the Great Blue Herons?"

"Not if I can help it," replied Pumper. "Mrs. Bittern and I much prefer a nest on the ground. Yes, indeed, we very much prefer a nest on the ground. My, how plump you are!"

As he said this, Pumper the Bittern took a long step toward Danny. Danny dodged behind a little bunch of marsh grass. He peeked out. Slowly but carefully Pumper the Bittern was coming his way, and in Pumper's eyes was a hungry look.

"I'm going home," said Danny and went.

WEAK EYES

Defective vision lowers efficiency. Headaches, unusual fatigue, petulant moods, impatient spirits, lack of concentration, all result from weak eyes.

Of man's five senses, sight is paramount. It is the most wonderful thing known. It can detect a speck of dust, it can take in a mountain, it can sweep the milky-way of suns and planets. It can grasp form, size, color and distance, all in a flash. No organs possessed by living creatures can compare with human eyes. Take them away and we would perish from the earth.

JOURNALISM SOCIETY HOLDS NATIONAL MEET

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Sept. 24—(AP)—[illegible] school journalists, delegates from more than 60 chapters of Quill and Scroll, national honorary society, recently organized, will meet in first annual convention here, Oct. 15.

Chapters as far east as Raleigh, N. C., as far south as Phoenix, Ariz., as far west as Great Falls, Mont., and as far north as Minneapolis, Minn., will be represented in the convention.

George H. Gallup of the University of Iowa school of Journalism, sponsor for the new organization and its national secretary and treasurer, announces several contests to determine national championships in various fields of newspaper work. The contests are in news writing, editorial work, newspaper technology, copy reading, head-line writing and advertising copy work.

The delegates will edit and publish one issue of the Daily Iowan, a student newspaper of the University of Iowa.

A feature of the convention will be the enactment of a "mysterious crime" under direction of the psychology department of the University of Iowa. Designed as a test for "nose for news," the experiment offers opportunity to reveal facts offering the best solution to the "crime."

Round table discussion conducted by journalists and teachers of national reputation, will augment the program.

Quill and Scroll was organized as a national society here, last April, and since that time many chapters have been formed in cities of the United States.

SHIPPING BOARD TRIES NEW METHODS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—Moves of the shipping world and the government agencies associated with shipping during the next few months will do much to reveal the future of the American Merchant Marine.

Two forces are converging to aid in solving the problem and to test particularly the possibility of returning the merchant fleet to private ownership.

In an effort to attract American capital, the shipping board has thrown the United States lines and the American merchant lines on the market, with the requirement that all bids be here at noon, November 8. The Merchant Marine planning committee, a group within the board, has before it the task of holding countrywide hearings to obtain recommendations for a merchant marine policy. The senate, at the suggestion of Chairman Jones of the senate commerce committee has requested this information by January 1, next year.

In its campaign to place the various lines under private operations, the board has in the last year disposed of about 250 vessels. These included the sales of the Pan American line passenger and mail service between New York and South America to the Munson Steamship line; the San Francisco to the Orient service and that between Puget Sound and the Orient to the Dollar interests.

The government is also disposing of the services between United States and South American ports, save the freight services between the Gulf and Atlantic coast to the east or that continent. The board has just decided to advertise these, hoping to withdraw entirely from the South American trade.

With the United States lines and the American Merchant lines sold, the shipping board will find itself divested of all its "cruck" services, but with about a dozen important freight services reaching the major ports of the world operated through agents.

The United States lines form a branch of the Emergency Fleet corporation and are operated directly by the government. As an evidence of the permanence in which the lines have become part of the North Atlantic trade, the board points to the sale of tickets as far as two years ahead. This service which includes the liner Leviathan, operates an express passenger and freight service from New York to Europe.

The American Merchant lines, carrying freight and passengers between American Atlantic and northern European ports, are now operated through an agent, J. P. Winchester & Company, Inc., of New York city.

MULE DRIVER TO BIG YACHTSMAN IS LIPTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 24—(AP)—Sir Thomas Lipton, noted British sportsman and yachtsman, once was driver of a mule-drawn street car on a suburban line in New Orleans.

It was when he was a young man, just out of his 'teens, said R. Lee Edwards, New Orleans yachtsman and intimate acquaintance of Sir Thomas.

"Sir Thomas has often told, with much reminiscent pleasure, of how he would walk all the way to Poydras market, in those days, for his lunch, because there he could get for a nickel the biggest piece of pie to be had for the money in New Orleans," Mr. Edwards recalled.

Mr. Edwards was one of the four members of the old Southern Yacht club of New Orleans, a pioneer in yacht racing in southern waters, who aided in reestablishing the Gulf Yachting association in 1920. The creation of the Fish class of one-design sloops by the Southern Yacht club, now the second largest in membership, was a factor in saving yacht racing from extinction upon the advent of the power boat.

Sir Thomas Lipton, on a visit to New Orleans in 1914, offered an elaborate trophy emblematic of the championship of the Gulf Yachting association, making the Southern Yacht club trustee. Ten clubs of the association, located at New Orleans, La., Mobile, Ala.; Pensacola and St. Petersburg, Fla.; Biloxi, Bay-Waveland and Pass Christian, Mississippi; St. Tammany, La.; and Houston and Corpus Christi, Texas, contest annually for the trophy. The winner retains possession until the next race.

Connecticut College

Connecticut college has this year attempted the introduction of a new course, called the art of living course. Its aim is, under guidance of several instructors, to correlate the knowledge represented by different but related fields of study with the practical and spiritual life of the individual, considered from the point of view of a cultured woman in the home. It has the aid of professional representatives in the field of law and medicine for some of its courses. This is a very popular course at college; it is open to only juniors and seniors.

All classes began Thursday. There will be ten days of probation—in which time courses may be changed or added, then the period for change of courses is at an end.

Recently the faculty authorized some changes in entrance requirements and in the distribution of degrees. These changes will go into effect with the class entering in September 1928. Students whose major subjects are in the field of psychology, education, or the social sciences (economics, sociology and business administration) will be awarded the degree of Bachelor of Science instead of that of Bachelor of Arts as heretofore. The courses in beginners Latin will be withdrawn. It will be necessary for all candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Arts to offer three units of Latin for entrance.

Algebra A, elementary algebra complete, as defined by the college entrance examination board, will be required of all students. This will be given two units' credit. As this action may affect the plans of prospective students this preliminary announcement has been sent to high school principals and heads of private preparatory schools for their guidance, as well as to all applicants.

DEMPSEY LEAVES PHILLY FOR UNKNOWN DESTINATION

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey, foes in a boxing ring last night in quest of the world's heavyweight title, with all the honors and riches accompanying it, met tonight in Dempsey's hotel as friends. Tunney called on the deposed champion, to pay his respects and say good-bye.

Dempsey, with his wife, Estelle Taylor, who joined him this afternoon, left tonight for an unnamed destination. Tunney will leave tomorrow for his New York home where he was expected to inspire a tumultous reception. Dempsey, too, will be in New York within the next few days and will probably make an announcement of his plans for the future. To regain the title lost last night and Gene Normile, his business representative, said, after the new champion's call on Dempsey representative, said, after the new champion's call on Dempsey, that a return engagement could probably be arranged.

Announcement by Tex Rickard of the attendance and gate receipts at last night's bout confirmed the new records made, both for number of persons in the stadium and the money they paid to get there.

The attendance was $125,735 of which 115,736 were paid admissions. The record of $1,000 cash customers at the Dempsey-Firpo bout in 1923 was smashed with a wide margin to spare. Gate receipts totalled $1,895,733.40, bettering the previous record of $1,626,750 at the Dempsey-Carpentier bout in 1921. Last night's golden boxing harvest was the third championship contest to attract more than one million dollars at the box office, the other being the Dempsey-Firpo clash.

Dempsey's share of the receipts was $700,000 while Tunney realized $200,000. Tax collected by the United States government was $472,333.40. The Pennsylvania boxing commission received $86,150 and the sesquicentennial got $170,000. Rickard and his associates had approximately $600,000 in the division.

A relatively small number of thousands of visitors remained in Philadelphia tonight. The exodus, started immediately after the bout last night, continued throughout the day.

HAGEN AND DIEGEL MEET TODAY IN PROFESSIONAL GOLF FINALS

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Sept. 24—(AP)—Walter Hagen tonight stood at the door of golfing fame, needing only one more triumph to win his third successive championship.

The invincible "Hage" arrived at the threshold in the ninth Professional Golf association event today with a blast of great stroking which completely smothered Johnny Farrell of Mamaroneck, N. J., in the semi-finals, six and five. Tomorrow he will pass through his final test—a thirty-six hole match against Leo Diegel of New York, who drew abreast of Hagen today after beating off a brave but belated rally on the part of Johnny Golden, veteran contender from Paterson, N. J., one up.

Hagen, still clinging to his crown in a campaign which has seen Jack Dempsey, Bill Tilden and Helen Wills yield their sceptres, faces the closing struggle an overwhelming favorite, in spite of the fact that Diegel carried him to forty holes last year at Olympia fields.

Farrel today turned upon the champion a fire of brilliant golf which could have been good enough to burn up an ordinary golf match. He was one under even fours for the day, and still met defeat five holes from home. That in itself tells the story of Hagens withering offensive.

The title holder surpassed the efforts of his youthful foe at every turn. He outdrove him by from twenty to forty yards on every tee, booming his shots down the fairway from 230 to 250 yards. His approaches almost invariably were inside those of the Mamaroneck player, and to top this exhibition, he had eleven one putt greens.

Farrell found himself two down to Hagen at the end of the morning round in spite of a fine 71, one stroke under par. All of Hagen's holes were won with birdies and all were the result of his marvelous work on the greens, bringing him home in 69.

Farrell's task was seen to be well night hopeless at the outset of the afternoon lap. Hagen broke loose with another sprint on the first two holes, winning both to become four up. He then rolled in a twelve footer for a birdie three at the twenty-second, the fourth hole of the course, and followed with a two on the next, tossing his ball into the cup with a mashie from just over the edge of the green.

From that pont on Farrell had no chance. Hagen was occasionally off the line, but it mattered not at all. At the twenty-sixth his ball was cupped in a hole in the rough, but he went to it with an unerring niblick which dropped the ball within two inches of the pin for another birdie. Thus the master of match play completed his march in seven under even fours.

Diegel vied with Hagen for the spotlight this morning with a slashing round of sixty-eight to pull away from his New Jersey opponent for a lead of five up, but Diegel could not maintain his clip on the afternoon round and barely pulled through under a closing rush by his vereran opponent. The former Canadian open champion, master of every club in his bag this morning, was seemingly master of none in the afternoon.

Diegel waded into trouble at the start of the second round, and remained with it throughout most of the last eighteen. Golden, after two birdies on the first three holes, did not even have to shoot par golf to cut steadily into the New York players lead, and reached the turn only three holes behind.

This margin prevailed until the thirty-third, where Diegel had an easy two-foot putt for a half in fours after both had been trapped near the green. His tap was too light—the ball hung on the lip—and Golden became only two down.

At the next hole victory was in sight for Diegel, with Goldens tee shot across the 155-yard stretch of tall grass soaring over the green, but Leo missed his first putt, a ten-footer, for a two, while Golden, holed his third stroke for a half and then won the thirty-fifth as Diegel became stymied.

This brought the battle to the home green, where both were short on their seconds. Golden, however, chipped up dead. Diegel was eight feet short and it appeared as if the New Jersey player might carry the fight to extra holes, but Diegel finally braced and holed the putt for a half in fours and his victory.

New Orleans Beats Dallas

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Whaley's single in the seventh scored Lingle, enabled New Orleans, Southern association champions, to conquer Dallas, the Texas league pennant winners, 1 to 0, here today, in the second game of the Dixie series.

CARDINALS CLINCH NATIONAL LEAGUE PENNANT BY WINNING FROM GIANTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals tucked away their first National league championship here today when they defeated New York by 6 to 4 after Cincinnati had lost the first game of a doubleheader in Philadelphia. It was the first championship won by a St. Louis club since the original Browns of the old American association won in 1888.

The triumph of the Cardinals in firmly concerning the elusive pennant found popular favor with Metropolitan fans as well as enthusiasts throughout the east whose sympathies have leaned towards St. Louis in its quest for its initial banner.

When the game was over the new standard bearers of the national circuit were hailed with cheers but they smiled silently, slipped across the field to the clubhouse, shaking hands and slapping each other on the back. With the exception of Pitcher Grover Alexander, outfielder Billy Southworth and Coach Killefer, being on a Major league championship team was a new experience for the St. Louis players.

About 5,000 witnessed the advent of the Cardinals to the premier honors. St. Louis players were favorites throughout the game and whenever a Cardinal rally was cut off or the Giants scored, Groans went up from the spectators. Judging the rooting, the setting resembled a gathering in St. Louis instead of New York.

Stubborn resistance was advanced by the Reds in the pennant scramble. After leading the league during a large part of the season, Cincinnati was obliged to step aside for a Cardinal challenge to peak honors and the final days of the race saw both clubs battling away on an even footing. Then Cincinnati rout, however, took form in the series with the Giants last week when they dropped two games in a row. And then extended to the mixup with the Braves when Boston made a clean sweep of a three game tussle.

The Giants rapped Flint Rhem hard in the opening inning of today's game forcing the star of the St. Louis pitching staff to give way to a pinch hitter in the second inning. Terry hit a home run with Frisch and Kelly on base. But for a great catch by Douthit on Lindstrom's drive and Mueller being out stealing, New York would have scored three more runs.

The Cardinals came right back and knocked out McQuillon, who defeated them last Sunday, in the second inning. Lester Bell doubled, took third on a wild pitch and scored on O'Farrell's infield single. Doubles by Thevenow and Toporcer, the latter a pinch batter, then tied the score.

Billy Southworth, former Giant, then sent St. Louis in front with a home run, scoring Toporcer ahead of him.

Wee Willie Sherdel, the southpaw, assumed the pitching burdens for St. Louis in the second inning and held the Giants to seven hits and one run, the tally being made as the result of a ball which bounded poorly to Hornsby.

And with the pennant within their grasp, the Cardinals played a great defensive game behind Sherdel. O'Farrell threw out three Giants attempting to steal.

Kelly's double and Tyson's single in the eight accounted for the Giants' last run. The Cards' only other productive inning besides the heavy handed second stanza was the seventh when "Sunny Jim Bottomley's triple off "Zeke" Barnes and Chick Hafey's double put over their final run. Kent Greenfield pitched the final two innings for the Giants.

SACHEMS VS. YANTIC A. A. AT DUWELL FIELD

Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock standard time, on the Duwell field, the Sachems of Norwich will cross bats with the Yantic A. A. This game will be the final one of the season, and sense, both teams having won one game, and will decide the City championship. The field is being put in sharp for this game and a record crowd is expected, as this will prove to be one of the best games as ever witnessed on this field, as both teams seem to be evenly matched. Yantic A. A. was the team which won second place in the Twi league, and held the C. B. boys to a 1 to 1 tie score. The Sachems have been playing good ball all season winning nine games out of twelve starts, and was one of the teams that gave Taftville A. A. such a close one in the early part of the season, holding them to four hits and losing out on the final inning by a 2 to 1 score. The lineups for Sunday's game will probably be; Yantic A. A.—A. Sharkie c; Gil Jones or J. Lanphere p; Sweet 1b; Earl Hoxie 2b; H. Lanphere 3b; R. Gibbs ss; with J. Wheeler, Marchand, and Standish in the outfield. The Sachems will lineup in the following order—Burke 1b; Leo Mann 2b J. Keenan lf; J. Tombari c; Curtin 3b, Jab Burns rf; Edwards cf; N. Rankin ss; with either Couture or J. Green on the mound. Hank Morin has been selected to get the game started at 2:30 sharp, while J. Kane will rule on the bases.

CLEVELAND'S PENNANT CHANCES ARE FAST DIMMING

CLEVELAND, Sept. 24—(AP)—Cleveland's pennant hopes flickered today when Rommel outpitched Uhle and Philadelphia won the first game of a scheduled double header, 3 to 1. The second game was called at the end of the second inning because of darkness caused by a heavy downpour of rain. A double header will be played tomorrow.

Rommel and Uhle each allowed nine hits, but the Philadelphia hurler kept his hits scattered than Uhle. The visitors bunched a double by Jenkins and singles by Hale and Simmons for their two runs in the third for enough runs to win. Philadelphia backed up Rommel with three double plays.

WESTERLY WINS OPENING GAME OF FOOTBALL SEASON

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Sept. 24—The football team of the Westerly high school met and defeated the players of the Colt Memorial high of Bristol, R. I., at the Westerly Athletic Field, off High street, in their first game of the season, on Friday afternoon, by the score of 25 to 0. It seemed doubtful in the morning, owing to the frequent and heavy showers that the game would be delayed but a telephone call from Bristol gave assurance that the Colt players had made all plans to come on Friday and could not consider postponement until Saturday. Coach Rogers with the sanction of Principal Charles E. Mason of the Westerly high school gave Athletic Director Rhuland assurance that if the Colt players came the game would be played.

The scoring was made by a touchdown by Red Smith on a fumble. Sale-Jones playing fullback scored two touchdowns and Capt. Turco the other who kicked his goal.

Next game next Friday with Central high at Westerly.

ST. LOUIS CELEBRATES THE WINNING OF PENNANT

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 24.—(AP)—With a great roar of whistles, bombs, horns and other noise-makers, including the human voice, St. Louis late today burst into its most joyous and wholehearted celebration since Armistice day eight years ago.

The news of the Cardinals' pennant clinching victory at New York had barely been announced by the radio than it was broadcast by the ensuing uproar.

Faster than telephone or telegraph could transmit, the news spread through the downtown district that the Cardinals had brought to St. Louis its first Major league pennant in 35 years and a world's series would be played here, Oct. 5-6-7, probably against the New York Yankees.

PHILLIES KNOCK REDS OUT OF PENNANT RACE

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 24—(AP)—The Phillies eliminated the Cincinnati Reds as a possibility for the National league pennant today by splitting a double header with the Reds.

The Quakers won the first game, 9 to 2, and lost the second, 8 to 4. Cauldie Willoughby held Cincinnati's batsmen in check in the first game while the Phillies clouted two Red pitchers out of the box. Art Nehf of the Reds held them at the finish.

Knight pitched the entire game for the Phillies in the second contest, but was ineffective. Luque started for the Reds but was replaced by Lucas in the sixth, although the former was credited with the victory. Hargrave hit a home run in this game with two on base. Score:

LONDON TRYING FOR TUNNEY-DEMPSEY FIGHT

LONDON, Sept. 25.—(AP)—The Daily Express says that the syndicate owning the Wembley stadium sent messages to Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey Friday inviting them to fight there on the evening of the next Derby day, early in June.

The New York correspondent of the Express quotes Tunney as saying that his terms for a fight at Wembley would be a purse equivalent to which Dempsey received for the fight Thursday night.

Mrs. Smith Wins Title

SUMMIT, N. J., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Mrs. Courtland Smith of Glenridge, N. J., today won the New Jersey women's state golf championship over the Canoe Brook Country club course by defeating Miss Jane Brooks of Englewood, N. J., up and 6 to play.

STELLAR BASEBALL ATTRACTIONS ARE SCHEDULED FOR OVER THE WEEK-END

The Fall baseball season is now in full swing in this section of the state with many agries being played between teams composed largely of minor league players who have finished the league seasons. This week-end will be brim full of good baseball, probably the best ball seen this season. The Riverview-Taftville game holds the center of the stage for today while on Sunday interest is more or less divided between the Taftville-J. B. Martin game at the Velvet Mill grounds and the Moosup-Valley Falls series at the Carpet grounds in Moosup. These three contests should furnish fans of eastern Connecticut choice bits of baseball as practically every lineup will include two or more minor league players.

Riverview-Taftville Game.

The game that attracts the attention of baseball fans in the eastern part of the state for today will be the clash between the Taftville A. A. and the Riverview club in the fourth game of the series between these local teams. Riverview needs this game to clinch the series while Taftville needs it to even the series. Riverview has won two games from Taftville while the Taftville team took the opening game.

With the series at stake neither team is conceding anything to the other. Manager Troiand said last evening that he would put in the field today one of the strongest clubs that had yet played at Riverview and that he was almost certain of victory. Taat is saying quite a mouthful when it comes to talking baseball, one of the most uncertain games ni the sport line. When asked what he based his statement on he said that he was depending on his pitching staff as well as a strong hitting club. Troiand said that his pitcher would be Shaw. Who this Shaw really is in real life is uncertain but it thought that the crafty pilot of the Taftville team has an ace up his sleeve.

The minor league rosters fail to reveal any Shaw who is a pitcher and it is thought that Troiand is throwing in a dark-horse. From things said and talked of during the week up in Taftville many fans have a strong hunch that Shaw is none other than Hughie Canavan masquerading under an assumed name. Troiand, when asked point-blank is Shaw was Hughie Canavan, would neither affirm or deny but practically admitted that the name Shaw didn't mean a thing. Others see mto think that Shaw is Mitchell of the eastern league but nobody outside or Troiand knows for certain the identity of the mysterious "Shaw."

If Shaw is Hughie Canavan, and Troiand said his pitcher was a portsider, the fans may rest assured that today's game will be a sweet baseball contest. Local fans all know Canavan and know what he can do from previous work on local diamonds. It is hoped that Shaw does prove to be Canavan. Besides Shaw" Manager Troiand has Frankie Farrell for second base, Tommy Sipples for the outfield and Barry or Smith for short, two Eastern leaguers. This strengthens the hitting power of the Taftville club to a considerable degree.

Paul Zemke, pilot or the Riverview club is resting easy with perfect confidence that he can pull out a winner, and this talk about Canavan and the mysterious Shaw bothers him not in the least. The only addition to his club is the signing of Joe Faber for the second base berth. He will have Johnny Tillman for the pitching duties along with Tony West. Zemke is uncertain who he well start on the mound but the bet is that Johnny will start as he has proved himself able to hold Taftville while West was beaten in his only start against that club. It's a safe bet that this game will prove the feature of the series. The lineups:

Taftville A. A.—Shaw p, Eccleston c; Cardie 1b; Farrell 2b; Verrington 3b; Barry or Smith ss; Sipples lf; Lloyd Jarvis cf; Dona rf.

Riverview—West or Tillman p; Belair c; "Bigger" Farrell 1b; Joe Faber 2b; Liberty 3b; Normandin ss; Clabby lf; Moore cf; Dugas rf.

Taftville-J. B. Martin Game

Sunday afternoon at the J. B. Martin grounds will be the scene of the third and deciding game of the little world series of Taftville when the Taftville A. A. representing the upper part of the town clash with the Velvetmen who represent the lower part of the town.

Coach Nafie has put the J. B. Martin boys throug hthree stiff workouts this week and is confident that his boys will come out on the long end of the score. Taftville A. A. has never won a championship series from the Velvetmen and Mgr. Troiand says that regardless of the cost he is going to be the first T. A. A. manager to give the uptown folks a championship team. Mgr. Troland has not made known his lineup for Sunday's game but it is rumored that he has secured the services of two top notch ball players of the state. Hughie Canavan of the American association and well known in this vicinity, is slated to pitch, while Joe Faber of the York Penn. league will cover short and no doubt has a few other semi-pro stars to fill in the weak spots.

The J. B. Martin boys will lineup the same as in the second game with exception of Joe Blair, well knpwn athlete will catch, replacing Jim Murphy, regular catcher, who is laid up. Lenning, the be-spectacled southpaw will pitch. E. Murphy 1st. C. Ducas or T. Murphy 2nd; F. Gley 3rd and the youthful finsh, C. Krauss ss. In the outfield will be W. Gley, Lefty Ducas and J. Joubert, and F. Smith. E. Joubert, Lemieux, O. Pepin and U. Pepin, utility.

A large crowd is expected to be on hand and police protection has been secured.

John H Murphy and Tommy Simeox will officiate.

Moosup-Valley Falls Game.

One of the best drawing cards of the Sunday baseball programme will be the game at the Carpet grounds at Moosup between Henry Lourhen's Moosup team and the Valley Falls club of Rhode Island. The Valley Falls club is not a stranger to eastern Connecticut fans, having played and beaten the J. B. Martin team a week ago. Tom Costigan, big league scout and neat picker as ever roamed the timbers in search of ivory, is the pilot of the Valley Falls team. Costigan knows a ball player and has yet to pick a dud. His team is one of the classiest of the semi-pros in little Rhody.

He comes to Moosup with the intention of pitching Noonan, a youngster, who has shown the goods and who is almost ready for big time. Peloquin, former Holy Cross hurler is also on Costigan's roster along with a tough bunch of stickers and a great defensive club.

Manager Loughran saw Valley Falls trim the Velvetmen and took notice and then got busy in rounding up a real baseball club. The Eastern League closed last week and Lougran started to pick and choose. He landed Comisky, Hartford's third sacker, Agnew, also of Hartford and Spiller. For his pitching department he is planning his hopes on Leroy Fenney, who looks pretty good to him. Fenney is mounting the ladder in baseball and it is predicted that he will land with a big league club in a few short seasons. Feeney pitched brilliantly for Colby college and then went to Portland, Me., where he won 31 out of 34 starts in the New England League. His brilliant work attracted the attention of Rube Marquard of the Providence Grays and Fenney will go to them next season. Loughran doesn't clai mto be the equal of Costigan in picking ball players but he feels that he can show the big leaguer ivory hound something to make him sit up and take notice.

The lineups:

Moosup—Feeney p, Liberty c Frechette 1b, Doyle 2b, Kendricks ss, Comisky 3b, Agnew lf, Streit cf, Allard rf, Spiller rf.

Valley Falls—Noonan or Peloquin p Murphy c, Tierney 1b, Curley 2b, McBeth ss, Pierce 2b, Enright lf, McSherry cf, Whalen rf.

PROFESSIONAL FOURSOME AT NORWICH GOLF CLUB ON SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Seldom does eastern Connecticut see many of the noted golf players of the country on the home links, but Sunday at the Norwich Golf club the golf enthusiasts will have an opportunity to see four of the country's best professionals in action. Their names have been featured in press reports of professional golf tournaments for a number of years and to the readers of the golf news they are no strangers.

The foursome that will tee off at 3 o'clock (s. t.) Sunday afternoon at the Norwich Golf club will be Tom Kerrigan of the Siwanoy club, one of the best match-play professionals in the game today; Cyril Walker, former American open champion and perhaps the best known of the quartette; Geo. McLean of Grassy Sprain and a former Metropolitan champion which means he has beaten the nation's best; Jimmie Donaldson of Fenimore club of Chicago and winner of the Chicago title and also a holder of the Scottish title. Such a galaxy of golfing talent is seldom seen on courses outside the metropolitan districts and their performance on Sunday will be well worth the slight admisaion fee and will be an afternoon well spent.

How this foursome will be divided is uncertain but no matter how the pairings are made it will be practically an even affair. To add zest to the match and to give the foursome something to shoot at and make it a sporty proposition a cash prize has been offered for the breaking of the course record. The present course record is held by Sam Wilcox, local member of the club, a youngster who has shown that with more seasoning in tournament play will go a long way in golf. Even the mighty Hagen and the premier stylist Johnny Farrell were unable to break the record. Hagen's best was a 73, one above par while Farrell was far from the mark. A 71 on the Norwich course is mighty fine golf and a 70 over the new course would be something to wonder at.

The match is being played for the benefit of George Falconer, former professional at the club, who is now suffering a period of ill health. George is greatly beloved by the members of the Norwich Golf club and his cheery presence on the course has been missed during the summer months. Every member of the Norwich Golf club and in fact everyone who knows George is hoping for his speedy and complete recovery.

The foursome will be entertained during their stay in Norwich by Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox. The professionals will be Dr. Wilcox's guests at dinner on Sunday and also at luncheon.

GAME CALLED AT 3:15 (D.S.T.)

Here's what I like in a cigarette-plenty of punch without any punishment!

"I don't like namby-pamby cigarettes. Nor a T. N. T. smoke.

"I like 'em strong and able, but not rough . . . if you get what I mean.

"A two-fisted cigarette with a college education.

"That's what I found in O. G's

"As gentle to the throat as a miser to his ducats.

"But, Oh, boy! what a wallop of satisfaction it packs behind its gentle ways!"

THE SOCIAL CORNER

HOPE IS THE DREAM OF A PERSON AWAKE

The Sabbath Morning

With silent awe I hail the sacred morn
That slowly wakes while all the fields are still!
A soothing calm on every breeze is borne;
A graver murmur gurgles from the rill;
And echo answers softer from the hill;
And sweeter sings the linnet from the thorn;
The skylark warbles in a tone less shrill,
Hail, light serene! hail sacred Sabbath morn!
The rooks float silent by in airy drove;
The sun a placid yellow luster throws;
The gales that lately sighed along the grove
Have hushed their downy wings in dead repose;
The hovering rack of clouds forgets to move—
So smiled the day when the first morn arose!

—By John Leyden.

Father Was Right

When I was adolescent;
In other words—a Youth;
I wasn't acquiescent
To much advice: in truth,
My eyes with glamor glistened,
I dreamed of days ahead,
And very seldom listened
To things my father said.

I thought, "Oh, he's old-fashioned,
He doesn't understand
The hopes of youth impassioned.
Oh what I've dreamed and planned.
Poor dad, his mind is lorv,
And narrow in its scope;.
He's such a dull old fogy
I scorn his line of dope."

I'm older now, behold me,
Admitting frankly, quite,
That what my father told me
Was pretty nearly right!
Had I but harked to Father
I would have dodged, I know,
Much loss and fret and bother,
Much in toil and pain and woe.

Yet I'm not much regretting
I was a heedless elf,
For I've had fun in getting Experience, myself!

Revolutionary Tea

There was an old lady liver over the sea,
And she was an Is'and Queen.
Her daughter lived off in a new country.
With an ocean of water between:
The old lady's pockets were full of gold,
But never contented was she,
So she called on her daughter to pay her a tax.
Of three pence a pound on her tea.

"Now mother, dear mother," the daughter replied.
"I shan't do the thing you ax.
I'm willing to pal a fair price for the tea
But never the three penny tax."
"You shall," quoth the mother, and redden'd with rage.
"For you're my own daughter you see,
And sure, 'tis quite proper the daughter should pay
Her mother a tax on her tea."

And so the old lady her servants call-up.
And packed off a budget of tea;
And eager for three pence a pound,
She put in enough for a large familie.
She order'd her servants to bring home the tax,
Declaring her child should obey,
Or old as she was, and almost woman grown,
She'd half whip her life away.

The tea was conveyed to the daughter's door.
All down by the ocean's side,
And the bouncing girl pour'd out every pound
In the dark and boiling tide;
And then she called out to the Island Queen.
"O mother, dear mother," quoth she,
"Your tea you may have when 'tis steep'd enough,
But never a tax from me."

ANN TENNA'S PEPPER HASH

Dear Editor and Corner Friends: Have any of the members ever sent in to the Social Corner page the old, old poem entitled Good Blake and Harry Gill? I am trying to have it in print (by request.) I have heard my mother repeat it many times.

Kitty Lou: Did you know you had sent me the second pin ball—I thought perhaps by mistake. Am I right?

Eclipse: Glad to know you liked the poem about Uncle David's Summer Boarder.

A Pussy's Friend: In answer to your question to know how many of the sisters hate cats etc. I will take my oath that I was never known to hate any dumb brutes, especially cats. I joined the Band of Mercy in 1895 and have always been kind to all harmless living creatures and tried to protect them from cruel usage.—I have no kitty now, but there is one that comes here, and I have fed her all summer. She has always caught snakes and carries them into the house at home. Now she brings them to my door. I can't say I am very fond of snakes and do not like to kill them. What shall I do with that cat? I need advice.

Here is a recipe for the Social Corner scrap book—I make it every year.

Pepper Hash: 12 green peppers, 12 red peppers, 12 onions (large ones) chopped together. Pour boiling water over them and let come to a boil. Drain, add a pint of vinegar, a cup of sugar and two tespoons of salt. Boil all together until cooked and brittle. Put into small jars and seal.

THINKING OF THANKSGIVING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It is almost the first of October, and that means Thanksgiving isn't so far away. I am sending a simple Thanksgiving menu as follows:

Oyster Cocktail in Grapefruit
Cuban Soup — Cheese Crackers
Roast Duck — Cranberry Jelly
Mashed Potatoes
Carrot and Turnip in Cream Sauce
Buttered Cauliflower
Celery Curls — Mixed Pickles — Olives
Cucumber Salad — Chiffonade
Cracker Pudding — Foamy Sauce
Pumpkin Pie — Whipped Cream
Grilled Nuts — Bonbons
Coffee

If any of the sisters would like recipes for any of these dishes would gladly send them in.

Washing Soap: Here is a wonderful washing soap. 10 pounds of white bar soap, 2 gallons of water, 5 pounds of washing soda, 4 ounces of borax and 1 ounce salts tartar in a little water.

Cut the soap in slices, place in water, boil until dissolved; then add washing soda, borax and salts tartar, pour into a box or mold. This makes 25 pounds of soap which has no equal.

This makes the best washing soap but is suitable for toilet purposes. It will not injure the most delicate complexion.

Soap Jelly for Washing Flannels: Shave 1-2 pound of soap into a saucepan and pour over it one quart of boiling water. Boil until soap is melted. Pour into a bowl and when cold you will find it a stiff jelly.

ETHELYN.

VARIOUS KINDS OF RECIPES

Dear Corner Members: Put these in your recipe book to try sometime if you are too busy canning now.

A Good Supper Dish: 1 can crab meat, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 jar cream, 1 can tomato soup, 1 tablespoon butter.

Heat the soup and cream, add the crab meat and butter also salt and pepper. This is very appetizing on toast.

A Good Pudding: 1 quart blueberries, 1 loaf stale bread, 1-2 package gelatine, 1 1-2 cups brown sugar, juice of 1 lemon, 3-4 cup boiling water, little pepper and salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Cut the crust from the bread and break into small pieces. Place in a good sized dish, soak the gelatine in some juice of the berries, dissolve in the boiling water, add the lemon juice, sugar and seasoning and the quart of blueberries. Mix well, pour over the broken bread, seeing that all the bread is covered. Place on ice for several hours and when set turn out on a platter surrounded by stiffly whipped cream.

Cloverleaf Buns: I use my ever ready dough. Place small biscuits together in a muffin pan. The biscuit is made the size of marbles, when molded so that each one will occupy no more than one-third the space in a muffin pan. Allow the buns to become very light. Bake in a hot oven 15 minutes.

Oat Meal Bread: 1 cup milk, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup rolled oats, 1-4 cake yeast, softened in 1-4 cup luke warm water, 2 1-2 cups of white flour.

Scald the liquid, add the salt, pour over the rolled oats, cool slowly, let stand 30 minutes. Add yeast and sifted flour, knead and let rise to double its bulk. Shape into loaves and let rise to double its bulk. Bake from 50 to 60 minutes.

Jelly From Apple Parings: Place skins on cover with cold water, boil until apple parings are soft, then place in jelly bag and let drain. Add 3-4 cup of sugar to 1 cup of juice. I would boil slowly at first, your jelly will be richer if you let it stand one month.

An Attractive Dessert: 3 bananas (sliced) 1-2 pound of fresh fig bars. Whip 1-2 pint of cream, to which add 2 tablespoons of confectioners sugar and 1 teaspoon of vanilla. Mix with bananas and fig bars. This serves six people.

Plums a Substitute for Olives: 4 quarts of green plums, 7 teaspoons of mustard seed, 4 quarts vinegar, 3 tablespoons salt.

Place the plums in a stone jar. Place salt, vinegar and seed on stove, bring to a boiling point, remove from stove and pour on plums. When cold put in pars and cover tightly.

ORIGINAL RECIPES WITH MOLASSES

Dear Sisters: Here are several original ways of using molasses:

Cottage Molasses Cake: 1-2 cup of shortening, 1-2 cup each of molasses and brown sugar, two eggs, 1 1-2 cup of flour, 1-2 teaspoon each of salt and soda, 1-3 teaspoon ginger, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon and 1-4 teaspoon all spice, 1 cup raisins, 1-2 cup nutmeats, 1 teaspoon lemon extract.

Sift flour, soda, salt and spices together about three times, then add shortening worked in with the tips of the fingers. Add sugar and molasses, beat up eggs lightly, stir them in the cake, raisins, meats and extract. Bake in a loaf pan for 1 3-4 hours at 275 degrees. Cover with caramel icing.

Molasses Pudding: 2 1-2 cups of bread crumbs, 1-2 cup of shortening, 1-2 cup molasses, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup sweet milk, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon cloves, 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-4 teaspoon ginger, 1 egg.

Mix all together adding egg before raisins so raisins will not fall.

Steam 2 1-4 hours, serve hot with liquid sauce.

Molasses Cup Cakes: 1-2 cup sugar, 1-2 cup molasses, 1-2 cup cooked squash, 2-3 cup of sour cream, 2 cups of flour, 1 teaspoon soda, nutmeg and cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons shortening (melted). Sifted flour, salt, baking powder and flour then add other ingredients.

Bake for 25 to 30 minutes at 375 degrees F. Place a marshmallow on each cake before they are finished. Bake about eight minutes.

Soft Molasses Cookies: 2 cups of sugar, 1-2 cup molasses, 1 egg, 1-2 tablespoon ginger and cinnamon, 4 level teaspoons soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup boiling coffee, 7 level teaspoon baking powder. I use about 5 to 6 cups of flour according to what flour you use.

Grandmother Gingerbread: 1 1-2 cup of molasses, 1-2 cup boiling water, 1-4 cup melted shortening, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon ginger, 1-4 teaspoon cloves, 3 1-4 cups of flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt.

Mix all together, bake in a sheet at 325 degrees.

Sometimes I make a Dutch Apple cake of this by dividing the batter and sprinkling apple between with sugar and cinnamon.

Tutti Frutti Pudding: 1-2 cup molasses, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup butter milk or sour milk, 1 cup shortening (you can use suet but if you use suet chop it fine) 3 cups flour, 1 egg, 1 pound chopped raisins, 1-4 cup citron (chopped,) 1 teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg, 1-4 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon soda.

Sift flour, salt, soda, spices, 2 times, then mix with the remainder and steam 4 hours. Serve with creamed butter and maple sugar.

Molasses Dessert: Scald 1 quart of milk, thicken with 4 tablespoons of flour, 6 tablespoons of corn meal, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup of butter, 1 cup of prunes, 1-2 cup cocoanut, 1 cup of molasses, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon cloves, 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg, 2 quarts of cold milk. Mix thoroughly and bake 3 1-4 to 4 hours at 325 degrees F.

Stir this occasionally and I know you will be pleased with it. Serve either hot or cold with whipped cream and maple sugar, about 8 tablespoons of maple sugar to a pint of cream.

Golden Molasses Cake: 2 cups shortening, 2 cups molasses, 2 eggs, 2 oranges, 1 cup orange juice, 2 third cup of water, 4 cups of flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons soda.

Sift flour, salt, soda together, 2 times. Then work in shortening, add molasses, juice of orange and the grated rind of one of them adding the egg last.

This makes two loaves. Bake in oven 350 degrees F.

Molasses Fig Pudding: 1 cup bread crumbs, 1-2 pound suet (put through chopper,) 1 cup figs chopped, 2 cup raisins chopped, 2 lemons grated rind and juice, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 tablespoon molasses, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, spice to taste. I use 1 teaspoon of cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon cloves, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon soda.

Sift soda, salt, spices, flour and then mix all together. Steam 3 hours, serve hot with the following sauce Beat 2 eggs separately then put together, beat again, add 1 teaspoon of sherry wine.

Molasses Layer Cake: 1 cup molasses, 1-2 cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons shortening (melted), 1-2 cup of hot strong coffee, 2 cups pastry flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoon mixed spices, 1-2 cinnamon, 1-2 nutmeg and 1-4 cloves, 1 egg beaten lightly.

Sift flour, salt, soda, spices together 3 times, then work in shortening, add coffee, brown sugar and molasses. Lastly beat in the egg, after the egg has been beaten separately.

Beat all together. Bake in layer cake pans about 20 to 25 minutes at 375 degrees F.

Put the layers together with the following mocha filling:

Whip stiff one pint of cream, add 1 cup powdered sugar, and one tablespoon of strong coffee. Spread thinly between layers and heap up on top.

TOODLES

To the Editor and Members of Social Corner: Was glad to read the letter written by A Friend of Pussy. Almost every one likes cats and the world would not be fit to live in without cats to watch for destructive rats and mice.

Mary France has a cat 12 years old and he has been a Social Corner member all his life. He has helped entertain at the parties several times. Even Practical Polly and Olive forget all dignity and scream with laughter, as Wiltwyck can testify, when this cat, Toodles, entertains his Social Corner friends. In his way he says, "I love everybody and every body loves me," and this is the motto of his life. Always pleasant to his friends.

Kochie: Wish I could have gone with you to the Wigwam. The stormy weather was unfortunate at that time.

Joan: Your method of using minute tapioca seems good. Will you please give a recipe for two crust lemon pie. —the filling for it.

Iva Lynn: Have looked for a letter from you.

Suppose all of you know about the stainless steel knife, one of the best utensils, as it does not stain the hand like the ordinary kitchen knife.

SENSIBLE CATS

Dear Sisters: I have been interested in the letters telling about cats. Some are very intelligent and show quite a bit of common sense. I know a cat in her tenth year who has had two families a year for several years and was always cross to other cats and kittens when she was taking care of her family. She has a daughter living in the same house with her.

Polly the daughter had her family in a nice cozy place. Molly the mother could find no satisfactory place so went in with Polly. Molly did not have milk enough to feed her last family and it looked as if she thought Polly would have enough for both families so went with her to make sure. The old cats are very friendly playing together with the young, sleeping together in an almost loving fashion, something Molly never would do before. We think she is very sensible. If any one can beat that let us hear about it.

Aunt Jerusha: What about your cats?

Best wishes for all from

SISTER BARBAR.

TO MAKE WASHING EASIER

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I am one of the old writers and ought to write more than I do—if I can be of any help I always enjoy reading the letters. I liked what Pussy's Friend said about cats, for I think they are the most affectionate animals living if they are used kindly. Cannot expect it of anything starved and frightened. I am a friend to cats and they are useful in keeping off rats and mice.

Now about piece bags. White cotton piece bags hung in the linen chest are a great convenience. Have them made with a string to draw from both sides. Mark in large letters in ink, cotton and linen sundries, dress pieces, old linen, old silk, etc.

The following may be a help to some one. To make soap to do away with rubbing, dissolve five bars of soap in four gallons of soft water, one and three fourths pounds of sal-soda and three pounds of borax. Stir while cooling. Use one cup full to make suds to soak clothes in. Wring out and put into the boiler. Use same quanity of soap for boiling the same. Best regards to all the sisters.

HELENA.

FAVORABLE TO CATS

Dear Editor and Members of the Social Corner: It is quite a while since I have written to the Corner page but I have read with interest the letters written by different members for and against cats.

I will say to begin with that a person who does not love cats is no friend of mine. When well kept they are dainty and very neat in their habits, wash their faces and paws after eating, like a nice soft bed and are very loving and companionable. They will wait for hours on a porch or step for the return of their home folk, then rub around and purr their welcome as much as to say I am glad you have come home. They are not treacherous or sly or selfish. Watch the mother cat sit for hours waiting for some game to bring home to her baby kittens, when she is hungry after her long wait and needs the game far more than her kitties do. Then a cat is encouraged to catch a mouse and keep it alive as long as she pleases, when if she caught a bird she would be scolded or whipped. It hurts the mouse to be caught as much as the bird and how is the cat to know which is best to kill? To use a little common sense with your cat would be wisdom and you will come to the conclusion that it is an easy matter to be mistaken. I am happy in saying that my home would lack much if no cats were allowed within its doors. Long live the cats and more of them.

Hope we shall hear some more about it.

CARING FOR SILVERWARE

Dear Social Corner Folks: The good old summertime has come and gone since last I wrote you. I have read with much interest of the picnics that have been held and had the pleasure of attending the one at Twice Twenty's. Now, I am looking forward to meeting with the East Killingly sisters. I wish to say to Last Rose of Summer that I have not heard a word from my knife that disappeared so mysteriously at the G. A. R. hall in Danielson. I think it has gone with Calla Lily's book. Realizing my inability (owing to my tender years) to care for my belongings, I did not take a knife to Twice Twenty's. There is no loss without some small gain and I have less silver to clean.

To many housekeepers the polishing of the silver is a task to be dreaded. One silver polish after another is tried, hoping to find something that will lighten the work, but when each piece must be cleaned and polished separately, it takes time and labor. A much easier and quicker way is to put the silver that needs cleaning in an aluminum or enameled pan and cover with a suds made by dissolving a tablespoon of gold dust washing powder in two quarts of boiling water. Set the pan on the stove and allow the water to boil ten minutes, then lift out the pieces with a wire spoon and rinse them in a pan of hot water. Rub each piece briskly as you dry it. Silver cleaned in this way will look like new and there is no danger of rubbing off the silver plating.

A good way to keep the extra silver, that is used only upon special occasions, is in chamois or cotton flannel cases, stitched in pockets just wide enough for the knives, forks or spoons they are to hold. Large pieces may be wrapped in cotton flannel, if you do not have a bag for each one. Silver kept in this way will not get scratched and a few pieces of camphor gum in the box with it will help to keep it bright.

Rural Aunty: Come to E. K. and bring some johnnycakes.

Airy: Hope to see you soon.

GRAPE JELLY OR MARMALADE

Dear Editor and Sisters: I will try and write a few lines as I have just been reading Saturday's Bulletin and did not like to see the page lacking writers. Have been very busy making grape jelly or marmalade. I will tell you how I make mine and it always comes out good. I pick over the grapes and wash them and put them into a lined kettle with a very little water and then put them on the stove and let them come to a boil, stirring them often. Then I take my potato masher and press them while they are cooking. Then as soon as they get soft I put them in a colander, making sure the holes are small so the seeds can't get through. Then I take a large spoon and keep stirring them and get all the juice out. Then I put them back on the stove and let come to a boil, cook a few minutes and then heat sugar in oven sweetening to taste as some like it sweeter then others. Boil about 15 minutes and then it is ready for the glasses. This is a very easy way to make it and you don't have to put it in a cloth or put your hands in it as they used to do the old fashioned way. Try it and see if you don't like the way it is done. Have not been able to get to many of the picnics this summer but am going to try to get to East Killingly in October.

Last Rose of Summer: Hope to see you at E. K.

Kochie: I think you are getting to be in great demand even the ladies are asking you to come and see them. Saw where there was one who had come to see you. I suppose the next thing we hear you will be changing your situation. Also saw where you won a prize at Pachaug fair. Pretty good.

Primrose: Did you get my letter? Hope to see you soon.

Olga: Will try and write you a line soon. Saw where you have attended quite a few picnics this summer. Hope to see you Oct. 7 at E. Killingly.

Where in the world has Historian gone? Why so silent?

Free Air expects to start back south now in a few days. Hope she will not forget the Social Corner and write a line.

Success to the Corner.

DOROTHY BRADFORD'S TRIPS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: No doubt you have heard of the woman who went to the hospital and demanded an operation because so many in her circle were having them it seemed to be the thing to do and so as I have read of the lovely trips our sisters have taken, I felt I would like to contribute something along that line.

Some few weeks ago I was up among the rugged old hills of Connecticut for a few days and also visited friends in Massachusetts spending two days and one night at that delightful little summer resort Lake George.

One need not sigh for a "lodge in some east wilderness" if they are privileged a cottage on this dear lake where everything breathes of quiet and rest. There are I think over 40 cottages, nearly surrounding the lake, all occupied and mostly by business people from the cities who wish their families to go there and enjoy the many privileges not accorded them at most shore resorts. A large hotel is also found there and seemingly filled to capacity. A quiet little hamlet is close by where is found both church and school, also market and grocery to supply the wants of the inner man, and other stores and all that go to make up a most attractive place. At bathing hours the placid water is enlivened by bevies of young people who in their vari-colored bathing suits make merry with their sports. All too soon came the time for our departure and then our host took us in his auto for a delightful drive over hill and through dale arriving at our destination at twilight and supper time.

Last week it again was my pleasure to enjoy another trip with friends from Little Rhody. We motored to Plymouth, Mass., where we visited the national monument to the Pilgrim forefathers, dedicated 1889. This is a massive structure of granite from the Maine quarries, towering 81 feet and overlooking many miles of country. Different parts of this monument were contributed by the different states and private individuals. The total cost was $150,000, subscriptions coming from all over the world. As our time at Plymouth was very limited we could only visit a few places, but went to the portico now covering the famous Plymouth Rock, where we looked upon the little rock with a big history. From Plymouth we journeyed on to Cape Cod canal, saw some ships and many other things of interest, but our limited time kept us going and we had to be satisfied with a fleeting glance of many things. We saw many cranberriey pickers harvesting the large crop of berries, but were told that the great forest fires that have swept through that region damaged the berry crop to a great extent. We bought some berries however, and so with our Thanksgiving turkey we can have the real thing. We could write on and on of the many interesting things we saw, but time and space forbid. The following day we attended church in an old historic church of 251 years standing and enjoyed a splendid sermon. There was a large congregation, and much interest was shown in church work. Now with many of our sisters I have many pleasant thoughts of the summer and what it has brought to me, and certainly after visiting Plymouth and reading on the monument those historic names are proud to sign.

AUNTY NO. 1'S PICNIC AND TRIPS

Dear Social Corner Members and Friends: Words cannot express my appreciation and thanks to you all for what you did the day of the picnic here at my house, the generous contributions. When I was asked how much to charge for the dinner, I frankly said nothing. I don't want anything of the kind done, all are welcome to what there is. Then to my surprise to be presented with that gift. All I would say or do made no difference. So I thank you all most heartily and I want to thank all who helped in any way to make the occasion a success. Especially the sisters that helped me in serving. They all had to work hard to feed that crowd, and I hope they all were served alike. I feel that the Lord approved of it all, for we couldn't have had a better day for it. And so many desired to come, and some from so far off. Such a privilege to meet Balsam Fir. I was in hopes Potlatch might drop down by airplane. I believe its been prophesied that there would be some come in that way some day. I guess they came every way except by air.

To all those who expressed their wish for my health will say I was some tired but none the worse. I attended prayer meeting Thursday evening and a business meeting, social and shower combined Friday evening. While there was a good number here, I missed so many of the older members who are in the habit of attending.

Hopeful visited me for more than a week and was here for the picnic. While here we decided to visit cemeteries where her relatives are lain. One day we started for Tolland by auto via Willimantic and Coventry. We stopped at the old homestead of Hopeful's grandparents, the house now owned by a wealthy person in Rockville and the house not occupied. We viewed the premises and valied ourselves of some lovely graventine apples. It seemlike going back home for a while. It has been 40 years since I was there. Then we proceeded down hill, up hill, across roads and almost across lots, finally ending up in the cemetery, where we met an old friend; a cousin of Hopeful's. After decorating the graves, we went on to Tolland street where Houseful and I lived as dressmakers, and to the old church we loved to attend when Grace's father, the late Rev. John Sherman was our pastor, and lived in the same house but separate rents with Hopeful and myself. Those were good old days gone forever. Then we returned home tired but happy. Our chauffeur thought he had had a drive.

One day we went by bus to Willimantic, taxied to the old cemetery to see the sexton and found he was at the new cemetery one mile away. After decorating a grave we proceeded on our way by foot as there was no other conveyance. We arrived there just five minutes after he had left for town. We couldn't locate the sexton ten so after looking and asking for nearly an hour we gave it up and called on the undertaker. Usually people have to consult the undertaker first but in this case it worked very well at last. As we had some time to spare we called on Biddy and Fry and had dinner with them.

Later in the day we called on Eliza Jane, had tea with her and came home on the last bus.

Others have written of their vacations an drips so I thought I would give a little description of mine, not very extensive but delightful to us. I guess the editor will think I have awakened and am too much so if I don't stop and give room to others. Thanking you all again and success to the Corner.

GOSSIPS.

Dear Sisters: I am wondering if most of us who live in somewhat out of the way country places dont have in our midst at least one confirmed gossip and scandal lover—a tattle tale, as we children used to call those who told things about other children, a someone whom you almost feel to shun like a pestilence and whom, when you do meet them you try hard to converse with on neutral and impartial subjects, remembering the old saying that those who fetch a bone will carry one. Some one who listens in on the telephone and tells some one else about it and who, if she happens to be around when you are using the telephone interprets the other side of the conversation by what you say, and tells of it, who finds out the family secrets and proclaims them as it were on the housetops and rats the family skeletons rattling and by the time stories have been retailed or retold, a few times they assume colossal proportions like the old story of the sick man who threw up three black crows and when the matter was traced back to the beginning it proved to be something as black as a crow. I have mentioned the tale-bearer in the feminine gender as I think they are more apt to be our sex (more shame to us), although I have known two or three "he gossips" who found fault with everyone they knew or heard of, and never could say anything good of even the ones they called their friends. The curious thing about all such people is that nine times out of ten they are really kind hearted and will do you a favor, or help you in time of trouble, proving that "Evil is wrought by want of thought as well as by want of heart," and more often by want of thought. A bit of scandal is a choice morsel and they can't resist telling it with usually the addition of "I guess it must be so and so." The next one says it is so, and thus the story grows. The Good Book says "Let your annunciation be yet, yea, and Nay, nay, for what is more than that cometh of evil," not meaning of course that we confine ourselves literally to those words, but to be guarded in our conversation. I don't mean this as a sermon or a reproach to anyone in particular I say things myself that might better have been left unsaid, but don't, for pity's sake, let us take pleasure in airing our neighbors' faits and family affairs.

Esmeralda: When you mentioned the verse on your mother's pillow shams I was reminded of the ones I made in days long ago when no bed was complete without them. One pair was worked in red with a rising sun and crescent moon respectively with "Good Night" and "Good Morning" underneath, and the other pair had morning glories and evening beauties twining around those words. Also I had washstand splashers with pond lilies and rushes in a supposed stream of water, and we had tidies with various designs and mantel scarfs, all long ago relegated to the past. And now I think I have discoursed long enough and bid you all good morning.

IOLA.

CROWD OF 250 AT AUNTY NO. 1'S PICNIC

Dear Editor and Social Sisters: The bright and beautiful day of Sept. 15th with just a touch of summer heat seemed especially fitting for the annual picnic held at the home of Aunty No. 1, Huntington ave., Norwich Town. As we arrived upon the scene, the flag of our union was waving its starry folds of welcome to the yellow bow, the Social Corner color acting as a silent police to guide the many people to the picnic lawn. The feature of the day was the getting together of the six Social Corner clubs all of which were largely represented and with a general invitation. The result was most gratifying inasmuch as there assembled on the spacious lawn 250 people to enjoy a Social Corner picnic. We did not see much of Aunty during the morning hours for she was busily engaged with picnic duties; but Uncle was with the throng of people instead with courteous hospitality. As the sun climbed higher in the bright blue sky so the stately trees gave the protecting shade that was greatly appreciated by all.

The entertaining program for the day was social conversation on various topics of the day which the many people present entered into with hearty good will. As the crowd increased more seats were added for the comfort of all. Passing in front of the house we observed quite a cityfied appearance in the parking space for automobiles; what appealed most strongly to the sense of beauty was a garden of flowers and as the sun's warm rays shone so brightly on the solid mass of bloom, a sad thought crept in that the reign of the lovely flowers would soon be over. We were informed that the next day they were removed and the ground was plowed for a winter vegetable.

A large chorus of voices announced the dinner hour and the serving began. Various kinds of delicious food were passed and repassed and we were urged to take more as there seemed to be an endless abundance of it.

The afternoon hours were largely spent admiring the beautiful flowers Uncle was seen many times arranging huge bouquets to be taken from the picnic ground. I wondered that at night how widely apart, would those blossoms be scattered and how many different homes they would enter with their beauty. A side attraction was a wonderful paint remover that was literally patronized by the ladies. As the greater part of the day was gone and soon the people would begin to go home, the sentiment expressed and voiced by all, that a very pleasurable day at Aunty's annual picnic had been spent and we hope for many more returns to the same place.

To the inquirer, Dear one, the suggestion made was very thoughtful of you but it seems wise not to put in practice your suggestion, for by so doing we would lose much of the excellent food and you know that cannot be spared; so continue on in your way of providing food that has always made our Social Corner dinners at Buckingham hall popular.

WANTS RECIPE REPEATED

Dear Social Corner: I am asking for a recipe that was given a few weeks ago on how to make frosting for cakes that doesn't get hard. It was made with NNX sugar and I have lost the recipe. I would be very much pleased to see it printed again. Thanking you in advance. I am a reader of the Social Corner. It sure is good.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

As a whole, the week in Norwich 50 years ago, was a quiet one. The principal happening was an enthusiastic republican rally held in Breed hall. Hon. Henry C. Robinson, republican candidate for governor, was among the speakers. The same week the continentals of the fourth district, elected O. F. Smith as their captain, and the Boys in Blue named Charles W. Gale, now deceased, as their colonel. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin, of September, 1876, are as follows:

Monday, Sept. 18, 1876—The annual reunion of the 14th C. V. will be held in this city today. It will include a business meeting at Steiner's hall and a street parade with the Third Regiment band, the G. A. R. and Company C as escort. A large attendance is expected.

About 200 persons went on the excursion of the employees of the Norwich Pistol Co., Saturday, leaving here on the Granite state about eight o'clock. The boat reached New York about five and was to leave at three o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Travel on the Norwich boats is very heavy just now and promises to continue so until the close of the month. The Boston steamboat train Saturday night was composed of 14 passenger cars, which were all crowded.

Tuesday, Sept. 19, 1876—There was a lively fight on Franklin street, near Bath street, last night, and the police carried off two of the participants to the lockup.

Mr. West will run coaches from Franklin square to the fairgrounds and back, tomorrow and the next two days, selling tickets for transportation and admission to the grounds for 50 cents. Tickets can be had at the horse railroad office.

George Washington's autograph is now quoted at $1.25 at retail, and it is difficult to make a man who is working for $14 a month, believe that as long as Washington knew how to write he didn't make a losing speculation in dying just when he did.

County fair notes—The entries of neat cattle, sheep, swine and horses for speed closed Saturday night. The entries of stock are probably larger than they have ever been before among them being the best stock in the country. There will be a large display in this department.

Wednesday, Sept. 20, 1876—Madame Gentz' Female minstrels gave an entertaining performance in Breed hall last evening, to a large house. The audience appeared to be immensely pleased and applauded heartily and constantly.

Mr. Fuller's store in Norwich Town, in which the postoffice is located, was broken into Monday night. The burglars took a quantity of cigars, a small amount of change, and "wen" through some letters but got little of value. They escaped leaving no clue to their identity.

At the bar meeting yesterday at New London, the Hon. John T. Wait presided and William H. Shields acted as clerk. It was voted to occupy the court and jury, at the opening next week, with civil cases. Another bar meeting will be held, to make assignments, at noon on the first day of the court's session next week.

Thursday, Sept. 21, 1876—The first great republican rally of the campaign will be held in Breed hall tomorrow. The Hon. Henry C. Robinson, the republican candidate for governor, and Prof. Cyrus Northrop of New Haven, will address the meeting. They will be escorted to the hall by a torchlight procession. Let us give our next governor a rousing welcome.

An iron bridge is being built to replace the old wooden one between Bean Hill and Yantic. It is to be 75 feet clean span, and will have a roadway of 20 feet. It will be ready for travel within a few days after the arrival of the material, which is expected soon. The work is being done by the Cincinnati Bridge company.

If 100 passengers can be obtained the popular steamer Ella of the Water Hill route will take a trip to Philadelphia, stopping there three or four days. She can accomodate this number comfortably. Further particulars can be had of Palmer Smith, the manager.

Friday, Sept. 22, 1876—At a meeting of the Continentals of the fourth district held Wednesday evening, the following officers were elected: Captain, O. F. Smith first lieutenant, J. Murphy; second lieutenant, William Fulton, third lieutenant, Joseph Stamm; orderly, James Northrop; sergeants, T. Hunt Sterry, and A. L. Hale; color bearers, C. H. Maynard and William Dunbar. An attempt to break up the meeting by the "Tweed, Tilden and reform" party, proved a failure.

The democrats raised a large Tilden and Hendricks flag across West Main street Wednesday afternoon, fastening one end on the premises of Mr. Benjamin Peckham, a staunch republican. When Mr. Peckham came home he ordered them to remove it. Yesterday afternoon the democrats sulkily took it down. Good for Peckham—give him a cheer tonight boys.

The line officers of the Boys in Blue met last evening and completed the organization by electing the following field officers: Colonel, Charles W. Gale; lieut. colonel, Charles C

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

NIOR AMERICAN MECHANICS

Buckingham Council, No. 14, met in regular session with Councilor Eliai presiding. Routine and new business was transacted. The Daughters did not give any report in regard to amount attending the fair in Noank (Washington council) therefore there will not be any bus. For anyone wishing to go there will be some cars at the Buckingham Memorial about eight o'clock p. m., to take them down. Several of the brothers have donated their cars for transportation.

It is regretted that the Mechanics can not attend in a group but there is more important business to attend to Saturday night. The members are urged not to forget the state convention in New Britain. There will be a large delegation from every council in the state. The council also has an important matter to take up at the state convention. So don't forget Monday. Now that the weather is getting some cooler the officers want every member to attend every Wednesday evening as they expect to have some good pinochle, whist, checker, chess and various other contests with prizes this coming winter. The captain of the degree team wants to see all of the team possible Wednesday evening. The Daughters are going to have whist and pinochle. Brother Brown was reported improving and the officers hope to see his smiling face enter the lodge room soon.

Tuesday evening the regular meeting of Mercier assembly, No. 12, was held in their rooms on Broadway. Miss Elinore Donovan presided and Worthy President Mrs. James Dutton offered prayer. DAUGHTERS OF REVOLUTION

Mrs. Eli A. Helmick, registrar-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, gave out a statement this week from hearquarters in Washington, D. C., in which she states there will be made an intensive drive to bring into the society a greater part of the two million women who are descendants of men who fought the war for independence.

The membership has been increasing the last three years at an unprecedented rate. This may be due to the reaction of patriotic women from the propaganda against the government which being put out by subversive organizations that mask under the guise of pacific societies. The fact that each woman in joining the Daughters of the American Revolution swears allegiance to the United States and pledges to support the constitution seems to be a drawing card.

By invitation of Ruth Wyllys chapter, the 33rd state meeting of the Connecticut society Daughters of the American Revolution, will be held in Center church, Hartford, Oct. 5. The morning session, at which Mrs. Alfred J. Brousseau, president-general of the national society, will deliver an address, will convene at 11 o'clock. Among the guests of honor will be Mrs George Maynard Minor of Waterford, honorary president-general of the national society; Mrs. John Laidlaw Buel, ex-vice-president-general of the national society; Mrs. William A. Becker, New Jersey state regent, and Mrs. Katharine W. Kittredge, Vermont state regent.

Luncheon will be served in the parish house of Center church and Christ church cathedral.

The afternoon session will convene at 2.15 o'clock and close as near 4:30 o'clock as possible, after which officers, guests and speakers will receive informally, and tea will be served by Ruth Wyllys chapter.

AMERICAN LEGION

A warm welcome to Legionnaires who will attend the eighth annual convention of the American legion in Philadelphia October 11-15 is conveyed in a proclamation issued by Hon. Gifford Pinchot, governor of Pennsylvania.

It reads as follows:

To the Members of the American Legion:

On behalf of the people and the state of Pennsylvania, I am delighted to send the heartiest welcome I know how to convey to the members of the American legion coming to the convention in Philadelphia in October. We welcome you to the shrine of American liberty, you fighters who labored so hard and sacrificed so unstintingly to preserve it. The doors in Independence hall are ever open to you, who, by valiant service and sheer fighting grit, have won the right to enter them first.

Most of all we are glad to have you when Philadelphia, through the Sesqui-Centennial exposition, is celebrating the birth of liberty in our land. Our forefathers won it, you preserved it, and I earnestly hope that all who possibly can will come to join hands in spirit with those comrades in arms of an earlier day, and to tell the world that the liberty they won at so costly a sacrifice will still be maintained at any price—that the rock on which our republic was founded is as solid as ever and as enduring as the eternal hills. I wish I could take each one of you by the hand and tell you how glad we are to have you. Pennsylvania bids you welcome.

Mayor W. Freeland Kendrick has proclaimed October 10-16 as American Legion week and has called upon the people of Philadelphia to extend their usual warm greeting to the veterans of the World war.

DAUGHTERS OF VETERANS

The meeting closed in the usual way, with salute to the flag.

At a business meeting of the R. E. Hourigan auxiliary, V. F. W., with the president, Mrs. Annie B. Turner presiding regular routine business was transacted and a very interesting report of the convention was read by the delegate, Mrs. Lena B. Maynard.

The committee reported a get-together whist will be held Monday evening for the members only. A public whist is to follow shortly.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

The resignation of Mrs. Emma Beaver, chairman of the crockery committee was accepted with regret. Mrs. Beaver is soon to make her home in Willimantic. Mrs. Elizabeth Risley reported $39 made at the Grange supper held in Buckingham Memorial last Saturday.

Reports were heard from the silver and fair committees. The grange auxiliary is to hold an all day meeting in the Buckingham next Tuesday. The next meeting of the grange will open at 8 o'clock, standard time.

Make your programmes varied and snappy.

Select vital topics for discussion.

Have a publicity committee.

See that all old members are retained and new ones added.

Be constantly on the lookout for new ideas and methods.

Prepare programmes before arrival at Grange hall.

Teach patriotism.

Present an unwritten law to your members, a member never refuses to do what the lecturer asks him.

Try and have 50 per cent. of your members present.

Adapt yourselves to circumstances.

Serve your community.

Teach loyalty to the grange; stimulate love for rural life; keep in mind what the grange is its purposes, its principles.

Build your programmes from the material you have at hand and always meet the needs of your community.

A lecturer is a leader in educational work of the community.

All entertainments should be of a wholesome nature, food for thought as well as fun.

National Master Louis J. Tabor says The lecturer of the subordinate grange is the nerve center from which radiates information, inspiration and helpful suggestions.

Discover and develop talent and develop leadership; serve service; educate and elevate.

Consecrate your talent and those of the grange to cause of community service, greater food to greater numbers.

File calendar. State, Warren D. Nichols vs. William L. Brundage. Attorney Roche for the defendant told the court that he had talked with Attorney General Jackvony about the case of the defendant, who lives in Carolina, R. I. He said that officers of the state police came to the premises and searched the house and building without first procuring a search warrant. In the house some liquors were found and in the shop a bottle of liquor in a bag, which the state troopers had taken from the possession of Brundage. In asking for a mitigation of sentence or discharge of his client he said that the state police had no legal or constitutional right to enter the premises and that any liquor which was taken was in violation of legal and constitutional rights and could not be used as evidence in court.

State Trooper Warren D. Nichols said that they had had several complaints, from parties whose names are being withheld as in all cases of the kind and that accompanied by Brundage in their search, liquor was found in a room in the house and in another building on the premises.

Brundage, the State Trooper said, admitted selling liquor and he had large packages and small vials and went about selling in Carolina.

Judge Williams said that on the plea of nolo he would impose a fine of $100 and costs. Attorney Roche gave notice of appeal and the same bond and surety were continued.

Michael Dominac was presented by State Trooper Nichols, who moved for sentence on complaint of the sale of liquor in violation of law. The defendant had had his case continued from September 10th to 17th and from September 17th to 24. The premises of Dominac in the town of Charlestown had been raided by state troopers and a considerable amount of liquors seized. Unable to understand English, Frank Leonnetti was directed to act as interpreter. Dominac was fined $100 and costs.

Kay of Hope Valley that he operated his motor truck down the hill in Hope Valley at a rate of speed, which the law did not consider safe at the road intersection Sunday, September 19th, at 11 o'clock in the morning. DEATH OF LEWIS DART WHO WAS IN HIS 88TH YEAR

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 24—Lewis Dart, well known resident of New London died this morning at his home, 20 West Pleasant street, after a lingering illness. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Robert T. Elliott, of Worcester, Mass., and Miss Harriet E. Dart of this city. Mr. Dart was born in Waterford but had resided in New London practically his entire life. He conducted a long-time business many years ago and afterwards was proprietor of a livery stable on Church street. For years Mr. Dart had not been in health started to decline several years ago and since that time has been confined to his home most of the time.

John Mack, a laborer, of Quaker Hill, was run down by a car on Williams street down and was badly hurt. He said he was bound for Montville and got lost and fell by the roadside. Mack represented that he was receiving cents an hour, had pretty large dependent and that he sent money to his mother in Attleboro. Mass. Overnight. He has been a member of the Learned Mission here and his case was consulted. That organization confirmed what Mack had said. Mack was fined $5 without costs.

He said he was on the way from Providence to Boston, that he might get a ship there. He was permitted to ride and left town later.

Frederick Bowman, a sailor in the coast guard service, was found on Bank street at 4:40 this morning where he was abusing some invisible person. Girolomo Girl, an old man, was fined $10 for breach of peace by his honor. The old man has been at the family a long time and it is to be further estranged now than ever. It was represented that Girl accused his daughter of selling booze and she resented that statement as he was provoked because her father accused her of the charge. How with this he was fined and was cautioned.

Victor Paskvich, proprietor of a bak-ery at 142 North Bank street, made complaint to the police last night to the effect that George Gaskell, one of the employees of his establishment had taken some cash, but whether it was with the intent to rob the place was not known. Patrolman Sullivan was unable to ascertain the identity of the window breaker and there was nothing found missing from the store so it is presumed that the person who broke the window was by accident.

The funeral of Frederick Lamourine, a resident of Willimantic, whose body was received at Hesse Memorial home on Friday of this week, was held this morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. The mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Michael Reagan. The pallbearers were Michael Doyle, Patrick Doyle, Michael Collins and Edmund Gannon. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Notwithstnading the fact that the city election is to be held Monday next to choose two members of the council, there is no apparent interest in the coming battle of ballots. Councilor Streeter is a candidate to succeed himself and another candidate is to be chosen to fill the place now held by Councilor A. C. Woodruff, who declined a renomination. In the event that Councilor Streeter is re-elected he will probably be the candidate for mayor or presiding officer of the council. All the other members of that body now sitting as members have been chosen presiding officer except Messrs May and Streeter. The latter has served a longer time than has Mr. May, so he will perhaps be asked to fill the place. He has been one of the "talking" members of the council and he has advanced some original ideas during his term of service. But so has May. They are the sort of members the people like to have in the council. It was Mr. May who brought forward and to action the sewering of the section about Connecticut college. He went at that proposition with such energy that his associates took heed of what he hadto say. Mr. Streeter has the courage of his convictions and talks right out in meeting. He is said to be a valuable man in committee, too. Because of his longer term of service it is represented that he has a little "edge" on Jimmy May, who has been a valuable member of the body and a member with original ideas.

Trolley car patronage is said to have fallen off considerably during the current week, because the weather has been so pleasant that people prefer to walk when the distance they desire to travel is not so great as to fatigue.

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 24—Chas. P. 54, formerly of New London, but for Beebe, 54, formerly of New London, but for a long time resident of Quaker Hill, Waterford, died at his home last night. Beebe, Lebanon and a daughter, Mrs. Cecil Schofield of New York. Next Monday will be election day again and with voting for two members for city council—and one member of the board of selectmen but 48 hours away, there is but little interested being displayed by the voters. However, when election day arrives there is a probability that the voting will be lively for it is known that some of the candidates are arranging to get out the vote, something that was not done at the election two weeks ago. The candidates for office of member of council are Michael L. O'Connell, Frank S. Shea, Robert B. Chappell and Edward L. Streeter, Jr., and the seekers of the office of member of board of selectmen are George R. Morris, Jr., and Peter J. Eshenfelder. The ballots from Hartford have arrived at the city hall and Saturday and Sunday the booths in the five voting districts will be erected so that when the polls open Monday morning at 7 o'clock everything will be in readiness for handling the votes.

FEDERAL TAX INCREASED $251,859,623 IN FISCAL YEAR

Reduction in Rates Which Went Into Effect in Midyear Failed to Reflect in Collections—With the Exception of the Admission Tax, Virtually Every Other Levy Yielded a Higher Return During the Year Than in the Previous Year—More Than One-Fourth of the Taxes Were Collected in New York State.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Federal tax collections increased by $251,859,623.60 in the fiscal year ending June 30, despite the reductions in rates which went into effect in mid-year, it was shown today in the annual report of the internal revenue bureau.

With the exception of the admissions tax virtually every other levy yielded a larger return during the year than in the previous year. The total collections of internal revenue from all sources for the past year were $2,-[illegible]

Income taxes accounted for most of the increase, corporation levies netting $168,547,037 more than a year ago and individual income taxes yielding $47,000,000 more. The corporation tax was computed on one-half of one per cent during the last half of the year but normal rates were slashed [illegible]

Of the miscellaneous taxes, the admissions tax returned only $23,980,670 during the year compared with $30,-[illegible]809 in the previous year, but the tax on automobiles yielded $113,133,-245 for the year compared with $94,-141,549 the year before. The total collections from miscellaneous taxes were $[illegible],555,750 or an increase of $30,-414,532 during the year.

Tax refunds on account of illegal or erroneous collection totalled $174,156,-587, which was regarded as rather high by officials but this was offset by the collection of $404,537,467 in back taxes.

More than one fourth of the taxes were collected in New York state, where income tax receipts alone amounted to $569,505,467 and miscellaneous revenue to $164,524,046. The highest collection on account of the automobile levy was made in Michigan, where $84,391,993 was paid in North Carolina showed collections of $149,367,306 on account of the cigarette tax.

WAYNE B. WHEELER ASSAILS THE MODERATION LEAGUE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Wayne B. Wheeler of the Anti-Saloon league tonight described the Moderation league's second annual screed against prohibition as being "as [illegible] as the first one."

The Moderation league's report on a survey of prohibition conditions in more than 1,500 cities was made public tonight in New York comprising statistics and other information gathered under its review of the situation last year.

"It juggles figures," Mr. Wheeler said. "It ignores increased population, failing to compare conditions now with licensed days, and failing to take into account greater activity in arresting intoxicated persons.

"Of course, there are more drunken auto drivers arrested now than formerly because we now have over 20,-000,000 automobiles compared with a few thousand of some years ago. There is about increased drunkenness among youth was called by the recent survey made the Literary Digest.

"Of the dry states where half as had efficiency was reported, the voters in [illegible] states would not continue to send [illegible] delegations to congress to strengthen national prohibition, and [illegible] state legislators and public officials who uphold and enforce their state prohibition laws."

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OF VERNON CENTER CHURCH

VERNON CENTER, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The centennial celebration of the erection of the meeting house of the First Congregational church of this town, was held today with services morning, afternoon and this evening.

Senator Hiram Bingham was the orator of the day and congratulated the church and its members of their record and accomplishments. Senator Bingham told of the missionary work of his father and grandfather in the Hawaiian Islands and referred to Ashael Hale, the Tolland county patriot, as the most popular hero in American history.

"Hale overcame fear, selfishness and vanity for the sake of his country," he said, and warned that while "we are not facing the same dangers as did Nathan Hale" there is great danger that the ease, luxury, joy-riding and pleasures of today may eat into the spirit of the country."

He said he came to Rockville with the hope that he might meet his old friend, Rev. Arthur H. Smith, a missionary to China for many years. Senator Bingham said he met the Rev. Mr. Smith in China several years ago and praised the work of the missionary in the Far East.

CIRCUS FOLK MOURN DEATH OF "TOM THUMB"

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Veteran circus folk mourned today the passing of Darius Abner Alden, 84, who as "Tom Thumb," a 42-inch midget, for 48 years amused thousands of circus-goers, with his humor and prowess as a glass blower in side show attractions.

Born in Medina county, Ohio, August 14, 1842, Alden learned the glass blowing trade in his youth and when in his 18s first traveled about the world with Barnes Darling his travels, as a showman, he continued at the work of blowing in miniatures and ornamental pieces.

Alden is survived by his widow, 32 years old, and also 42 inches in height, whom he married in his 'teens. He was the last member of his family, the rest of whom were of normal stature.

EVANGELIST McPHERSON TO APPEAR IN COURT TODAY

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Aimee Semple McPherson, the evangelist, must appear in municipal court tomorrow to answer charges of criminal conspiracy growing out of her disappearance last May and her reappearance in Mexico more than 30 days later.

Other defendants to appear with her are Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, her mother, and Mrs. Lorraine Wisemanzusielaff, also accused of criminal conspiracy.

The charges against Mrs. Sielaff are based on her confession that she plotted with Mrs. McPherson and Mrs. Kennedy to produce false witnesses to say that the evangelist did not spend a part of the time she was missing in a cottage at Carmelb, Calif., with Kenneth G. Ormiston, radio operator at Angelus temple. Ormiston is a fugitive from justice.

Harry Melosh and Mrs. "Babe" Daniels, of Chicago, were released by the district attorney today after investigation of their purported "confession" that they conspired with Mrs. Sielaff to produce a "Miss X" as Ormiston's companion at the cottage. The district attorney branded their confession as a "tissue of lies."

Mrs. McPherson preached her usual Sunday night sermon in Angelus temple.

FUNERALS OF STORM VICTIMS HELD IN MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Regular Sabbath services, which took the form of funerals and requiem masses for the many storm victims buried without benefit of clergy, were attended by thousands here today.

Church-goers flocked to places of worships spared by the hurricane of a week ago, as well as to temporary structures hastily erected on the sites of those destroyed. A union open air service in Royal Palm park attracted hundreds.

The day, however, found no cessation in the work of rehabilitation and relief. Workers concentrated on Fort Lauderdale, Dania, Hollywood and Hialeah, where, with water still flooding most of those regions and many persons reported in need, conditions were described as most desperate.

With the death of six injured persons today, Miami's loss of life in the storm reached 114, while 235 persons were listed officially as missing. The known fatalities in the entire storm area approximate 400.

RED CROSS EXTENDING WORK IN STORM AREA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26—(AP)—While the Red Cross is devoting much of its machinery of mercy to completing Florida storm relief work in record time, it is nevertheless finding time to extend its mission into remote scenes of less devastating disaster.

News was received by headquarters today of relief efforts in the Indian village of Kake, Alaska, where 100 natives were made homeless by fire, the Wrangel and Ketchikin chapters reported that 50 per cent of the village was destroyed. These chapters and that at Juneau immediately sent workers and supplies to the victims.

In Florida although the hurricane cut its deadly dash across the peninsula only a week ago, Chairman Payne announced today "the emergency relief work is practically at an end in most of the disaster areas and the less spectacular but equally essential rehabilitation work has begun."

The disaster relief fund reached $2,-484,000 today, almost half the minimum set as the society's objective.

PREFERRED BLOND MUST BEWARE OF BAD COLORS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 26. (AP)—Blondes who would continue to be preferred, should never select colors that overshadow their personality, Claire Windsor, screen actress, puts her name under that advice.

"Blondes have a much harder time in selecting their colors than their brunette sisters, Claire says." "It's too easy for a blonde to select colors that put her personality in the background by their vividness."

Here are a few tricks which experience has taught her.

"The ash blonde should select colors that reflect the light, but which are not vivid. A cross between baby blue and electric blue is ideal for this type or fair skinned femanity. Shell pink also is good. It throws a pleasing reflection to the fact, yet does not detract from the personality.

"Golden blondes find the color problem easier. All the warm colors are attractive. Deep yellow, pink of all shades, even red when used judiciously, become the golden haired woman."

PLATO "SURE CURE" FOR STEADY HICCOUGHS

LONDON, Sept. 26 (AP)—Plato had a "sure cure" for hiccups, as described by Dr. C. F. T. East in the Lancet.

Aristophanes, so Plato says, had the hiccups so badly he could not speak. So Eryximachus, the physician, was called in.

"Hold your breath, and, if, after doing this for some time, your hiccup is no better, gargle with a little water. If it still continues, tickle your nose with something and sneeze. After you have sneezed once or twice the most violent hiccup is sure to go," the doctor prescribed.

Aristophanes was cured after he reached the sneezing stage.

OBITUARY

Rev. Edmund S. Rousmaniere

HYANNIS, Mass., Sept. 26—(AP)—Rev. Edmund S. Rousmaniere, dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston, died today at his summer home near here.

He had been in ill health all summer, although able to go outdoors nearly every day. Last Friday the heart trouble with which he had been affected for several months, became acute and the end came early this morning.

Dr. Rousmaniere, who had been dean of St. Paul's since it was consecrated as a cathedral in 1912, had made his summer home on Cape Cod for many years. He was seriously ill last December and it was in the hope of aiding his recovery from the after affects that he came here early in the summer.

Born in Boston on October 27, 1858, he was graduated from Harvard in 1883, a clasmate of Dr. Percy Stickney Grant of New York. His theological education was obtained at the Episcopal Theological school in Cambridge. Before coming to Boston in 1910 as a rector of St. Paul's he had served as rector of Episcopal church in Pontiac, R. I., New Bedford and Providence.

Mrs. Rousmaniere, who survives him, was Sophie Knight, daughter of Robert Knight, wealthy Rhode Island cotton mill owner. They had no children.

Business Activities Slower Last Week

A Slump in Building Operations Reported From Many Sections of the Country.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Business activities here and there moved at a slower pace last week without regarding the major forward movement of trade. Uncertainty over credit conditions was partly responsible for the restraint which characterized operations in many lines of industry as the business world kept a close watch on the course of money rates.

So far the increase in the demand for funds has represented only the customary seasonal expansion. Call loans at one time during the week, however, were quoted at the highest figure in six months, arousing fears that a further tightening of the money situation might be in prospect. Reports which have persisted all month that the prevailing four per cent rate for federal reserve re-discounting would be raised have been without foundation. In this connection it was pointed out that the autumn trend of money rates has never been sufficiently established in September to warrant a change in the re-discounting charges.

One of the most significant developments of the week in its bearing on general conditions was the upward revision of the government's cotton crop estimate to around 16,000,000 bales. The forecast was so far above expectations that cotton prices broke approximately $6.50 a bale, bringing the decline in the past fortnight to $18 a bale.

Trade opinion inclined to believe that in the absence of an early killing frost the 1926 crop would run considerably above 16,000,000 bales, exceeding last year's yield. The change in the crop outlook halted a promising buying movement in the cotton goods trade.

The hurricane disaster in Florida and serious floods in the middle west brought about local trade unsettlement, the influences of which have not yet been determined as far as general business is concerned. Markets in these areas were demoralized.

Orders for steel products up to the present time have continued at a rate to hold production around 85 per cent of capacity, but a more cautious note crept into the trade reviews regarding future operations. Forecasts for the fourth quarter were said to show marked divergence, some mills finding indications that business would be somewhat less than in the three months now ending. Increased railroad buying of steel and an active demand for tin, which is now selling at the highest price since the war, were features of the week in the industry.

A contraction of building activity was reported from many sections of the country, where extensive programs which have been under way for several years are nearing completion. Always mindful of the dangers of overexpansion, the construction industry on the whole welcomed the slight reduction.

KENTUCKY RACE MAY SHOW 2-YEAR LEADER

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The Kentucky Jockey Club stakes, with $10,000 added, may be the medium for settling the question of two-year-old supremacy of the turf during the autumn racing season beginning Sept. 29.

The mile race, to be run at Churchill Downs, offers the juvenile who captures it an opportunity to claim the two-year-old crown, to which none of the youngsters thus far has decisively established the right.

Lord Chaucer's triumph in the Hopeful at Saratoga was not convincing. He benefited greatly by a weight concession but displayed a finish that leads turfmen to believe that he will fancy a route such as the Stakes.

Scapa Flow, a son of Man o'War, on his showing in the Hopeful, probably will be among the favorites in the stake race. Termagent, who roughed Scapa Flow in that race, also showed a meritorious performance.

Other eastern crack juveniles that loom formidably in the probable field are J. E. Widener's Kiev and Chance Sling, and Candy Queen and Pantella.

The eastern horde will not be without formidable opposition from the west in the final state race. Among the western juveniles are E. R. Bradley's Buddy Bauer and Wewithus; Johnson N. Camden's Nor'easter and Khalifa; E. B. McLean's Sport Trail and Jock, and Torchilla, Derringer, Krick, General Haldeman and Dr. Washington. These colts have been racing well their first year out.

BASEMENT OF SENATE OFFICES "RADICAL ROW"

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26. (AP)—"Radical row" is the title quite generally but not unofficially bestowed upon one section of the senate office building—that composing the basement floor of the south wing.

There four of the leading insurgents on the republican side of the senate have their suites of offices. They are Norris, of Nebraska; Frazier, of North Dakota; Howell, of Nebraska, and Shipstead of Minnesota.

Having resigned as chairman of the senate agricultural committee, Senator Norris has given up his suite on the third floor and it has been taken over by his successor as chairman, Senator McNary, of Oregon.

By moving to the basement, or "first floor," as it is politely called, Senators who are without important committee chairmanships can obtain suites of three rooms instead of the two allotted them on the upper floors.

Lions, Tigers, Bears Escaped From Circus

They Created a Panic Throughout the City of Valenciennes, France.

VALENCIENNES, France, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Eight lions, two tigers and two bears escaped from a circus here early last evening and caused a great panic throughout the city. All the animals were captured before daybreak. In the round-up three circus attendants were injured, one severely. None of the inhabitants of the town suffered any harm except from fright.

One full grown lion calmly entered a cafe at midnight and made its closing easy for the owner for most of the customers vanished without paying. Four alone remained in their chairs, one laughing loudly and declaring that he had "seen them before". The lion seized a leg of mutton that was on the cafe counter and went out the back door. One tiger walked into a butcher shop and ate an entire lamb. He was captured fast asleep.

A tardy home goer met a lion on a street corner. The king of the jungle sniffed his hand and went on but the man remained in a dead faint. Another lion smashed in the door of a latter's shop curled himself up on a pile of hats where he was captured in his sleep.

$5,000 SUIT AGAINST THE CLASS OF 1928 C. A. C.

STORRS, Sept. 26—(AP)—Suit for $5,000 in damages has been brought by Thomas Reynolds, acting for his son, Charles T. Reynolds, of New Haven, against the class of 1928 of Connecticut Agricultural college, it being alleged that Charles Reynolds was injured during a hazing party at the college a year ago. Hazing was abolished at the college soon after this incident.

The suit is brought against the class as an organization and also against the members as individuals. Fourteen of the members were served with papers yesterday and 34 more are now being sought.

The young man is alleged to have been injured during a pajama parade when he was struck with a paddle held by one of the sophomores. Reynolds left college but returned in February and completed the second term's work.

The defendants are ordered to appear in Superior court in New Haven, November 2.

The plaintiff alleges that the defendants "seriously and permanently injured and maimed" Reynolds and that "he has been disabled from performing and engaging in any kind of work or employment."

40 MEN REMAIN IMPRISONED IN IRON MINE IN MICHIGAN

IRONWOOD, Mich., Sept. 26—(AP)—Confronted by possibly two days more of digging before forty miners imprisoned hundreds of feet below the surface of the Oliver mine by a cave-in Friday, could be reached, rescue workers today began an attempt to establish communication with the imprisoned men.

Others continued to remove tons of debris which, carried down a shaft, sealed the men within the mine.

Down the main shaft, in which the cave-in occurred, killing three men trapped in the cage, one crew set to work drilling a one and one-half inch hole through 400 feet of debris. If the miners are found to be alive, food in tablet form will be sent down to sustain them until a passageway can be dug.

At the same time another crew, which had entered an adjacent mine a half mile from the wrecked shaft, had started digging from a lower level hoping to connect with the miner level on which the men are trapped.

AUTHORSHIP A HERITAGE FOR FAMILY OF BARTONS

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Many a father has reared a son to share with him his conduct of a business or the practice of a profession, but a stranger heritage is that of authorship, in which Bruce Barton shares honors with his father, the Rev. William E. Barton of Oak Park.

The elder Barton's evolution as an author took him through the ministry and the editor's chair, and since he wrote his first book in 1886 he has written no fewer than 56 works of history, biography, philosophy, religion and fiction.

Bruce inherited his father's capacity for editorship and was editor of The Home Herald and The Housekeeper before undertaking authorship. Since he wrote his first book a dozen years ago, the younger Barton has had published eight works, the best known of which have been popular studies of the life of Christ and the story of the Bible.

A second son, Charles W. Barton of Sheridan, Wyo., is the publisher and editor of two Wyoming newspapers.

NEGRO SLAVE MARRIAGES RECOGNIZED BY BUREAU

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26. (AP)—Slave marriages among the negroes of the south finally have been recognized by the pension bureau.

The case was that of Cinthy E. Brown, now living at St. Paul, Minnesota, the widow of Mathew Brown, a slave, who after he was freed enlisted with the Douglas Independent Battery, U. S. Colored Light Artillery.

The Browns were married before freedom, according to the slave custom. The widow wrote to Senator Shipstead of Minnesota that after the war they were informed they would have to be married again, which they did in 1872.

The pension bureau had the record of that marriage. It at first declined to allow the widow an increase of pension from $30 a month to $50 a month under the recent pension act on the ground that the wedding took place after Brown's service with the Union army.

After the letter explaining the earlier slave marriage, the increase was allowed.

EARLY PASSING OF GREAT BRITAIN AS A WORLD POWER

Forecast by Dean Inge of St. Paul's, London—"The Gloomy Dean" Sees Greater Danger From the Anti-Social and Unpatriotic Sectionalism Than in the International Situation—Declares England at Present is Moving in the Direction of Syndicalism.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The early passing of Great Britain as a world power is forecast by Dean Inge, of St. Paul's London, in an analytical survey of the empire, published today as the latest of a series by various authors on "The Modern World."

Living up thoroughly to his title of "The Gloomy Dean", he sees great danger not only in the international situation, but even more from the "anti-social and unpatriotic sectionalism which is the curse of industrial civilization especially dangerous in a country situated as we are".

"The main danger is interior to the empire," declares the dean. "The omens at present are very unfavorable.

"Everything points to a coming time of trial for the nation and the empire. It seems for every reason unlikely that our position as a world power will endure much longer. Much depends upon the friendliness of the United States on which we certainly cannot count, though of which we should not despair.

"The cordial friendship which many Englishmen enjoy with individual Americans . . . must not blind us either to the intense concentration of the American people at large upon what they consider their own interests, or to the prevailing unfriendliness of America, as expressed by its politicians and journalists, to this country.

"If in the future we are attacked by a European coalition, we may take it as probable that the United States will leave us to our fate, unless, indeed, we are invaded by a black army.

"There are no occasions of war at present between the British empire and the United States, says the dean "since our government invariably gives way."

". . . Americans by insisting upon repayment of the vast debt, incurred for France, to which we rashly put our names, have secured that we shall remain permanently tributary to themselves."

"We probably shall retain our present form of government if only because there is no obvious alternative," Dean Inge concludes.

"In plain living and high thinking will be our salvation, or the salvation of the 'remant' which will survive the turmoils of age of transition. Plain living will be forced on us, whether we will or not."

England is at present moving in the direction of syndicalism " . . . made in France," he asserts.

"All that remains of our pride," says the writer, "is a wholesome indifference to the opinions of foreign nations."

"The Englishman is neither industrious nor thrifty; he is disposed to be lazy, open handed and fond of good living . . . We owe our position as a great power to geographical situation . . . to comparative freedom from continental entaglements . . . It may seem unscientific to attribute much importance to sheer luck."

Of the World war, he says, "No greater misfortune has ever befallen Britain . . . There are ominous signs that it may be the last great war to be decided (by naval power)."

Among the specific "problems", he lists the immigration—exclusion policy which "can only be maintained while it is possible to exclude by force" and the fact that the loyalty of the colonies "is less whole-hearted than an Englishman could wish." The absence of any real imperial government is declared an outstanding drawback to the empire's stability.

"The future of Canada is problematical," says Dean Inge. "Its chief safeguard is that it's of the interest of the United States to conquer it. If the British flag was hauled down on the North American continent, it's more than possible the nations of Europe, enraged by bloated prosperity and airs of superiority of the man who won the war, would combine to draw Shylock's teeth."

ACHIEVEMENTS OF ASSEMBLY OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS

GENEVA, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The two principal achievements of the seventh assembly of the league of nations, which adjourned with the close of the week, were the admission of Germany and the reorganization of the league council from 10 to 14 in membership.

Although the advent of Germany was welcomed as officially ending the animosities of the great war and bringing Germany within the scope of the league obligations and responsibilities, that advent cost the league the collaboration of Spain who resigned because she was unable to get a permanent seat in the council at the same time as Germany.

China elected to the council to represent Asia created a sensation in the closing days by charging Great Britain, a fellow member of the league, with an unjustifiable bombardment of a Chinese town in which several thousand persons were killed.

The Chinese spokesman declared peace would never come to China nor would foreigners ever be safe there until the powers scrapped the old treaties and substituted new ones based on genuine reciprocity and equality.

A. W. DULLES TO ENTER A NEW YORK LAW FIRM

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26. — (AP)—Difficulties of the state department in keeping qualified career men in the higher posts of the foreign service unless they have private means were emphasized today with the announcement that Allen W. Dulles, former near eastern chieftain, and a member of the American delegation to the Geneva arms limitation conference, had resigned to enter a New York law firm.

Mr. Dulles, who is regarded as one of the most efficient diplomatic officers of the career group, has been connected with the state department more than ten years. His advancement has been swift. He is grandson of John W. Foster, secretary of state under President Harrison, a nephew of former Secretary Robert Lansing, and was recalled from Geneva for promotion to the rank of counsellor, assigned to the legation in Peking.

That promotion prompted Dulles' resignation owing to the lack of private income. He will join the firm of Sullivan and Cromwell in New York city.

WAKEFIELD, Mass., Sept. 26.—(AP)—There will be plenty of cranberry sauce for this year's Thanksgiving turkey. For Massachusetts, one of the leading cranberry states, the forecast is for a crop of 425,000 barrels as against 458,626 last year and a four year average of 377,000. The early varieties grown on the Cape Cod and Plymouth county bogs are nearly all harvested and the harvesting of late berries is beginning. The berries are of good quality.

HADLEY PLANE FIRST IN 151 CLASS HYDROPLANE RACES

BALTIMORE, Sept. 26.—(AP)—"Hadley Plane" owned by Cliff Hadley of Richmond Hill, Long Island, captured first place in the 151 class hydroplane races by running up a total of 425 points during the Maryland Yacht club's two-day regatta on the Patapsco river. S. L. Reed, of Buffalo N. Y., drover "Miss Spitfire VI" into second place with a total of 412 points; J. G. Beard's "Miss Washington" was third, and "Lady Baltimore", driven by Roy Gross, fourth.

Hadley plane took a first and second place yesterday and a second today to complete its total. Miss Spitfire VI victories in today's two heats were protested. The boat was claimed to be over the piston displacement allowed for the class.

In the heats for Biscayne Babies, number 20, piloted by Captain Harvy, Miami, raced home the winner in the first race after having its starboard side ripped open by number 23, driven by Ray Edmonds, also Miami. Both boats finished. Harvey's time was 2:09.

After making temporary repairs the boats ripped up the six mile course again, Gibson Bradfield, Varnesville, Ohio, with number 15, taking first in 8:29, with Edmonds and Harvey behind.

HAZARD OF DEATH MROM AUTOMOBILES INCREASING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(AP)—The hazard of death in automobile accidents appears to be increasing in the United States as a whole.

The commerce department, making public comparable figures for 1925 and 1926 today, showed that so far this year, in the 66 larger cities of the country, fatalities from automobile accidents have been so numerous as to indicate an annual death rate of 18.3 persons per 100,000 of population, while for the same period last year the rate was 12.9 per cent.

During the four weeks period ending September 11, 1926, automobiles killed 560 persons in 78 cities, while in the same places in the corresponding period last year, the deaths numbered 521. The only record period in which automobile fatalities exceeded those reported for the September 11 period, was in the four weeks ending December 25, 1925, when the number was 632.

Most cities in the United States where figures were compiled showed an increase in the death rate from automobile operation, when results to date for 1926 were compared with those in 1925.

SPENCER'S FARM PURCHASE WITH SURPRISE BARGAIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 26—W. L. L. Spencer, formerly a grocer in the village of Lebanon, bought the Gilbert farm on the Columbia road in the town of Columbia, near the city line, and unknown to him until Saturday morning, he found that in the deal he had also come into the possession of an even dozen bottles of real old Scotch whiskey. Spencer was making a tour of his new property when he came to a pile of lumber about a road from the highway. In looking over the lumber he came upon the whiskey which was packed in two large cracker boxes. Having no recollection that the liquor was included in the transaction, Mr. Spencer's next step was to notify Captain of Police Frank McLean of the find. The latter said that the farm was out of local jurisdiction and he referred the owner to the state police barracks at Stafford Springs.

Four cases in which all of the arrests were made by State Policeman Clifford Willis of the Stafford Springs barracks, were tried in the Mansfield town court Saturday afternoon. All four defendants were found guilty by Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews. Grand Juror Carleton P. King prosecuted.

Gordon B. Andrews of Cranston, R. I., pleaded guilty to reckless driving and was fined $25 and costs, a total of $26.86.

Florimond LaRue of this city was charged with operating a motor vehicle with an open cut-out on the exhaust. He pleaded guilty and was fined $3 and costs, a total of $11.95.

A neighborhood row as it was termed by Justice Andrews resulted in the appearance of Joseph Horne and Samuel Bycel, each on a charge of breach of the peace, and each as defendant and complainant in the respective cases. Both men were in turn found guilty and fined $1 and costs each with a suspended sentence of thirty days in jail. The allegations against Horne was that he had struck one of the Bycel children and Bycel was said to have stood in front of Horne's home and proclaimed his sentiments in no uncertain or subdued language.

A reply has been received by Mayor John C. Tracy from F. C. Foley, passenger traffic manager of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company, in reference to a conference of the mayor and a citizens' committee held recently with E. W. Burtis, assistant to general passenger agent and Mr. Brooks, trainmaster, Hartford, relative to the change in train service which became effective Sunday between Hartford and Willimantic. Mr. Foley states that arrangements have been made with the New England Transportation company to accept on all trips of their motor coaches, railroad local and interline tickets between Willimantic and stations to Bolton Notch and Hartford in either direction. Between the same stations on the 7 a. m. trip from Willimantic and the 5:15 p. m. trip from Hartford, commutation and 25-ride family tickets will be accepted. For lack of evidence, Delia Langlois of Hartford, a former resident of this city, was freed of a charge of abandonment of her minor child, at a special session of the local police court Saturday forenoon. Through her attorney the woman pleaded not guilty. The case had been continued from July 30th. At that time the child was being cared for by relatives of the woman. Since then the mother of the accused and her family moved to Hartford and took care of the child until it was taken over by a Catholic welfare organization with the cost charged to the town of Windham. The child is now ill in Hartford. Prosecuting Attorney Saucher who received the complaint in the case, found that there was no evidence that the child had been abandoned.

After a long search and much inquiry, the man who suggested the name of the new community hotel as The Nathan Hale, has been discovered. Although present when the question was asked time and time again either privately or in public speech, Augustus K. Green, who was a member of the joint chamber of commerce and Rotary club committee which started the wheels turning for a new hotel, was too modest to stand and claim the praises due him. Mr. Greene had taken notice of the policy of the American Hotels corporation to adopt names historic in the locality and accordingly suggested Nathan Hale.

PUTNAM

MEDICAL TESTIMONY VALUED IN THE WETHERBEE TRIAL

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 26—The trial of Raymond Wetherbee, charged with murder in the first degree, will be resumed in superior court Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock. Six full court days have been consumed in the hearing.

Dr. S. B. Overlock and Dr. Charles Bartlett, medical experts for the defense, have not testified yet and if the time that will be required is gauged by that taken by other physicians who have been on the stand, one entire day will be needed. A number of other witneses are still to be heard. If one day is allotted for the arguments and the charge of the Court it will probably be Thursday before the case is given to the jury.

This is one of the most unusual murder cases ever tried in the state, certainly as far as Windham county is concerned. The testimony is of a character that ten years ago would have precluded the appearance of women as spectators, unless subpoenaed. Today they are in attendance as a matter of course. After the first day's session one-third of those present were women, many of them prominent in social life as well as in civic affairs.

On the second day of the hearing the crowd was so great that it was difficult to move through the aisles. Since then no one has been permitted to enter the court room after the seats were all taken.

Until the accused was put on the stand, one hour before adjournment, Thursday, he had not been seen to exchange a word with either of his attorneys or the court attendants. Neither did his face reveal any of the emotion that must have been felt by a man on trial for his life. But this apparent immobility was not due to any lack of intelligence, or failure to realize the seriousness of the situation in which he is placed. His testimony revealed that he had followed the proceedings closely and with keen appreciation of the effect upon himself. His answers to the questions of the attorneys were direct, his words well chosen, his replies easily understood.

Without embarassment, but with all absence of any air of bravado, he admitted that he had had intimate relations with the accusing witness, Agnes Pytko, but denied any knowledge of the crime, or that he had known of the condition she was in.

The latter part of the statement, which seems significant, is borne out by Miss Pytko herself, in a letter to him written June 10, and which is one of the exhibits, she asks him to call at her home on the following Sunday, and added that she had something to tell him which would be a surprise. In her testimony she said that he had come as requested but that she did not refer to the matter which she said would be a "surprise to him," and that it was not mentioned by either of them although they were together for two hours or more. His testimony was to the same effect.

In this connection she testified, and it was verified by others, that she worked all day in the mill at North Grosvenordale, (this was June 29th), that she went to her home at Wilsonville by trolley, sat on the veranda until 10 o'clock when she went to bed and fell asleep immediately. She awoke at 2 o'clock in the morning, left the house at 2:30, gave birth to the child, which was a full term infant, went back into her room and to bed at 3:15, dropped asleep soon and did not awaken until her brother-in-law called her in the morning.

The only talk she had with Wetherbee about her condition, according to her testimony, was in the mill yard at the noon recess June 29, which lasted from three to five minutes. Wetherbee denied any talk, and that he had had any talk with her that day, about anything. Four witnesses, three of them brothers, the other a friend who worked with him, verified this statement.

The medical testimony is evidently deemed of great importance by both sides. After the jury was secured Dr. Charles Bartlett of New Haven, well known pathologist, and Dr. Seldon B. Overlook, of Pomfret, the best known surgeon in this section of the state, have been in attendance at every session of the court, as medical advisers for the defense. Dr. Louis I. Mason of Willimantic has been acting in a similar capacity for the state.

Dr. Robert Paine of Thompson, who made an autopsy on the child, Dr. Karl T. Phillips of Putnam, who witnessed the autopsy, Dr. J. J. Russell, who was called to attend Miss Pytko at the Day Kimball hospital, Dr. E. F. Perry of Putnam, all have testified Dr. Bartlett and Dr. Overlock have not yet been called to the stand.

Miss Pytko testified that she cut the umbilical cord by holding it up with one hand and by drawing her thumb nail across it three times. She reiterated this on cross-examination, and in response to very searching questions by the court, she explained that she held it in the air—not on anything—and using one hand had severed it in the way described.

The doctors have disagreed on this proposition.

Dr. Mason thought she could have done it in this way; Dr. Russell said that she might have done it, that anything was possible; Dr. Paine was of the opinion that it could hardly have been done in this way; Dr. Phillips said that it might be, but that he thought it improbable.

Dr. Perry, the last witness before the adjournment of court for the week, said, emphatically that he did not think the cord could have been cut in the way Miss Pytko said that she did it. Since the hearing of the case began, Saturday, Sept. 18, he had tried to cut an umbilical cord in this manner. He had reached the conclusion he expressed as the result of this experiment. Using one hand and one nail he had made three attempts to cut the cord with negligible results.

By using both hands and the nails of both thumbs he had cut through the cord; it had taken him about five minutes to do it.

Dr. Perry is a graduate of Long Island College hospital, was an interne for two years at New York city hospitals, had practiced medicine for six years at Wellsfleet, Mass., and since then for twenty-one years in Putnam, with the exception of a year and a half spent as a member of a hospital unit overseas during the last war. He has assisted, he said, at the birth of at least 1,000 children, possibly 1,500. He also declared that the child born to Miss Pytko might have died from three or four different causes at the time of its birth born as this one was, without medical aid.

Janet C. Sheppard's auction starts today and will continue tomorrow at 10 o'clock a. m. rain or shine each day. Real estate, antiques and everything goes for the high dollar.—Adv.

Contrary to expectations the cross expmination of Wetherbee Friday did not consume over ten minutes. Mr. Miron asked him about an automobile ride on the Thursday night of the week of the tragedy, after he had been arrested the first time. The ride was in his car and with him were Anna Thibeault and Gilberta Breault and a young man named Manville.

According to the testimony of Miss Breault Thursday Wetherbee said that he was in trouble, that a child had been born to Agnes Pytko and that she said he was responsible for her condition, although he declared that he was in no way responsible and that Miss Thibeault had asked him if it would help him out if she (Miss Thibeault) would marry him. He replied that he could not tell until after he had seen his attorney. The offer was evidently made in all seriousness.

On this ride Thursday night they had gone to Wilsonville and past the home of Miss Pytko. Knowing that a search was being made for the body, Wetherbee in answer to Mr. Miron's question, said that he had advised the members of the party to be quiet, that the officers might think it strange if they saw him in that vicinity.

Mrs. Wetherbee, Raymond's mother, testified that there were six other children, four brothers and two sisters, the youngest a baby born in May of this year. They all lived together at North Grosvenordale except Walter who is married but works at the same mill, driving down in his car and taking his dinner with the family. On Tuesday night, June 29, she said that Raymond came home about 11.30. The baby was sick with the measles and she got up at 1.30 to give it some attention. She lighted a match and went to get a lamp in the room in which Raymond was sleeping in the same bed with his brother Stephen. Both boys, she said, were in bed, and she had called them at 6.30 in the morning to go to work.

Stephen Wetherbee said that Raymond slept in the bed as usual with him that night.

Another brother, Walter, verified the statements made by Raymond as to his not having talked with Miss Pytko on Tuesday noon.

TOOK DRINK OF IODINE THINKING IT A TONIC

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 26.—Augustus Gilbert of Woodstock came near terminating his life Friday. He had been helping a neighbor out corn in the morning and after returning to his home, felt the need of a tonic. His wife being away at the time and as Mr. Gilbert can not read he took a bottle of iodine for swamproot and swallowed a good dose before discovering his error. Mrs. Gilbert came in soon and learning what her husband had done sent for a doctor. The man's throat and mouth are badly burned but so far no other ill effects have developed.

JEWETT CITY

N. S. C. CLASSMATES MAKE SURPRISE GIFTS TO MRS. WELCH

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Sept. 26. — At 9 o'clock Saturday evening 24 young ladies and gentlemen visited the home of Mrs. Joseph Welch, formerly Miss Hazel Liberty of Sylvandale. Those present were schoolmates and friends who attended Norwich Business college at the same time she did. However, she was not at home but the gift to her was a chest of 106 pieces of Rogers silverware, one of the latest designs with initial "W". She also was presented an electric iron and toaster, linen, cut glass, four silk quilts, also a framed picture bearing the class colors.

Entertainment Congo vestry tonight. Mrs. Frink, reader. Music. Candy. 25c.—adv.

Notices were read Sunday in the borough churches that a collection for Red Cross relief work in Florida would be taken next Sunday.

An item in the Norwich locals recently asked that people who have the Bulletin left at their doors for their accommodation, do not ask the paper boys to change $5 bills, when they get their pay Saturday. One of the Jewett City boys was asked to change a $20 bill last week. In Jewett City, the boys are expected to pay the paper bill regularly every week. Last week one boy only had five cents left for himself, because so many of his customers either had $5 and $2 bills to be changed, and as could not change them, and others did not pay the 12 or 24 cents for their papers. He had over 20 customers who did not pay him, yet the boy has to pay his bill for papers he has delivered. As a result he will probably give up the route, for he does not see much in it for him. In the main, the boys are faithful in their deliveries, and they are not always at fault, if someone is missed occasionally. Often when they get their bundles, these have been opened and papers taken out. Even if the two cents is left to pay for the paper, it means that a regular customer does not get his paper, for the boys carry no extras, and each has just his regular customers' number in his bundle. It does not cost a customer anything to have the paper delivered at the door. And a little thoughtfulness would help keep good boys on the routes, also accommodate the customer.

At the town meeting to be held this (Wednesday) afternoon in Pachaug, seven matters of business are to be considered.

Town election in Stonington will be held October 4th, when polls will be open from 6 a. m. to 5 p. m. in each of the five voting districts as directed by Stonington Selectmen John Fribance, of Mystic; Arthur F. Babcock of Pawcatuck and Joseph A. Vargas of Stonington Borough.

Rev. Daniel Seekatz was in Kingston, and Wakefield, where he preached at the Brown chapel Sunday morning and at High street church in the evening.

Saturday evening, when traffic was heavy in Dixon square, a small girl fell in front of an automobile, while crossing the street. It was first thought that the automobile, operated by George Ferraro had struck the girl, but when she was taken to the office of Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, not a scratch or bruise could be found on her body. In the traffic jam which followed the mishap when a crowd gathered and autos were stopped up High street, one driver about four cars back in line, continually sounded his horn. He was directed by the traffic officer in charge to interview Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown.

Stonington delegates from the twentieth senatorial or "shoestring" district of Connecticut for the purpose of nominating a senator to succeed Fred M. Beckwith, of a Niantic, voted for representative, James Floyd of Waterford. Following the meeting they had dinner at the Wauregan hotel, Norwich. For delegate Alexander Marr of Pawcatuck, Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck was proxy; for Josephine Dickinson of Mystic. Mrs. Maud Manning and for Elvin Byers of Pawcatuck, at the Texas convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Charles J. Norris of Pawcatuck substituted.

Now he blesses that day many years ago when he learned to slip the pennies into the crack in the back of the Liberty Bell Bank!

But that simple little habit his Mother taught him has made her proud of him in his financial success today.

For he's a man of character, of backbone, of thrift. Be like him!

We'll help you.

TAFTVILLE COPS SERIES WITH VELVET TEAM AND EVEN UP WITH RIVERVIEW

Taftville A. A. strengthened its claim for the state semi-pro baseball honors over the week end when the team defeated Riverview 10 to 6, on Saturday and then trimmed the J. B. Martin club, 6 to 2, on Sunday. Saturday's victory evens the series with Riverview at 2-all and the victory Sunday clinched the series with the J. B. Martin team.

In both games it was all Taftville all the way and the opposing teams had but little chance. In Saturday's game Taftville was away in the first inning to a three run lead and with the exception of the second inning experienced little trouble in downing the Riverview club. Hughie Canavan pitched a nice game and with the exception of the second inning when Riverview scored four runs he had little difficulty in holding the opposition in check. Although he allowed 12 hits he kept them fairly well scattered and his support was good in the pinches.

West as was demonstrated in the first game of the series, proved to be no puzzle to the Taftville sluggers and was pounded hard. After nine runs had been made off his delivery Harrington was sent in to check the slaughter, did so effectively although he allowed one run in the eighth inning. Taftville collected 17 hits while Riverview nicked Canavan for 12.

Sunday's game was more interesting although six errors by the J. B. Martin team marred the game to some extent. Jacobs, one of the sweetest pitchers that has toed the rubber in this section of the state this season outpitched Lanning in practically every department; although had Lanning received better support the Taftville score might have been lower. Jacobs allowed but 7 hits which he kept far apart and also fanned 13 men. Lanning was nicked for 9 singles and fanned six and passed three.

The Taftville players hit at more opportune times and were assisted in the scoring by the loose playing of their opponents. The crowd was the largest seen at the J. B. Martin park this summer. The scores:

WHITE SOX CLOSE SEASON BY BEATING SENATORS

CHICAGO, Sept. 26—(AP)—The White Sox closed the American league season in Chicago today by defeating Washington 7 to 4. The locals drove Jones off the hill in the third inning and then hit opportunely against Marberry and Loftus. Score:

HAGEN CAPTURES PRO TITLE FOR THIRD TIME

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Walter Hagen's capture of the professional golf championship for the third successive season stands out like Gibraltar in a campaign that has seen most of rock-ribbed title-holding forces put to route.

In clinching his place as the king of match players and Bobby Jones' only rival for all-around supremacy on the links for the year, Hagen defied precedent as well as the 1926 jinx that has beset more champions than any other season on record.

The extent of the athletic upheaval is best shown by the fact that six of nine world's boxing titles have either changed hands or been vacated, while four out of five major national golf crowns have shifted and seven out of eight national tennis championships have changed ownership. This takes in the big title tilts of Great Britain and America, where the main battles have been fought.

NUTMEGS LOSE OPENER TO WESTERLY MAJESTICS

In the first game of the 1926 football season hereabouts, the Nutmegs lost by a 6 to 0 score to the Majestics of Westerly at Sachem Field, Falls, Sunday before a fair sized crowd.

Both sides played good football practically throughout with thrilling plays being pulled off to keep the crowd on edge.

Stenhouse, formerly of Westerly High, made the touchdown for the Rhode Islanders on a brilliant run.

The attraction next Sunday at Sachem field is expected to be the fast Jewett City Speedboys and it is should attract a large crowd of gridiron fans.

Sachems Swamps Yantic A. A.

Sunday afternoon on the Duwell field, the Sachems swamped Yantic, A. A. by the score of 12 to 5. Jerry Lamphere, on the mound for Yantic was touched for 13 hits, but errors at critical times was his downfall. Couture on the mound for the Sachems was master of Yantic at all times holding them to 5 hits and striking out 9 men. The game was called at the end of the seventh inning when Yantic retired from the field.

AMATEURS BEAT PROS IN EXHIBITION MATCH

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP)—George Von Elm, national amateur champion, and Jesse Guilford, Boston amateur, finished their 36-hole exhibition Rotary club match for the benefit of crippled children of New York all even with Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen, professional champion, over the winged foot course at Mamaroneck today.

Von Elm had the best nine-hole card, a 33 for the first nine holes of the day. Sarazen and Hagen shot a 70 in the morning round. The amateur afternoon in 69 to 71 for the professionals had 71, but came home in the final stars.

Bad News for Gunmen

An army pistol brought before the court recently in a criminal trial had its identification number badly mutilated—the guilty one had thought to escape by marring the pistol so that no number would be left by which he could be traced. But some experts on metallurgical research at the bureau of standards got busy and developed a new method whereby inscriptions on steel that are apparently obliterated can be detected and the pistol was turned into a valuable piece of evidence.

Details of the process will not be revealed, for reasons of public safety, but it is explained that it rests upon the fact that metals, generally regarded as dead and inert, are actually alive in the sense that they retain in their internal structure evidence of their past history.

KERRIGAN AND M'LEAN TAKE EASY MATCH FROM WALKER AND DONALDSON

Tom Kerrigan, Siwanoy professional paired with George McLean of Grassy Sprain took an easy match, 5 to 3, from Jimmie Donaldson, Fenimore pro and Cyril Walker, former American open champion, in an exhibition at the Norwich Golf club Sunday afternoon for the benefit of George A. Falconer, former golf professional of the Norwich club. The match was followed by a large gallery which carefully noted every shot and was quick to applaud the spectacular.

There were plenty of thrills although some were disappointed expecting to see the course record smashed. The nearest approach to the record was Walker's 76 the best card of the afternoon. Walker went out in 40 but on the homeward journey came in with a 36 one over par. McLean also played brilliant golf getting a 77 and but for a bad break on the sixth hole would have beaten Walker.

McLean furnished the real thrill of the afternoon on the seventh hole with an eagle 3. On this hole he was away to a long drive down the middle of the fairway and his second shot came to rest behind a slight mound about 25 feet from the pin and just off the green. He chipped over the mound and directly to the cup. Following this he got a birdie 3 on the 8th.

Kerrigan played a nice game, especially with his driver, getting off tremendous drives that carried him far beyond the other three. It was this terrific driving power that got him into trouble on the 16th where he attempted Hagen's feat of driving across the corner of the dog-leg hole but he went out of bounds. He made a beautiful drive off the first tee, a good 300 yards but he was strong on his second shot and over ran the green taking a six. Kerrigan turned in three birdies, the eighth, 16th and 15th.

Donaldson was far from the Donaldson of tournament play and he was in trouble a good deal of the time taking a 44 on the outward trip and returning with a 42 for a card of 86. Several times Donaldson drove out of bounds but he took it all with a smile and as part of the game.

The first four holes of the match were halved and then Kerrigan and McLean shot to the front with their birdies and the eagle taking six holes in succession. With a par three for the 11th Walker cut the lead to five. Kerrigan made it six up on the 12th with a par four only to have Walker cut it to five up when he caged a birdie on the 13th. Donaldson got back another hole on the 14th with a par five.

Kerrigan won the match on the next hole with a birdie 2, and from then on the play was a brilliant display of golf, powerful driving and pretty approaching, the players taking chances that would have been risky had the match depended on the last few holes.

The cards follow:

THE COUNTER RESERVATIONS

When this country set forth the terms under which it would join the world court it was necessary to submit these reservations to the respective nations in order to get their approval. Five of the nations have given their acceptance. The others, meeting in Geneva, for the purpose of jointly considering the reservations, have only a while accepted the reservations. They have submitted counter reservations to our reservations, for in other words they take exceptions to parts of reservations four or five and in doing that ask for the approval by this government of their action.

This means that the whole matter is being chased about the bush. In order to get the approval of the counter reservations it will be necessary to submit them to the United States senate, where a two thirds vote would be required. They cannot be dealt with otherwise since the reservations are the product of the senate and if there is any alteration to be made in them it must be done by the senate.

When the question of adhering to the world court was before the senate it received much opposition. It can hardly be said that the sentiment in the senate has grown any more favorable since that time. On the other hand there has been a persistent fight maintained against it. It has been used in connection with primary campaigns and while it was probably only a minor factor it is so nevertheless that several pro-court senators failed of renomination. However that result may have been due to other causes it does not serve to better the prospects of weakening the reservations under which we declared our willingness to enter the court.

In all probability the opponents of the court will welcome the action of the other nations. They will see the opportunity of reconsidering the whole matter and by doing so will believe their chance of refusing to adhere on any terms is there by increased. This possibility could not fail to have been understood by the nations in their joint action in playing into the hands of the court opponents in this country.

DISREGARDING THE PUBLIC

Perhaps no one would make the claim that Mrs. Ferguson was defeated for the renomination as governor of Texas because of the large number of pardons which she granted while in office. Possibly there was no lasting opposition to Cole Blease because of the way in which he opened the doors of the penitentiaries of that state when he was governor, and if pressed no one might be willing to claim that Governor Groesbeck of Michigan failed of a renomination because of the manner in which he used the pardoning power.

But it is evident nevertheless, that the wholesale resort to pardons without regard for the effect upon the public created in each instance an added argument against the individual and furnished an added reason for personal opposition.

The case of a governor are bound to come in for close scrutiny and when it became apparent or is believed that there is a misuse of the powers given such an official the resentment is found to be spontaneous and widespread.

In the case of Governor Groesbeck of Michigan who was recently defeated in the primary for renomination it was possible to show that he had freed 5,000 prisoners during the six years he had held office. That there should be scandals in connection with such a record, quite the same as there was in Illinois because of Governor Small's similar activity was inevitable. That had displayed a disregard for public protection in a manner which could not be overlooked, and particularly during a period when there has been so much apparent encouragement to crime rule.

The governor of Michigan had also completed three terms and would have started a fourth had he received a renomination. It is against custom in Michigan to go beyond the third term. The fact that he desired to disregard precedent was a strong factor against his ambition, but it is evident that there was a combination of reasons why he should not have anticipated further honors at the hands of the public and as is so often the case his record was too big a handicap to be overlooked.

STAMPING OUT HAZING

Hazing has been frowned upon, and severely so in numerous instances. It has come to regarded as a practice which has no excuse for toleration, and as time goes on it is more and more evident that if it is going to be suppressed there can be no half way measures adopted. Either there is going to be hazing or there is not. When institutions begin overlooking certain cases the ground work is being laid for a return to the mistreatment of younger classmen and soon it will be flourishing in its old-time fashion to the harm of those being hazed and to the distress of the college where it is done.

This month it has been found necessary to suspend four members of the senior class at West Point. It doesn't appear that there was any great amount of brutality used but it showed that the rule against hazing in the military academy was being broken and that the excusing of it because it was slight, or not serious in its results, would simply have been an entering wedge for more of it. It would have created the impression that the offense was being winked at and in no time would be going full blast.

There is nothing to justify hazing, although there might be a disposition to accept it and overlook the lack of justification if there was a disposition to use good judgment in its limits. Hazing has gotten its black eye because of the utter disregard for the rights or feelings of the individual. It gives the bully a wonderful chance to express his feelings, and that is reason enough why it should be stopped.

West Point was only of many institutions which decided that hazing had been carried too far and henceforth must be abandoned. It is the sensible course, and in order to properly enforce it and have it mean something there's nothing to do but enforce it rigidly. Only by so doing will there be the discouragement which needs to be given to others who may be inclined to revive the tabooed practice.

WAR CRAFT IN CHINA

The Chinese, in some instances, pretend that they do not understand why there should be a concentration of naval craft of other countries in Chinese waters. They think that American war craft and probably British naval vessels ought not to be in the far east and in doing so they entirely overlook the necessity of protecting the interests of the foreigners in China.

But it would be a nice state of affairs when China is unable to give protection to the subjects of other nations within its boundaries if those nations neglected to look out for their interests, especially when it has been intimated that they are menaced.

Let the impression be gained that there is no need of showing any respect for the people of other countries and it would be a sorrow plight for those subjects who found themselves in a part of China where the revolutionists were in control and causing terror right and left.

It has always been necessary to maintain gunboats in and about Chinese waters for the purpose of insuring a reasonable degree of protection to the people which they represent. It would be preferable to terminate such means of protection if it could be accomplished in any other manner, but it promises to be some time before Chinese conditions will permit it.

Between the keeping of sending of war craft to China and withdrawing it and keeping it away, there is nothing in the Chinese situation today which makes it possible to even consider the latter. China in its thoughtful moments has good reason to ponder over this question.

AGAINST THE PRIMARY

The opponents of the primary system are increasing. They have been getting some conclusive demonstrations in recent years and have been finding out that the theory of the primary is excellent but its operation is wretched.

The primary test has shown to the disgust of great numbers how greatly has the expense of running for office been increased and what a great avenue is open for even the legitimate use of money in connection with primary contests with the poor man standing no show whatever.

It is not surprising that Theodore Roosevelt Jr. who is running for office, should have undergone a change of mind, or at least to have come out in opposition to the primary which was so ardently advocated by his father. He believes that it would be advisable to go back to the convention system for the designation of candidates and then submit them by means of the direct primary for nomination. He understands the faults of both systems and declares that those of the convention "lie in the fact that it is impossible to ignore the wishes of the rank and file of the party," but he must have had opportunities for seeing that the chance of getting the most men and of serving the best interests of the party comes through the convention rather than the primary.

One point is certain and that is that he recognizes the bad features of the direct primary after nearly a decade of action for a number of years the period of observation since has shown it getting worse instead of better as the use of it has continued. It is not surprising that there is the return of the convention system grows steadily stronger.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Custard cups are fine molds for the jellied salad.

Lamb requires more basting than any other meat.

A meringue will not fall if baked slowly in a warm oven with the door open.

Damp tea leaves sprinkled over the rugs before sweeping will brighten them wonderfully.

Dip the ends of the shoestrings into mucilage and let them dry, when children lose the tops to their laces.

To clean fur collars and cuffs, rub them thoroughly with cornmeal soaked in gasoline.

The best duster for plush or velvet furniture is a clean piece of chamois wrung out of clear water.

A good cement for filling cracks in a stove is made of equal parts of salt and hardwood ashes mixed with water to form a paste.

Chased silver may be polished by brushing it thoroughly with whiting, then washing with a little turpentine and soap. Polish with chamois.

Rugs and carpets should be turned every six months where there is much wear. Constant turning in this way causes them to wear evenly.

Clean white kid slippers with any mold soap and sprinkle them with talcum powder. When dry, rub off with soft cloth. This makes them retain that new look.

By immersing an ink-stained handkerchief in milk immediately after it has been stained and allowing it to soak, the ink will invariably disappear.

A tablespoon of condensed milk added to a bowl of whipped cream and beaten into it thoroughly just before serving will add to the deliciousness of the cream and also increase the amount.

Apple, potato and most other stains may be removed from the hands by rubbing them with oatmeal moistened with lemon juice or vinegar. Never use soap before removing the stain or it will be more difficult to remove.

PREPARING THE FLOOR

Whether you stain, varnish or wax the new wood floor it requires some preparation if you want to make a good job of it.

The floor must be perfectly smooth to attain best results and this is done by planing and sandpapering. Be sure to do this parallel with the grain of the wood.

Perhaps merely sandpaper will be necessary. This will prove far less strenuous if you fasten the sandpaper to the bottom of the weighted polishing brush, or if you have no such brush, fasten the sandpaper to the bottom of a heavy block of wood and attach a handle.

After planing and sandpapering sweep the floor and dust it with a soft cloth before applying the finish.

TO MARK DISHES

When lending dishes for church socials, do away with the chance of their becoming mixed by pasting a label on the bottom of each dish made from adhesive tape, on which is written in ink your name. It will stick through many washings.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

When the nails on fingers or toes are extremely brittle, one should take nature's hint that something is wrong with one's internal economy, unless there are obvious external reasons for the condition, as the use of chemicals in one's work. For mild cases, however, a simple nail oil will bring good results in two or three weeks.

Furrows of the nails are sometimes caused by a local disease which can only be prescribed for by a physician. If these ridges grow toward the end of the nail, they may be eventually removed by trimming process. If they are longitudinal they cannot be removed by this method, but can only be improved by thorough polishing.

Never work in a kitchen where the gas oven burners and several other burners are going fullilll without having ventilation in the room. The air need not be directed on the stove, thus preventing good oven work, but air there should be. One lighted burner is said to consume as much air as four adults.

The commonest cause of double chins, outside of excessive overweight, is faulty posture. You must learn to hold your head up, chin level, chest out. Try to hold your body as tall as you can when sitting, standing or walking. If your work requires you to look down most of the time you must take special exercises to keep your neck well formed. Throw your head back and stretch the throat muscles once in a while during the day.

GIVE 'EM CAMBRIC TEA

It is highly the desire to imitate their elders that makes children want tea and coffee. You can get the same psychological effect with the wholesome drink known as ambrig or "tea-kettle" tea. If you make the process of preparing it resemble the preparation of a cup of coffee, the children will enjoy their drink all the more. Make it with milk and a little more than an equal quantity of hot water. Sweeten it slightly. First pour the water into the cup—that's their tea or coffee. Then pour in the milk, just as you would "cream" a cup of coffee. If the children can be allowed to add the sugar themselves, so much the better. Since evaporated milk is simply fresh pure milk concentrated to more than double richness, the cambrig tea has the same food value as an equal amount of ordinary milk.

TO CLEAN ENAMEL

Highly enameled surfaces should be wiped with a soft cloth wrung out of tepid water. A small quantity of neutral white soap solution in the water can be used if there are fingermarks or other grease spots, but do not use a strong soap for alkalis are ruinous.

BASE FOR SOUPS

Water in which vegetables are boiled should always be saved, as it contains the most valuable minerals and vitamins. It may be used as stock in making soup.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Handbags remain large and square and colored to harmonize with the costume.

Straight-line kasha frocks in autumn shades are excellent for wear under a fur top coat.

Fur sets consisting of long, rich scarfs and enormous rectangular muffs are coming into fashion again.

An attractive sport coat from Paris is of brown wool and has a hood hanging down the back, lined with a darker tone.

A most attractive white satin dinner gown is cut on very tailored lines and trimmed with stitching in heavy silver thread.

Paris is using the tabot on evening gowns. A charming adaptation is the use of pleated gold cloth on a metal brocade gown.

There is a tendency in Paris to use girdles and belts that outline the hipline sharply, with skirts that flare below the knees.

The tailored costume of this season is not only done in tweeds and mannish materials, but in taffeta, crepe georgette and the soft ribboned silks.

Large bows of pussywillow taffeta ribbon perch on the shoulders of young girls' dance frocks, with long streamer ends falling one in back and one in front.

Inspired by the costumes of a famous Spanish chantreusse are dance frocks of black or cream lace, with skirts ruffled to the waist and scarlet flowers posed at shoulder and hipline.

RUSSIAN STYLE BLOUSE POPULAR

Whatever else Russia supplies to the world she can be counted on each season to furnish a certain number of fashion motifs. This year it is the blouse which owes its origin to the Russian peasant and which has been adapted to smart costumes. One method of its use is in the two-piece costume. One of these has a skirt of pleated crepe. Over this is worn a velvet blouse with winged sleeves. The skirt of the blouse is decorated with metal ribbon bands and bands of mole and the collar is similarly ornamented.

BLACK FOOTWEAR GAINS FAVOR

There are two reasons why the smartest shoes at the moment are shiny black. One is that black patent leather and black satin are fashionable and the other is that they make the foot look smaller and more slender. Buckles are smart on the black pumps for they give the appearance of a high instep whether the wearer has one or not.

REGARDING SLEEVES

Sleeves are undergoing a great revolution. Undoubtedly those with fullness below the elbow are winning. This may mean a wide bell sleeve or one caught in very closely at the wrist. Very full accordeon pleated sleeves are seen on chiffon frocks.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES

In light materials use dark thread when basting and on dark use white. You see these stitches easily and they are always removed.

Very easy to make and extremely good looking are runners for the porch table. They are made of handloom linen or cotton with motifs cut from varicolored oilcloth appliqued.

If you wear your aprons out quickly, make a double small one to wear with the regular size ones. Also make separate good-sized bibs double and have them long enough to tuck into the binding of the apron.

When making buttonholes first overcast the edges then work closely in the usual way. A buttonhole worked so will never fray.

TO MEND LINEN

Table linen is best mended with embroidery cotton of a number to correspond with the quality or the cloth. Under the ragged edges of the tear tack a piece of stiff paper and make a network of stitches back and fourth over its edges, carrying the stitches about an inch beyond the tear. Thin places and breaks in linen may be run with embroidery floss. Towels should be mended in the same way.

REMEMBER THIS

Sheets usually are make up 63x90, 63x108 for single size beds and 81x90 and 81x108. It is wise to have both lengths the shorter sheet to serve as the under sheet and the longer one for the upper sheet, which will allow for turning down over the tops of blankets and comforts and still permit good firm tucking in at the foot of the bed. A short upper sheet that does not tuck well under the mattress at the foot is an abomination, while the three-yard sheets are unnecessary for under sheets.

MENDING AT HOME

If you are afraid the bottom of the glass or pottery vase leaks, pour melted paraffin into it about half an inch thick. Then use as usual and have no fear concerning leakage.

CONCERNING WOMEN

A feature of the new observation parlor cars to be operated on the Boston and Albany railroad will be a smoking compartment especially for women.

Fumile Yanagisavia, 13-year-old Japanese girl of Berkeley, Cal., won the California state prize in the recent American legion essay contest.

All bootlegger cases which reach the courts in Texas are prosecuted by a woman, Mrs. Sarah C. Menezes, Assistant United States District attorney.

Two women, one of the 55 years of age and the other an Osage Indian, took part in the recent Ford reliability contest in which 24 airplanes were entered.

Of the 3,410 establishments operating in Maryland in 1925, a total of 48,483 women were employed by them. Of this number 32,942 were in factories.

Though she is only 14 years or age, Miss Irene Rodney of Newark, N. J., is an experienced carpenter. During her school vacation she helped her father put up a building.

FOR WIPING GLASSES

A piece of cotton crepe hemmed and washed makes a good, nonlinty glass towel.

THEY DON'T AGE

Keep your white satin slippers, and your pure white silk lingerie, wrapped in blue tissue paper if you wish to keep them from turning yellow.

WINTER CLEANING

Wood alcohol is an efficient agent for window cleaning during cold weather. It will not freeze on the window as water does. Dampen a cloth with alcohol and apply it to the window. Shine with dry cloth.

RECIPES

Plum Butter: The deep purplish plums with veins of red under the skin are the best for making butter. Remove the pits from the fruit, place in watershdrlushdrdlu un up, (((mm a preserving kettle and add just enough water to prevent scorching. Cook slowly until the skins burst and the juice runs freely, then press through a colander. For one quart of the pulp allow a pint of heated sugar.

A Simple Tea Cake: Graham cracker sandwiches make a delightful tea cake, and can be easily prepared. For the filling, cream confectioner's sugar and milk to a consistency between a cake icing and a fondant. Add a pinch of salt and a few drops of vanilla. Cocoa may be added for a chocolate flavor. For a more elaborate sweet, add cocoanut, chopped nuts, or raisins to the filling and spread between thin slices of loaf cake.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Danny Thinks of Home

In time the wanderer's steps will turn
Back to the home he once did spurn.
—Old Mother Nature.

Danny Meadow Mouse was thinking of home more and more. It wasn't his home there on the edge of the salt marsh that he was thinking of. No, indeed! He didn't regard that as really home. His home was with Nanny Meadow Mouse on the Green Meadows and that was the home he was thinking of.

You see, it was this way: for a long time after Danny had come to the beach there had been so much to do and so much to see and so much to learn that he hadn't given home a thought. No, sir, Danny Meadow Mouse hadn't given home a thought. It is quite likely to be that way with people when they are having a good time. But now Danny was beginning to get a bit lonesome. There was no longer so much to see. I mean by that that there was no longer so much that was new to Danny. When you have seen a thing over and over again it becomes commonplace and tiresome, no matter how interesting it may have been in the beginning.

"That fellow talks jjust as if he didn't know I could hear him," thought Danny to himself.

Then, too, Danny was getting fed up on salt. He had salt for breakfast, salt for dinner and salt for supper. It seemed to him that there wasn't anything he tasted that wasn't salty. He even tasted salt when he licked his lips. So Danny thought more and more of the Green Meadows. Then, too, cool weather was coming and it was time to be making plans for the winter.

There was one other thing that made Danny think more and more of home. He had a neighbor he didn't like. That neighbor had a habit of sitting on Danny's roof and snapping his bill, and talking to himself low enough for Danny to hear him; and somehow Danny didn't like to hear him. His talk would run something like this:

"There's nothing I like better than a fat meadow mouse. No, if I had a fat meadow mouse there wouldn't be a thing in the world I would envy anybody. I don't know of anything that tastes better than a fat meadow mouse. I have tried all sorts of things, but give me a meadow mouse every time. If I thought there was a meadow mouse around here, I would stay all night."

Now Danny would lie in his little nest right underneath the old log on which the speaker was sitting, and Danny would shiver and shake clear to the end of his little short tail. He used to curl up and hold on to the end of his tail sometimes, so as to be sure it didn't rustle in the grass. You see, that neighbor sitting on his roof was Short-ear the Owl. Danny didn't like him. Danny was fairly acquainted with Hooty the Great Horned Owl and Spooky the Screech-owl, but Short-ear was a new member of the owl family, so far as Danny was concerned, and Danny didn't like him. For that matter, Danny didn't like any member of the Owl family. But he particularly objected to Short-ear, because the latter spent so much time sitting on that old log under which Danny had his nest, Hooty and Spooky perch in trees. Danny says this is where respectable birds ought to perch, but Short-ear is found on or close to the ground. For this reason he is sometimes called the Marsh Owl.

"That fellow talks just as if he didn't know I could hear," thought Danny to himself. "It gives me the cold creeps to hear him tell how good a fat meadow mouse would taste. He knows perfectly well I'm under here. It is getting so I don't dare go out except-ing in the day time. Just like all the other owls, that fellow doesn't make any noise when he flies, and I feel it in my bones that sooner or later I'm going to furnish him that dinner he's talking about all the time, unless I get out of here. I think I'll go straight back to the Green Meadows and Nanny Meadow Mouse.

And then, for the first time it struck Danny that he hadn't the slightest idea where the Green Meadows were, or how he could possibly get there.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Does Anyone Know?

Mr. Editor: I have in my mind a letter to your paper de Hale in Norwich, asking who "P. H." was, a girl who wrote him from Norwich in June 1776. She signed herself "P. H." and he endorsed it "P. H." on the back. So far I cannot identify her. Perhaps one of your anti-quarian readers could do so.

"Eskimo Spitz" Dogs

Mr. Editor: An account of the Brooklyn fair dog show awards in Friday's Bulletin makes mention of an "Eskimo Spitz" class.

What is an "Eskimo Spitz" dog?

The American Kennel club does not recognize such a breed, and I have never heard of or seen any exhibited at any A. K. C. licensed show.

The purpose of a dog show is to encourage the breeding of thoroughbred dogs. An Eskimo dog and a Spitz dog are entirely two different breeds. Are we to understand that the dogs exhibited under the combination name are 50-50?

It may be a good idea for those who own "Eskimo Spitz" dogs to ascertain whether their dogs are eligible for registration as thoroughbreds.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Captain Lowenstein who is reported to have made an offer to the Belgian government to place $50,000,000 at its disposal for two years without interest is one of the mystery men of Europe. Although there are few financial pies in the world in which he has not a finger, he remains one of the most secretive and mysterious men alive. Indeed, to the general public his name is almost unknown. Yet he is one of the most powerful men behind the screens in the drama of nations; his word on a matter of finance can make or mar aspirations of more than commercial importance. Captain Lowenstein is the son of a Brussels banker of small standing, and from this business the son launched out in a manner which was to electrify finance. At 49 years of age he has become one of the world's richest men almost entirely by his own effort and genius. He went to England before the war and makes his home on a magnificent estate near Melton Mowbray.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D.

The Use of Books

"He that shall make search after knowledge, let him seek it where it is," said Montaigne of books.

Whatever your purpose, books will help you to accomplish it. They make the knowledge of mankind our own if we know how to avail ourselves of them. Only the wise can get the best out of books, they refuse to deliver their message to the ignorant.

Next to knowing a thing yourself the most necessary thing is knowing where to find it, and the method of getting at the information which is stored in books is an art that must be acquired.

Lives of great men remind us that there are still a few book agents.

Home Breakfasts Like the Statler's

STATLER Hotels are famous for little things which mean so much to guests. A morning paper at the door, running ice water in each room, exceptional service, and, above all, an amazing coffee which brings countless people back. Wherever they go they discuss it.

The secret is La Touraine Coffee brewed in the perfect way. All Statler Hotels serve that exquisite blend. To thousands of men and women it brings a new conception of how good a coffee can be. And many want to match it.

You can enjoy that coffee daily if you wish. Just ask your grocer for La Touraine (Extra). It costs no fancy price. Or let us send you a sample package and tell you how they brew it in the Statler kitchens.

Interesting facts about La Touraine (Extra) Coffee

It is the largest-selling coffee in New England, the birthplace of fine coffees in America. In this home of exacting coffee critics, it is considered the supreme result of 237 years of coffee development.

It is the coffee served in many dining places famous for their coffees. In all Statler Hotels, for instance. In the magnificent Shoreland of Chicago. In countless country homes which exude fine hospitality.

The blend combines the four finest coffees that grow. Each comes from a different country, each is the pride of a nation. Each derives its excellent flavor from one of the rarest soils of the earth.

Three of the coffees combined in this blend cost 50% more than ordinary coffee, and 25% more than Sao Paulo, the prize coffee of Brazil. One is so rare that only 30,000 bags are grown yearly.

The formula for this blend is a secret, carefully preserved. Coffee experts spent 20 years in perfecting it. No other blend has been made to resemble it. Those who find here their ideal flavor can find it nowhere else.

Mr. E. J. Butler, the noted coffee expert, personally tests, tastes and selects all coffees used in this blend. His duty is to maintain, without regard to cost, this premier coffee flavor. He pays any price necessary to combine in La Touraine (Extra) the maximum delight.

La Touraine (Extra) is sold direct to retail grocers. This to save middlemen's profits. It is sold in double sealed cartons, not in cans. These and other economies—about 11 cents per pound—pay for the extra quality. Thus users get this matchless coffee without a fancy price.

PYTHIANS MADE FIELD DAY AND PARADE AT MYSTIC BIG EVENT

The followers of the example of Damon and Pythias set aside last Saturday, for a gala day in which Pythian Knights and Sisters from Rhode Island came to Mystic and celebrated with the Pythian members of the domain of Connecticut. For fraternal good will and real honest-to-goodness enjoyment the day will live in the memory of the celebrants for a long while. The spirit dominating the entire celebration was in keeping with the creed of the Knights of Pythias who are stressing friendship as their most exalted precept. The byword among the Connecticut Pythians in the last few days has been "If you are a good Knight, pray for fair weather." The combined prayers of so many Knights and Sisters, good and true, must have proven effective, for about ten o'clock Saturday forenoon the mist cleared and the threatened rain turned into sunshine.

All ways led to Mystic on Saturday. As the Knights and Sisters arrived at Rossie park where the parade was to form they were met with a large banner inscribed "Welcome Knights of Pythias." Rossie park was fittingly decorated, and a very large American flag on top of the grand stand floated gloriously in the breeze and could be seen miles away. The out of town Knights and Sisters began to arrive early and they immediately made their presence felt all over Rossie park grounds. Capt. Taylor and Mrs. Taylor in command of a squad of 35 ladies, dressed in spotlessly white uniforms initiated the guest to quahaug clam chowder, made of East Greenwich clams which are reputed as the finest in New England. Mrs. Taylor will vouch for the Knights of Pythias as capable of doing justice to East Greenwich clams. About 1 p. m. the automobiles on the grounds numbered over 200 and many were tastefully decorated, almost all bearing Knights of Pythias flags. If among the numerous machines one was minus the fraternal flag, it was not the fault of Mrs. Alice Noyes, of Mystic, who qualified as a very active officer and successful sales woman. Those who were able to withstand her charming persuasion easily submitted to the cunnig solicitation of her baby boy who proved a very successful aid in trade.

The arrival of the East Haddam band, a fine organization of 37 men led by A. R. Collier, was marked with a good natured ovation. The next arrival of importance was Hira Temple, No. 90, of New Britain in charge of Walter Gould of the Patrols team. The entire organization was dressed in fine zouave uniform. Knights of Pythians Uniform Rank in charge of Brigadier General J. F. Otto Seymour were next to arrive. El Karun Temple, No. 45, of Providence, with all members attired in pretty gold colored satin zouave uniforms, elaborately embroidered, put in appearance. With El Karun came the famous drum corps of 25 members under leadership of Hamilton L. Carpenter who took first prize at the New England convention recently held at Portland, Maine. As they alighted from their machines they were given a very enthusiastic welcome. Next to receive a friendly welcome were about 45 members of Polo Lodge, No. 32, of Middletown, who were very neatly arranged for the occasion. Memorial Temple, No. 35, of Manchester came with an equal number of members. Westerly also made a fine showing and Wauregan Lodge, No. 6, of Norwich soon proved the moving spirit of the entertainment.

The parade began to form at 2:30 p. m. and was under way at 3:45 p. m. led by a squad of Knights of Pythias Uniformed Rank police and East Haddam band. The grand officers, in automobiles, came next, followed by a beautiful float decorated by the ladies of Wilcox Temple, No. 7 Pythian Sisters, of Westerly. The float symbolized devotion to the Red, White and Blue. Miss Olga Gervasini, tastefully dressed in a blue gown, was seated upon a throne holding a large American flag and perched upon a field of snow white ground, covering the engine of the float, was a white dove with outstretched wings symbolizing peace. Next in line came New London flag bearers followed by 24 members of Wauregan Lodge, No. 6, of Norwich, who made a very fine appearance. Norwich was followed by Westerly and Mystic Knights, accompanied by an elaborate float furnished by Pequot Temple, No. 24, Pythian Sisters of Mystic. The float was tastefully decorated with Miss Edith Forbes as "A Pythian Sister" and Miss Marion Marrow as "A Flower Girl." Manchester Memorial Temple, No. 35, was led by three members dressed to represent "The Spirit of '76" and received much notice. El Karun Temple, No. 45, Dokkies of Providence with their fine drum corps made a fine showing. They were led by Pauline, Anna and Gladys Bresford of Edgehill Temple, No. 3, Bristol, R. I., charmingly attired in specially designed zouave uniform and head dress followed by Catherine and Elizabeth Marx and Maud Holbrook belonging to the same temple, dressed in unique, and artistically colored smocks; they attracted much attention. Goff Temple, No. 1, Pythian Sisters of New London were represented by a distinguished looking float impersonating "Flora," the Goddess of flowers, after which came the officers in a tastefully decorated automobile. Clover Temple, No. 9, Norwich Pythian Sisters, with Most Excellent Chief Clara Rush and her aides were in the next auto. Hira Temple, No. 90, zouaves of New Britain and Polo Lodge, No. 32, of Middletown were next in line. They were led by two Japanese dressed pages carrying a banner with the inscription "Middletown." The rest of the procession was made up of about one hundred automobiles bearing various lodges of Knights and Sisters.

The line of march was through Greenville to Broadway, past Gettysburg monument into Main street past Mystic drawbridge turning into Gravel street, past the Masonic Temple up Cliff street to Pearl, swinging back onto Main street, past Mystic hotel, on the balcony of which Charles T. Crandall, president of the chamber of commerce and the members of the chamber reviewed the parade. From Main street the marchers returned to the field by the former route of march.

The prizes awarded to the paraders were: A silver cup to Polo Lodge No. 32 of Middletown as best looking Knights in line; Hira Temple No. 90, of New Britain as the best looking Dokkies was also presented a silver cup. The figure of a lady, wrought in silver, mounted upon an ebony pedestal, symbolizing "Victory" was awarded to Pequot Temple No. 24 Pythians Sisters of Mystic for the best showing fleet.

The winners of prizes on the athletic field were as follows: Sydney Shabekoff of Norwich won the fat man's race; 60 yd dash was won by Herb Alley of Memorial Temple, No. 33, Manchester; 100 yd dash by L. Newman of El Karun Temple, No. 45, Providence; tug of war between 12 men of El Karun and an equal number from Polo Lodge, No. 32, of Middletown, was won for Connecticut by the Polo braves. In the 40 yd relay race in which Providence, Manchester and New Britain participated, Manchester came out first with New Britain second. Standing broad jump was won by Will Clark of Manchester with a 9 feet 3 inches jump. Clark also won the high jump, easily clearing five feet. The ladies ball throwing contest was won by Most Excellent Chief Mrs. Gladys Clark of Memorial Temple, No. 33, Manchester, by sending the ball 205 feet and receiving a great ovation.

At the dance held in the evening at Grange hall, Miss Olga Gervasini, of Westerly, received the prize for style contest. Miss Helen Podaline of Mystic, dancing with Sam Pierson of Norwich, received the fox trot prize. Mr. and Mrs. Hermes of Mystic, won the waltz prize. Alfred Balestracia, of Mystic, won the Charleston prize.

The beauty prize with the title of Pythian Queen of New England was given to Most Excellent Chief of Goff Temple, No., of New London. Mrs. Gertrude Abramson in making this award the judges were put to a severe test as there were present several Pythian Sisters who were equally qualified to receive the prize which consisted of a large silver loving cup mounted upon an ebony base.

C. G. Clendenen, the moving spirit of the affair, expressed his indebtedness to the various committees which spared no labor to make the celebration a success. He especially expressed gratifying thanks to the members of Wauregan lodge, No. 6, of Norwich, who took complete charge of the field events and ran them off with marked success.

There were 40 delegates present from the 16 towns in the district.

Following the call to order by State Central Committeman George H. Bradford, the convention elected Senator Fred M. Beckwith of Lyme as chairman and James H. Weeks of Stonington as clerk.

The nomination of Mr. Floyd was made by Judge Dimmock of Waterford and following his election, he addressed the convention, pledging to give his best efforts if elected and he invited the delegates to be his guests at dinner at the Wauregan hotel.

SEDANS IN COLLISION ON LAFAYETTE STREET

Sunday morning a Cadillac sedan owned by Paul Peloquin and driven by Joseph Peloquin of No. 26 Fowler avenue collided with a Ford sedan owned by Robert Beetham of this city and driven by Herbert W. Prodell of No. 132 School street. Mr. Peloquin's car received a damaged bumper and fender. The Beetham car was quite badly damaged. No one was hurt. The accident happened on Lafayette street.

Struck By Automobile

At 3:30 Saturday afternoon, as Dorothy Moon, who was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Edwin Moon of 62 Asylum street, was alighting from a trolley car at Franklin square, the little girl was struck and knocked down by an automobile driven by Miss Foley, who is the principal of Bishop school.

The automobile was proceeding slowly at the time and the little girl suffered bruises and cuts.

Addressed Social Workers

Miss Caroline De F. Penniman superintendent of Longlane farm, was the speaker before the meeting of the Social Workers' council of New London and Windham counties, which was held last week at "The Bungalow," Ocean Beach. There was an attendance of about 50. The business meeting was conducted by Miss Betsy Mitchell of this city, president of the council.

It is better to marry for wealth than for a chance to get even.

NOYES CO. TO COVER NATION'S REAL ESTATE

Control of the real estate business of the country is the aim of a company incorporated recently in Illinois and New York by Charles F. Noyes. Fashioned on lines characteristic of the leading commercial giants of the world, the Charles F. Noyes National Real Estate corporation will reach out from its headquarters in Chicago not only into every state of the Union, but into every city of 50,000 population or more, and through them into the hamlets and villages within the vicinity, says the New York Tribune Sunday.

It is the first attempt that ever has been made to nationalize the real estate brokerage business. Although the details of the far-reaching company have not been announced by Mr. Noyes, and will not be for several weeks, enough is known to grasp the gigantic conception of the structure which he has reared with Stanley K. Green as president and manager. Like a giant octopus, the tenacles of the company will reach into every corner of the country. No commercial giant operating within the United States will cover the field more thoroughly than will the Noyes National.

Every City Will Be Tapped

In Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis, Boston, Atlanta and cities in the middle west, the south and beyond the Rockies will be invaded by the company within the next few weeks. The invasion will continue until there is a representative in every population center. In many of these places there is at present a representative, but the local real estate brokers will not know of his presence until the word comes from headquarters at 131 North La Salle street, Chicago, to carry on.

The company's field of operation will include the entire country, with the exception of greater New York, which will remain the domain of the Charles F. Noyes company, of New York, the parent company, of which Mr. Noyes is president. The wide interest of the Noyes company in the local field and the close connection of Mr. Noyes with a number of the leading operators of the city have decided for him that New York is his field.

Mr. Green, who was with the Noyes company from 1912 to 1920, is perhaps one of the best informed men on conditions in the national real estate country. Frederick Brown is authority for the statement that he is the best leasing man that he has ever met. Mr. Green is reported to have located 1,840 branches for chain stores all over the states in the last twenty years, among his clients being the United Cigar Stores, Schulte, Newark Store company, Truly Warner and Page & Shaw.

Year to Put In Operation

He will have with him in the Chicago office a staff of fifty experts on real estate in every section of the nation, whether from a lease or fee standpoint.

Besides Mr. Green the offers of the Noyes National include Leo Baemer, William Baeder, Charles F. Noyes, David E. Block and James L. Posey, vice-presidents, and George J. Wise, secretary and treasurer. Messrs. Block and Posey are vice-president and directors of the United Cigar Stores company and located in Chicago. William Jonas and James F. O'Reilly are assistant secretaries and treasurers of the corporation.

On the staff of the Chicago office will be a number of New Yorkers who have made reputations for themselves. Among them are R. R. Stetson, five years associated with Mr. Green in Baltimore; M. T. Johnson, J. William Mullins, for the past two years secretary of Douglas V. Eshell, Inc., and previously with Slawson & Hobbs; C. C. Hendrix and H. L. Posey.

The Chicago office represents a consolidation of the Leo Raemer agency, which, is one of the best known real estate concerns in Chicago, and the real estate offices of the United Cigar Stores company of America.

Noyes Office Directs Business

Mr. Noyes explained yesterday that it would take at least twelve months before his plan was in full operation. But that time locations will have been established in every strategical location in the country and the proper personnel selected. All national officers will be under the direct control of the Chicago headquarters, which in turn will be under orders from the Noyes office at 118 William street, this city.

The advent of the Noyes National was indicated several months ago when the real estate affairs of the United Cigar Stores company, covering stores and buildings in every state, were taken over by the Noyes company.

Although the Noyes company during the fiscal year of 1925 reported business totalling $140,000,000, the story told yesterday by men close to Mr. Noyes and other members of his company are that the concern and its subsidiary expect to report a business total of $300,000,000 at the end of the next twelve months.

Preparations are already being made for handling a vast amount of new business. The force of the local office has already been greatly increased and recruiting will continue for some time.

Col. M. S. Keene, who was general manager of the company for five years, leaving in 1921 to engage in business in the west, has rejoined the Noyes company and will be in charge of personnel. Others who have been added to the staff include Ernest D. Kidwiller, C. S. Freeman, George J. Andres, Walter A. Wilson, Frank Stevens, Milton A. Donahue, Clifford Shoemaker, Charles A. Cavanaugh, M. Henry Stein, George B. McGrahan, Walter A. Trantifield and Frank R. Parish. Branches are to be opened in the Bronx and in Brooklyn.

The officers of the Charles F. Noyes Company, Inc., of New York, are Charles F. Noyes, president; George J. Wise, vice-president; William R. Falconer, vice-president; Edwin C. Benedict, vice-president; Harold F. Ford, vice-president; Frederick H. Lewis, treasurer, and George Wattley, secretary.

New Anesthetic

The invention of efficient and harmless narcotics for anesthesia and pain alleviation is one of the most important tasks of modern science. Recently Dr. Maurice Sandoz of the University of Lausanne, Switzerland, succeeded in producing a substance called "tricaine," which, it is claimed, is remarkable for its rapid narcotic effects. On cold-blooded creatures such as fishes, frogs or salamanders, two or six minutes in a one-tenth per cent solution of tricaine induces total insensibility.

A solution of tricaine diluted beyond 10 per cent will reduce the rate of cell division in animal organism, particularly the development of the embryo from the egg. By use of a very weak solution it is possible to keep frog eggs for several weeks without hatching. Untreated eggs left in pure water for the same period would turn into adult frogs.

These experiments, says Popular Science Monthly, have suggested a possible use of tricaine in arresting the ravages of old age.

You can save yourself a lot of trouble by not borrowing any.

Often we pause and think of you

And your smile we see it yet
Your tender love for ever one
We never shall forget.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—(AP)—With stock prices shifting aimlessly back and forth under professional auspices, financial interest last week was centered in the more significant developments in other markets. Of foremost importance were the break of $6.50 a bale in cotton prices following publication of a bearish government report indicating a crop of nearly 16,000,000 bales and a decline in the price of silver to the lowest level in five years.

Uneasiness over credit conditions probably exercised the greatest influence on stock market operations. As money rates eased later in the week, stocks gained strength, but persistent reports that an advance in the Federal Reserve re-discount charge would soon be in order continued to impose restraint on speculative dealings.

The reaction in the cotton market, which has amounted to about $28 a bale on the past fortnight, unsettled the dry goods trade and aroused so much concern that proposals were advanced late in the week to raise a $100,000,000 fund for retiring a million bales from the market temporarily. Confusing reports on the size of the world's crop counted for the irregular fluctuations of wheat prices, while sugar held around the highest level of the year on reports that Cuban Grinding would be restricted until after January 1.

European exchange rates were fairly steady, but the Japanese silver currency touched new lows in reflection of the drop in this metal.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

To My Dog Blanco

My dear, dumb friend, low-lying there,
A willing vassal at my feet,
Glad partner of my home and fare,
My shadow in the street.

I look into your great brown eyes,
Where love and loyal homage shine,
And wonder where the difference lies
Between your soul and mine.

For all or good that I have found
Within myself or human kind,
Hath royally informed and crowned
Your gentle heart and mind.

I scan the whole broad earth around
For that one heart which, leal and true,
Bears friendship without end or bound
And find the prize in you.

I trust you as I trust the stars;
Nor cruel loss, nor scoff, nor pride,
Nor beggary, nor dungeon bars,
Can move you from my side.

As patient under injury
As any Christian saint of old,
As gentle as a lamb with me,
But with your brothers bold.

More playful than a frolic boy,
More watchful than a sentinel,
By day and night your constant joy,
To guard and please me well;

I clasp your head upon my breast,
The while you whine and lick my hand;
And thus our friendship is confessed,
And thus we understand.

Ah, Blanco, did I worship God
As truly as you worship me,
Or follow where my Master trod
With your humility,

Did I sit fondly at his feet,
As you, dear Blanco, sit at mine,
And watch him with a love as sweet,
My love would grow divine.

—By J. G. Holland.

In School-Days

Still sits the schoolhouse by the road,
A ragged beggar sunning;
Around it still the sumachs grow,
And blackberry-vines are running.

Within, the master's desk is seen,
Deep scarred by raps official;
The warping floor, the battered seats,
The jack-knife's carved initial.

The charcoal frescoes on its wall;
Its door's worn sill, betraying
The feet that, creeping slow to school
Went storming out to playing.

Long years ago, a winter sun
Shone over it at setting
Lit up its western window-panes
And low eaves' icy fretting.

It touched the tangled golden curls,
And brown eyes, full of grieving,
Of one who still her steps delayed
When all the school were leaving

For near her stood

MISS ABBOTT ATTENDING BIG HOSPITAL CONVENTION

The William W. Backus hospital will be among the local hospitals represented at the 28th annual convention of the American Hospital association at Atlantic City the week of Sept. 27th, by Miss Lucy B. Abbott, superintendent.

This is America's largest association of hospitals representing all denominations, colors and races. The science of medicine is progressing by leaps and bounds, and hospitals as well as physicians and surgeons must keep pace with this march. While only 100 people will participate in the hospital program, over 5,000 hospital people from the United States, Canada, and foreign countries such as Great Britain, China, Panama, Australia, France and Italy will attend. The papers read will center about two problems of especial interest to the public. First, a larger adaption of health service to the entire community for the prevention of disease, and second, a more economical functioning of every department of the hospital. The varied aspects of the program will present the interests of hospital trustees, superintendents, medical staff members, nurses training school principals, and heads of the many diversified departments of the modern hospital.

The educational and scientific exhibits and exhibits of technical equipment and supplies present the very latest methods, practices and appliances in the country.

WEST SIDE RAID ON DISORDERLY HOUSE CHARGE

Following a raid in the lower basement of the house at No. 197 West Main street about 3 o'clock Sunday morning, Ephraim Dorous, colored, 56, and Sarah Dorous, colored, 46, were arrested by the local police on a charge of keeping a disorderly house. Five young men all white, whose ages range from 16 to 24 years were gathered in by the raiding squad on charges of frequenting a disorderly house. The cases will be disposed of in the city court this (Monday) morning. The raiding squad comprised Sergt. John T Casey, Officer Albert Lamphere and Officer Patrick Murphy.

It is said that there was an all night party in progress at the house. Liquor was brought into the house for the entertainment of the "guests," it is understood. After midnight the party became boisterous and there was considerable noise. Information to police headquarters to this effect led to the quickly organized raid on the place which is a basement tenement.

One of the young men arrested claimed that he was not inside the house but was in the yard when he was scooped in by the police.

NORWICH MOOSE HAS 30 CANDIDATES FOR "BLUE GOAT" CLASS INITIATION

The Blue Goat class of 30 candidates was initiated Saturday evening by Norwich lodge, No. 950, Loyal Order of Moose at Mooke home, Laurel Hill. There was an attendance of 150 at the meeting. Secretary George J. Goepfert made the address of welcome to the class, touching on all points of Moosedom. Secretary Goepfert informed the class that the blue goat had a bad accident Saturday afternoon, as it fell and broke a leg. The leg has been placed in splints and it is expected that the goat will be ready for the next class initiation. Visitors from New London, Hartford, Bridgeport and Waterbury were present at the initiation.

The next class initiation will take place October 23rd and will be known as the "Joe class," as there are three Joes on the committee, Joe Hastedt, Joe Kirchner and Joe Bruckner.

After the initiation work Saturday evening the Boston entertainers put on a very pleasing entertainment, the programme being as follows:

Jack Griffin, the one man tin can band, in the teakettle mandolin, the roasting pan guitar, tunes on a fire extinguisher, numbers on the musical saw and a number on the musical foot bail. Excellent music was produced with these home instruments. Mr. Griffin also sang several songs and gave monologues. Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Sheehan was sung by Jackie Burns, the popular lodge steward. The Moose Ideal orchestra, Edward Brennan, leader, gave a splendid programme during the evening.

After the entertainment one of Chef Charles Korn's famous clam chowders, with coffee and crullers, was enjoyed in the new dining room. The waiters were Joe Hastedt, R. Krohn, Joe Temper, George Sudle, Joe Kosciski. The committee in charge of the class initiation, etc., were R. Krohn, Bernard Wunderlich and Jack Burns. All voted it a most enjoyable evening and are looking forward to October 23rd, the date of the next initiation.

Secretary Goepfert was the speaker of the evening and he touched on the following subjects:

Twenty years ago the Loyal Order of Moose had a membership of 200 and today the membership is over 600,000, the assests being $35,000,000. Mooseheart has over 1,300 children at present and there have been about 1,300 graduates in the last 10 years. Over 1,000 acres comprise the Mooseheart premises. The children receive not only the usual school education but are taught trades. The traditional orphan asylum atmosphere is missing at Mooseheart. The youngsters are allowed to select the kind of clothing they prefer. It is a real home for the children. Every possible effort is made to keep the families together. Widowed mothers go to Mooseheart and live there with their children.

How successful the home is may be judged from the assertion by James J. Davis, secretary of labor, and director general of the Order of Moose, that of all of the hundreds of graduates at Mooseheart high school not one has fallen into the clutches of the law.

The Loyal Order of Moose is growing in leaps and bounds. When you become a member of the Moose, Secretary Goepfert said, you become a partner in a $35,000,000 concern, and as an official organ of the Moose puts it, "Our members are the red blooded men of America, ready always for either a fight or a frolick, for a social session or a visit to the sick, to spend one dollar for fun or to give two to the needy, to josh a winner or sympathize with a loser.

Mooseheven at Florida, a place for our members who have fought the battle and lost and want to spend their last days in peace and comfort, is another attraction of the order. Secretary Goepfert spoke of the local lodge which has a membership of 600 and net assests of $31,000. The Home has no encumbrances and is finely furnished for the comfort of the members.

The local membership campaign for a membership of 1,000 will close December 31st.

DAILY LIVES MUST COUNT AS MIRACLES, SAYS PRIEST

Charity, purity, simplicity and above all sincerity, these marks upon the daily life of a Catholic prove him a worthy follower of Christ, was the concluding assertion of Rev. John J. Reilly, preacher at the 9 o'clock low mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday. Father Reilly was developing a text from the gospel for the Sunday, the 18th after pentecost, in which the Saviour, it is recorded, cured the man sick of the palsy, (Matthew 9. 1-8.)

People outside the Catholic church scoff at its belief in miracles, while themselves taking the school-boy attitude that whatever they cannot understand they will not believe. While Christ performed numerous miracles during His earthly ministry, and His name is associated in our minds with Lazarus, Cana, Naim, yet was the greater portion of His career spent apart from the world, in prayer. He was no traveling magician, no street corner showman. So His followers, while they have daily proof of His supernatural powers and of facts which are in reality miracles, yet they, also, should shape their lives on His, in their quiet, dignity, devotion and aloofness.

The one dissenting pen in the numerous newspaper accounts of the recent stupendous Eucharistic congress at Chicago wrote flippantly that, during the sudden severe rainstorm no miracle happened—although those present were waiting for one. But that miracles do not happen any more. The preacher, who had attended the congress, considered that no better proof of a miracle was required than was the presence there of a million persons of varying worldly interests, all bowing in profound faith in the presence of the divine Doer of miracles.

The epistle for the Sunday was I Corinthians, 1. 4-48. The offertory was Exodus 24 and the communion Psalm 95, beginning "Bring sacrifices and come unto His courts." In giving holy communion to the great number who approached the altar after confession Saturday, Rev. Myles P. Galvan, who read the mass needed the assistance of Father Reilly.

It was announced that beginning today (Monday) all parish activities, masses, school sessions, et al, will be on Standard time.

The Junior choir has resumed singing, following the summer recess. Organist Henry J. LaFontaine accompanying the chorus in a number of new hymns, as well as familiar ones. The communion hymn was "Oh, Lord I am Not Worthy that Thou shouldst Come to Me."

The church officials expressed their thanks or the generosity o the public in responding to their appeal and to pastors and congregations o Grace Memorial Baptist church and McKinley Avenue A. M. E. Zion church or the aid they gave.

In the evening there was a service at the church in which an address was given by Rev. W. D. West o Springfield, a solo, Calvary, by Mrs. Martha Miner o Danielson, a duet, Go Home and Tell, by Mrs. Annie Drury and Mrs. Frances Evans, a solo, Hold Thou My Hand, by Mrs. Louise Hall. The accompanist was Miss Hattie Spivery.

LAST FORMAL OPENING DAY ADDED TO LOCAL BUSINESS

The third of the special style days Saturday proved to the local merchants' taste as far as sunshine was concerned, although a little lower temperance would have been a great factor in putting a new punch in trade.

However, there were crowds in the streets all day and many new visitors to the various stores in the combination, while buying started in very encouragingly, in most instances the special attractive prices on stock are to be continued today (Monday), to make up for the weather disappointment of Thursday and Friday.

From the millinery departments Saturday much new headwear went out. Besides models developed in the fashionable jungle green and Chanel red there were shown smart hats in beaute, wood rose, champagne, wisteria velour and innumerable designs in black, for black retains its popularity with a strong hold.

Much is made this season of the Russian tam shape in millinery and a variety of hats in this general type were on view.

Crowns are inclined to be high. Considerable embroidery appears on modish models. Sport hats come in an endless line of fascinating developments and with many new and novel touches.

Improve the opportunity today to inspect the wide range of seasonable stocks displayed in the stores. No better guide to satisfactory buying can be suggested than is a careful study of the Bulletin's advertising columns.

SESQUI-CENTENNIAL THIS YEAR

When the Centennial Exhibition was held in Philadelphia in 1876, Lydia E. Pinkham, a woman in Lynn, Mass., was just beginning to market her root and herb medicine. Her first large order was for eighteen dollars worth.

Philadelphia is now celebrating the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. In Lynn the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company occupy six buildings in the manufacture of their root and herb medicine. Nearly 5,000,000 bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound were sold last year.

CONNECTICUT SECRETARIES HAD MEETING AT STORRS

The fall quarterly meeting of the secretaries of chambers of commerce of Connecticut was held at Storr's college Saturday afternoon. Secretaries and their assistants were present from the state chamber, Greenwich, Bridgeport, New Haven, Waterbury, Naugatuck, Bristol, Manchester and Norwich. The Connecticut secretaries meet regularly four times each year to discuss questions and problems concerning their work, interchange ideas, discuss civic activities, and renew and make acquaintainship. There are fourteen full time secretaries in Connecticut, and about twenty part-time officials.

The principal topic for discussion was the need for closer co-operation between the farmer and the city business man. President Beech of the college welcomed the visitors and Mr. Ellis gave an interesting address on the expansion work being conducted by the college throughout the state. The principal purposes of Storr's is the promotion of a knowledge of farming, farm economics, farm knowledge extension work, and domestic science. The college is limited to 500 and the enrollment is filled for this year.

Professor Davis gave an interesting address on the problems of vegetable marketing, land utilization, and the establishment of household conveniences in farm houses. With the development of manufacturing machines has also come the greater development of farming implements. He spoke of the need for Connecticut for reforestration on lands that were suitable for no other purpose. Great progress has been made by the farmer, through study and research work in securing greater quantity and quality in milk production, breeding good cattle, and milk marketing. There is at present the problem to be solved regarding the marketing of vegetables.

He urged a closer understanding of the farmer's problems by the city business man and the need for the farmer to better understand the problems of the business man. The success of both is dependent on each other.

A tour of the buildings followed the meeting.

WORKING TO ELIMINATE DANGER OF GLARING LIGHTS

Conferences with automobile manufacturers in an effort to get at the root of headlight troubles, including dangerous glare have been decided upon by the eastern conference of motor vehicle administrators.

At the last conference meeting in Burlington, Vt., Connecticut introduced a resolution for the appointment of a committee to confer with the manufacturers of cars, and Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel of the Connecticut motor vehicle department, as president of the conference, was authorized to appoint such a committee with broad powers. He accordingly appointed Commissioner Dill of New Jersey, Registrar Wellington of Rhode Island, Commissioner Harnett of New York state and Commissioner Eynon of Pennsylvania to act with himself and Secretary of the State Grout of Vermont. In such conferences, Mr. Grout is secretary of the motor vehicle administrators conference and he and Mr. Stoeckel are ex-officio members of the committee.

There was a demonstration of headlights at the Burlington meeting of the eastern conference of motor vehicle administrators which seemed to show that a large proportion of glare is due to defects in the manufacture of the bulb or of some part of the lamp or to cheap material. That such is the case is undoubtedly due to the severe competition between manufacturers of automobiles to secure cheap headlights. It is this feature which for the sake of safety the conference of motor vehicle administrators is attempting to meet by cooperation. It has already been possible to interest certain of the more prominent manufacturers and it is expected that such cooperation may eventually be secured with all.

SEEK "STORM BREAKERS" ON THREE CITY BRIDGES

Over 200 people have signed petitions which are being circulated for the purpose of calling a special town meeting to take action on a proposition to provide "storm breakers" for the Laurel Hill and upper and lower Preston bridges. The open and unprotected bridges make it a hardship for people to cross in stormy weather. The plan is to erect the storm breakers in the fall and remove them in the spring each year.

POETRY

The Madness of the Wise

He lost an arm, but used his head
Devising ways and means
To do a thousand-fold more work—
Hence wonderful machines!
His eye grew dim, he longed to see!
Aroused by vivid hopes
He made, and saw, two other worlds,
Microscopes and telescopes!
His leg hung limp, he yearned to run
But could not, then his brains
Secreted wheels, and now we have
Swift-moving cards and planes!
His voice was weak, his signals failed
Beyond a little zone;
He thought, then made the radio
To beat the telephone!
But when his active brain gave out,
He heaved a sorry sigh;
He'd conquered everything but death,
Poor man, he had to die!
No preparation had he made
For what he knew to be
The destiny of every man—
A long eternity!
He rarely thought that men must die,
He took it for a lark!
But when Death called, unfit, he took "A leap into the dark!"
Devotion paid to everything
But things supreme is sad;
It sometimes seems as though the wise
Men of the earth are mad!
—Rev. William Wood.

Dreams

My life is like the summer rose
That opens to the morning sky,
But, ere the shades of evening close,
Is scattered on the ground—to die!
Yet on the rose's humble bed
The sweetest dews of night are shed,
As if she wept the waste to see—
But none shall weep a tear for me.

My life is like the autumn leaf
That trembles in the moon's pale ray;
Its hold is frail, its date is brief,
Restless, and soon to pass away!
Yet ere that leaf shall fall and fade,
The parent tree will mourn its shade,
The winds bewail the leafless tree,
But none shall breathe a sigh for me!

My life is like the prints which feet
Have left on Tampa's desert strand;
Soon as the rising tide shall beat,
All trace will vanish from the sand;
Yet as if grieving to efface
All vestige of the human race,
On that lone shore loud moans the sea;
But none, alas, shall mourn for me!
—Richard Henry Wilde.

An electric light bulb as substitute for the mother bird is a success in hatching quail, according to Game Warden A. C. Wagner, of Tiffin, O. Seven quail were hatched from eight eggs in a cotton nest heated with an electric lamp. The eggs were taken to the game warden after the mother bird had been killed by an automobile.

Struck by a shifting engine, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Cassanovitch, of Sharpsville, Pa., escaped injury or death when she was caught on the front step and carried 50 feet before the engine was stopped. One of the dog's feet had been resting on the trigger of the gun and as he jumped he fired the gun. TURBULENCE ON THE EVE OF MICH. REP. CONVENTION

When the Convention Meets Today in Detroit 250 Policemen Will be in Readiness for Whatever May Happen—Breach Has Developed Over Seating Delegates Supporting Fred W. Green for Governor, and Delegates Favorable to Governor Goresbeck, Who Was Beaten for Renomination as Governor by Green at the September Primary Election.

[illegible] warfare is in prospect from [illegible] as well as from within was [illegible] today in the action of Wil-[illegible] democratic gubernatorial standard bearer, who asked [illegible] general of Michigan to [illegible] investigation into the campaign expenditures of Colonel Green. [illegible] general indicated that he [illegible] require proof of Comstock's charges of excessive expenditures before taking any action.

Then too, there were charges of malfeasance in office, which were brought against Thomas E. Johnson, state superintendent of public instruction, on the eve of the state republican gathering. The charges were filed with Governor Groesbeck, with whom Superintendent Johnson is at political loggerheads.

Wayne county ordinarily has 490 delegates to the state convention with nearly twice that number from upstate. The upstate delegates are almost solidly classified as Green supporters.

The state central committee tonight adopted a resolution which indicates an attitude of defiance toward the injunction issued by Judge Carr. The members went on record as opposed to seating either Wayne county delegation "until the state convention has been permanently organized and the credentials committee has acted upon the claims of the rival factions."

The central committee raised a special sergeant-at-arms and door keeper and instructed him to ask for whatever police protection is deemed necessary. As a further precaution the committee recommended that the Detroit police department be asked to provide a guard for every convention official.

The prospect of a more serious clash than had been anticipated appeared when reports were spread among the delegates that the Goresbeck forces are prepared to use state police, if necessary, to force an entrance to the convention and seat their delegation. With the Green forces presumably protected by Detroit city police and the Goresbeck group threatening to employ state police, serious trouble is feared.

DISTINCT SIGNALS COME FROM ENTOMBED MINERS

IRONWOOD, Mich., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Entombed miners of the G. [illegible] mine spoke tonight to the men who are toiling to rescue them. Tapping on a pipe leading down into the mine was heard by one of the workers, Erik Pettinosa. He returned the signal then clear and distinct came eight separate taps repeated several times.

It was the first definite sign from down in the earth since the shaft collapsed last Friday noon, killing three miners and entrapping 43. Makl volunteered to squirm down through the [illegible] of twisted steel and tumbled stone to tell the entombed men that help was coming. He tied a rope about his waist and went down into the darkness. The shaft is 20 by 10 feet, divided into three channels, one for the cage and two for cars, called skips, by which ore is raised to the surface. In his pockets Makl carried food tablets.

His stage was made from 160 feet below the second level, the point to which the shaft has been cleared. The second level is about 240 feet below the surface. At the eighth level, is 727 feet down. Makl has more than 35 feet of perilous going before him.

The message from the earth spread rapidly. Tears of joy coursed down the cheeks of wives and children who flocked to the entrance to get confirmation of the newly aroused [illegible]

Premier of France Talks of War Debts

Poincare Expressed Hope That Settlement of the Debts Would Soon Come Up for Discussion in Parliament.

BAR-LE-DUC, France, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Premier Poincare making his first political speech since taking over the helm of the French government last August, today expressed the hope that the settlement of war debts soon will come up for discussion in parliament.

Addressing the general council of the department of Meuse, of which he has been a member for 40 years, the premier said that France has never repudiated her foreign debts and that she is determined to pay them in accordance with her capacity and within the limits of the possibility of transferring money abroad.

At the same time the premier gave notice that he will resist all attempts to break down the economies provided for by decree and foreshadowed a fight on that question when the chamber reconvened.

Poincare was applauded enthusiastically when he recalled that France has never repudiated her debts and was given grave attention when he said that France was ready to consider closer relations with Germany provided they were in accord with the peace treaties and Francos alliances.

The premier opened his talk on the debt situation by placing the financial difficulties of France at the door of Germany.

"France was assailed," he said. "She defended herself magnificently, but victory left her improverished and enfeebled. That is why she has had to incur upon herself fresh sacrifices to renovate her money. The expenditures of a war, that was imposed upon us by the central empires and the default of Germany in the payment of reparations caused our treasury to sustain a burden unprecedented since August. More sacrifices are necessary. The government proposes to stake its existence upon approval by parliament of the decrees reducing the number of state functionaries."

The members of the council unanimously approved this declaration which referred to recent protests of certain deputies to the suppression of courts and certain subprefectures.

The premier added that it was not to the interest of France to allow uncertainty regarding the debt settlement to weigh for long upon French credit. He made it clear that the present government would resist any attempts of foreigners to obtain control over French affairs. "We are observed from abroad with an attention that is not always benevolent," he said. "At times foreigners thought even of taking an indiscreet interest in our budgets and expenditures. Frankly, after a war which she did not provoke and after a victory she has paid for so dearly, will accept no trespassing upon her sovereignty and no encroachment on her dignity. She is and will remain [illegible] mistress.

Nickle, attorney general of Ontario, in personal interviews with President Coolidge and officials of the law enforcement departments at Washington, Mr. Nickle announced on his return home today.

Giving his impressions of President Coolidge, Attorney General Nickle said:

"The president is a very quiet man of reserved disposition and considerable strength in his capacity for making decisions," he said. "His case of countenance is solemn, his facial features immobile, but when he smiles his face lights up all over. He has a keen sense of humor, I would judge, and he seemed to be particularly well informed as to detail."

To Overcome Fraud Through the Mails

Senator Moses to Urge Senate to Approve Appointment of 25 Trained Inspectors — Moses "Has Been Stung."

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Picturing himself as "one who has been stung," Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, today told the annual convention of the National Association of Securities Commissioners that he would urge the senate to approve the appointment of 25 trained inspectors to combat fraud through the mails.

Asserting that the mails are being deluged with fraudulent literature, he declared these inspectors, if appointed, would save stock investors millions of dollars. The 100 inspectors appointed during the past year in the postoffice department are inadequate to handle the situation, he asserted.

Senator Moses expressed his favor of volunteer cooperation of the states, rather than federal action. Cooperation of the securities commissioners of the different states, and the enactment of uniform anti-fraud laws, were advocated by him as an effective means of curbing fraudulent promoters.

H. T. Hunt, president of the association, uttered caution for investors buying into the growing first-mortgage or bond and stock business in this country. He asserted that investors during the last year lost $50 million from investments resulting from oversupply, mismanagement and other causes.

WISCONSIN TO HAVE REFERENDUM ON BEER

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Wisconsin voters can express their opinion at the polls this fall on whether they desire a restoration of 2.75 per cent beer.

Promulgation of court action to prevent a referendum on legalization of 2.75 per cent beer faded with today's action by the supreme court which refused to interfere with voting on the question at the November 2 election.

The court denied a petition for an injunction against putting the question on the ballot for the election. S. A. Fulton, West Allis, a director of the Wisconsin Anti-Saloon league, had sought the restraining act.

Fred W. Zimmerman, secretary of state, already has ordered the question placed on the ballot. The voters will be permitted only to express their opinion on whether congress should amend the Volstead act to legalize 2.75 per cent beer with the provision that the beverage should not be consumed on the premises where purchased.

TRACING LIBERTY BONDS IN DAUGHERTY-MILLER TRIAL

Five $10,000 Bonds, Part of the $441,000 Given to the Late John T. King, Was Traced by the Government Yesterday to the Bank of Which Mal S. Daugherty is President —The Government Claims the Bonds Are a Part of $150,000 Bribery Money Paid Harry Daugherty.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—(AP)—Five $10,000 Liberty bonds, which comprised a part of the $441,000 given the late John T. King to "help and speed" release of $7,000,000 impounded enemy property, was traced by the government, today to the Midland National bank, of Washington Courthouse, Ohio, of which Mal S. Daugherty is president.

United States Attorney Buckner brought out in the conspiracy trial of Harry M. Daugherty, the brothers brother and attorney general of the Harding cabinet, and Thomas W. Miller, alien property custodian at that time, that four of these bonds were sold on order of Mal Daugherty and the sale price credited to the account of Harry Daugherty. The other bond was shown to be still in possession of the Ohio bank.

The government claims that these bonds comprised a part of $150,000 bribery money paid Harry Daugherty to persuade to Richard Merton, German metal magnate, proceeds of the impounded assets of the American Metal company. Evidence has been completed for the purpose of substantiating the government's allegation that Miller received $50,000 for putting the claims through his office.

The principal witness today was Vera M. Veail, assistant cashier of the Midland National bank, who told of being given the four bonds in question, which were shown by their numbers to be part of the Merton-King property, by Mr. Daugherty to sell to the Cleveland O. brokerage firm of Otis and Co. for sale.

Answering questions of Buckner she revealed that after the bonds were sold the bank was credited with the proceeds and the money turned over to Mal Daugherty in a "certificate of deposit," a cashier's check.

A month later, it was testified, Mal Daugherty cased out his certificate of deposit amounting to just under $50,000 and wrote a check for $50,000, which he turned in to his bank with instructions that a certificate of deposit for that amount be credited to his brother. On the same day the banker had the certificate exchanged for five certificates of $10,000 each. Eventually one of these certificates was turned back to the original owner, Mal Daugherty.

Buckner offered documentary evidence to show that Mal Daugherty's account in the bank was such that he could not have written a $50,000 check without [illegible] the bond proceeds.

ENFORCEMENT PLANK IN NEW YORK REP. PLATFORM

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, N. Y., Sept. 27.—(AP)—The republican party of New York state came out squarely for enforcement of the 18th amendment and the Volstead act at tonight's session of its convention. It also carried full participation of the voters in the wet and dry referendum to be held on this fall.

The platform reiterated the party's 1924 stand on prohibition and then said:

"The people of the state are rightly affirmed by the lack of observance and enforcement of the federal law relative to the sale of intoxicating liquors. From this has resulted the pending referendum to obtain the opinion of the people upon the question of the modification of that law. The referendum gives all the opportunity to express themselves. We urge a full expression at the polls on this matter."

On state issues the platform carried out the republican legislative program of the past two sessions. Of [illegible] legislation, it declared:

"Protection of the people in the event of future strikes in the coal industry.

"The return of alien property to its [illegible] owners, the settlement of the [illegible] debts owed by our government to German citizens and the payment of American claimants.

"Regulation of radio communication [illegible] to eliminate the existing chaos.

"The strengthening of our national [illegible] and federal reserve system.

"The amendment of our immigration [illegible] as to reduce to a minimum the [illegible] of divided families.

"The prompt ratification of the [illegible] debt settlement.

"The increase in the number of federal judges to meet the existing congestion of the calendars. We condemn the democrats of New York for opposing this measure during the last session of congress.

"Adequate salaries for federal judges.

"A change in the regulations relating to the importation of milk to make them comply with the same standards of quality and purity applied to domestic milk."

The platform was unanimously adopted almost immediately after Senator Knight, chairman of the resolutions committee had finished reading it.

N. Y. DEM. KEYNOTE SPEECH BY FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Charging the republican leaders of New York state and of the nation with a "lack of vision" in dealing with problems of the past and of the present, Franklin D. Roosevelt, in his keynote address delivered at the New York state democratic convention tonight predicted the "defection of hundreds of thousands of normally republican votes" at the coming election as a protest against present leadership.

"Of course the secret of the matter so far as the state is concerned," declared Mr. Roosevelt, "is that the republican leadership is hopelessly weak and vacillating."

Nationally, he asserted "five years of President Harding and President Coolidge have given to the nation examples of public turpitude which we would like to forget."

BARBARA LEAVENS THE BRIDE OF ROBERT K. BARD, AT BROOK

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 27.—In the presence of relatives and friends, at Trinity church, Brooklyn yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, Miss Barbara Leavens, daughter of Mrs. Fred C. Leavens of Brooklyn, and Robert K. Bard, son of Treasurer Sidney W. Bard of the Brooklyn Savings bank and Mrs. Bard, were united in marriage by Rev. Leonard R. Richards, the rector. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Sabin E. Griggs of Hartford.

Miss Elizabeth Bard and Sidney R. Bard, sister and brother of the groom, were the attendants.

The bride wore grey georgette, had a black picture hat and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. The bridesmaid's gown was of green crepe and her hat a picture model in green. Her bouquet was of American Beauty roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Bard are spending their honeymoon on Cape Cod and upon their return will make their home in Brooklyn.

The bride, who has been a member of the clerical staff at the Danielson Trust company received many beautiful gifts. She is a graduate of Plainfield high school and during her lifetime of residence in Wauregan, Danielson and Brooklyn has endeared herself to a large circle of friends.

The groom is a graduate of Brown university, class of 1921, having returned to the institution to complete his course after interrupting it to come to Danielson in 1917 to enlist in the 55th Coast Artillery company, then located here. He saw active service in France.

Like a roaming hound, a lost dog day strayed into Danielson Saturday and wilted humanity as badly as it had wilted during any of the hot waves of July or August. Thermometers here registered as high as 92 degrees, and there was such a great excess of humidity that the day was actually distressing. Seizing upon an unexpected opportunity, numbers rushed off to bathing places and enjoyed a dip on the late September day.

The funeral of Louis Brodeur was held from his home in Wauregan Saturday morning with services at the Sacred Heart church at that place at 9 o'clock. Rev. Edward Matheu was celebrant of the high mass of requiem which was attended by relatives and many friends of the deceased. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery. The bearers were Ernest Pedneau, A. Betterin, William Pratte, William Brousseau, Henry Brodeur and Emory Brodeur. Louis F. Kennedy was the funeral director.

Danielson and all the surrounding territory went back to standard time Sunday as naturally as though it had not been discarded for daylight saving time since late in April. The majority of people saw to it that their timepieces were set in accordance with standard time before retiring Saturday night, and in so doing earned an hour's dividend in time that was deposited in the bank of Orpheus. A bit of a surprise to many Sunday evening was the early hour at which darkness descended, for all have been accustomed to more daylight at the end of the day that is not available under standard time. However, people who get up early mornings will tell you that they do not have to start their day's labors by moonlight, as was the case the past week.

There was nothing for the officers to do who went to Plainfield Saturday afternoon to see that the state's temporary injunction against the holding of a parade by the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, except watch and wait. There was absolutely nothing doing. The injunction was obeyed to the letter. Two cars containing robed Klansmen rode through the town during the early afternoon having come, it appears, from some distant point, but they kept going. The fact that a Hartford paper printed a story Saturday morning that the parade would be held in spite of the injunction set many to believing that something might occur but there was no foundation for the story as events of the afternoon demonstrated.

A blaring of fire alarm signals during the electrical storm at about 11:30 Saturday night turned many a curious person out of doors to see what manner of happening would necessitate such a clamor and for their curiosity they learned only that something had gone wrong with the fire alarm system and that there was no fire. Chief A. P. Woodward was not long in ascertaining that the No. 1 circuit of the fire alarm telegraph system had become crossed in with an electric light circuit and that this had set the alarms to sounding. Chief Woodward pulled all the switches on the system of the circuit fire station to stop the clamor. It was later discovered that an electric shock was the lot of anyone touching any of the boxes along the streets traversed by the No. 1 circuit. Wherever the cross was it was cleared Sunday morning and the alarm system in full working order again. The electric storm put some telephones out of commission, but as compensation brought relief from the excessive heat of the day and early evening hours.

By invitation of Ruth Wilyis chapter, No. 33, the state meeting of the Connecticut D. A. R. is to be held in the Center church and at the Central Baptist church. The afternoon session is to open at 2:15 and will close as near 4:30 o'clock as business to be transacted permits, and then the officers, guests and speakers will be entertained at tea served by members of Ruth Wilyis chapter. Up to today (Tuesday) Mrs. Sabin S. Russell will have charge of luncheon tickets for members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter.

Miss Julie Brodeur, 51, a native of Canada and for many years resident in Moosup, is dead at her home in that place. Miss Brodeur leaves no relatives nearer than her sister-in-law, Mrs. Treffle Brunet of Moosup.

The funeral of Bernice Maynard, two and a half years of age, was held Saturday afternoon from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Romeo Maynard, in Wauregan, burial being in the Sacred Heart cemetery. Louis F. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Miss Ellen F. Darbie, who has been spending the past fortnight with friends in Fall River, is expected to return to her home here Wednesday.

At the masses at St. James' church Sunday announcements were made relative to a mission that is to be opened next Sunday for the French-speaking members of the congregation. Missionaries of the Oblate Order of Mary Immaculate will conduct the mission services, the first held here in three years.

This is the last week of the political campaign culminating on Monday of next week with the annual election of town officers. The campaign waxes warm as to candidate for selectmen and will be at its most hectic point during the present week.

Henry McDermott, who is in the railway express service, is here from Woonsocket to spend his annual vacation.

Mrs. E. H. Keach, regent of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., was at Windsor Thursday, attending the state meeting of regents and councillors of Connecticut chapters. [illegible] Ellsworth memorial.

The Moosup Trust company, in process of organization, is to have a capital stock of $50,000. There are to be 5000 shares of stock, each of a par value of $100. Bank Commissioner John B. Byrne has ordered that a hearing on the application of the new trust company for authority to do business be held before the bank commissioners in Hartford October 21. The incorporators of the new bank are Charles T. Aldrich of Providence, Lucius B. Cranska, Harry Richardson, Thomas J. Seaton, Attorney Bradford W. Danielson, Alfred Champaigne, and Thomas Hope of Moosup, Irving W. Davis of Danielson and Fred W. Tillinghast, of Plainfield. The new bank is to have its quarters in Moosup.

Monday morning the funeral of Henry Bessette was held from his home near Elmville with services at St. James' church at 10 o'clock. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Ernest A. Bessette, Arthur E. Bessette, Albert E. Bessett, brothers of the deceased, and Adelard Frodeau, brother-in-law. Louis E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

The funeral of Miss Julie Brodeur was held from her home in Moosup Monday morning with services conducted by Rev. Oscar Normand at St. Hallowell church. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery at Wauregan. The bearers were Joseph Poirier, Frederick Brodeur, Edward LeBlanc, Peter Brodeur, Adelard Trudeau and Treffle Brunet. The funeral arrangements were in charge of L. E. Kennedy.

The tourist season for motorists lingers. Many from distant states are prolonging their touring into late September and October, and others are endeavoring to take advantage of their vacations [illegible] to July and August. Cars from nearly a dozen distant states in the south and west were included in the traffic passing through Danielson Monday.

Some high priced smoke is going to waft itself over the borough of Danielson's business section some day this week. It is to be a "bond" fire. It will have to do with the destruction of an issue of bonds that has been called in and cancelled by an industrial corporation. As they have been paid, the next step in disposing of them will be to burn them by burning. It will not be a [illegible] requiring the presence of the fire department.

Maybe Danielson will not have a soccer football league this fall, but there is a prospect it was stated Monday that a basketball league here [illegible] "grass" on the lines of the Twilight baseball league that held sway [illegible] ing and successful season [illegible] and probably including on the various teams many of the players who were in the baseball league. Observers attribute the general public interest in the recent Twilight league to the fact that it was made up exclusively of home players. The league demonstrated that it is not at all necessary to go out and hire baseball players at exhibitant prices to have fine contested games and good sport. Home players can fill the bill and incidentally furnish as good sport as imported players. The league has been an eye opener to many in this respect.

To allay the great amount of curiosity aroused Monday because of absence of Danielson news from The Bulletin it may be mentioned this morning that the news letter was delayed in transit, not appearing in Norfolk until 1:30 Monday afternoon.

The pink specimen ballots that appear each year just before an election are on hand in Danielson and show the candidates for the town offices to be filled next Monday. Voters are eagerly seeking them and noting how they will mark them in the widespread splitting that is certain to be done.

And now comes the intimation that the attention of the warden and court of burgesses will be called to the fact that the new fire alarm on the roof of the central fire station is regarded as a disturbance in the neighborhood and its removal to some other location may be asked.

Police are endeavoring to establish the identity of a person who borrowed a light Ford truck that was parked near the Danielson inn an evening last week, gave it a run while the police were trying to locate it and then brought it back and abandoned it near a business place on Furnace street, a few hundred feet from where it was taken.

W. Irving Bullard of Boston was in Danielson on a business trip Monday.

When Killingly high school opened for the year Monday morning 317 students registered. This attendance includes those who make up the junior high school, newly organized in this town.

Included in the activities of Leo J. L'Hommé post, American Legion, during the fall and winter season, will be a series of whists, the first of these planned for a date early in October.

PUTNAM

SHEPPARD ANTIQUES SOLD AT CRANMERE, WOODSTOCK

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 27.—Fully 500 people representing many of the eastern states of the United States gathered at Cranmere, the beautiful country place of Mrs. Janet C. Sheppard in Woodstock today for the opening of the sale of antiques. Many of the pieces were of exquisite beauty and all date back to early New England periods.

The sale came about because Mrs. Sheppard is disposing of all her holdings in the United States and is to go to make her home in Nova Scotia, where she has spent much of her time the past few years. Mrs. Sheppard is the widow of Dr. John E. Sheppard, noted nose, ear and throat specialist, who with Mrs. Sheppard came to Woodstock from New York in 1902, and purchased the Dr. Rockwell property, afterwards known as Bonnie Doon. In later years they acquired Cranmere, where the sale was being conducted today.

Dr. Sheppard died in 1925. He is held in loving memory by the people of Woodstock and Putnam, not only because of his wonderful personality but as well because of his generosity in giving freely of his professional services at free clinics held each year at the Day Kimball hospital, where affected tensils of children, many of them of poor parents, were removed by the great surgeon and other services were rendered. Hundreds of eastern Connecticut children were benefitted by his skill and advice. Since Dr. Sheppard's death Mrs. Sheppard has divided her time largely between Woodstock and Nova Scotia.

The real estate in the Cranmere holdings, exclusive of a woodlot, were sold at Monday auction to A. Maynard of this city for $8500. The 40 acre woodlot went to F. W. Braden, of Worcester, for $425.

Interest of those attending the sale centered largely, though, in the disposal of the antiques offered. A combination Windsor chair was struck off for $60, this being the highest price paid during the day for any of the catalogued pieces offered up to the closing.

J. C. Witter of Witter Brothers, conducting the sale, said that in all his experience of many years he has got known in this section of such a large attendance of people interested in the sale of antiques. Many came from great distances, some being tourists who were in this section from western and southern states.

The Hartford Connecticut Trust company, trustee under the will of Joseph W. Taylor, late of Putnam, in the case of [illegible] to G. Harold Gilpatric, has been given judgment by the superior court for $17,000 against George M. Cheney, former of the First National bank of this city of which Gilpatric was the former cashier.

This suit is alternated with the one the trust company brought against the United States Fidelity and Guarantee company, and the Royal Indemnity company, to recover for its Custer estate, the amount for which Gilpatric was bonded to them as executor and trustee. This case is now on appeal to the supreme court contesting the amounts each of the bonding companies has to pay under a decision of Judge Simpson.

In superior court last week there was rather an unusual situation. While Judge John E. Booth was holding a criminal trial in the court room, Judge Alfred C. Baldwin conducted a short calendar session in the law

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion, or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

THE INCREASE IN AUTOS

A [illegible] are reported [illegible] a state is increased in exact proportion to their effect upon the streams. It is therefore inevitable that there should be well organized movement for the purpose of stopping the contamination of streams and get in motion certain machinery for purification.

In most instances pollution has come on unrestrained until it has gotten to a deplorable state. It is therefore easy to point out the necessity for preventive work and get more or less [illegible] action. But too often it is the case that the measures adopted are inadequate, since the commissions are vested with insufficient authority to complete the necessary work.

Connecticut is making some progress toward the desired end and Pennsylvania has been at work upon this problem for a considerable time under a sanitary water board, but the latter has been handicapped by the fact that it is restricted to dealing with sewage disposal and it lacks the authority to enforce various acts which the next legislature assembles [illegible] some state it will be further giving additional and needed strength to the sanitary board by which it will have authority to require industries to install devices which will remove deleterious substances from the water discharged into streams.

In building sewage systems in cities it is the natural inclination to have the sewers empty into rivers if they are [illegible]. That may be a reasonable solution for a time if the river is large enough, but with the growth of industries and the increase of cities the condition is getting [illegible] worse. It is in the present [illegible] condition that difficulty is found, for the longer it is allowed to go the greater is bound to be the expense of stopping it. It is a [illegible] expense to cities to build plants and upset a whole sewage system, while few will like the idea of paying for the disposal of waste matter [illegible] going into rivers at no cost. FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

About ten days ago I met Genevieve Hardy downtown. She used to be one o. the Dix Amies before she married and moved to Waukegan. I exclaimed that I had not seen her in ages and I asked her where she kept herself all the time.

"In the nursery most of the time. The mother of twins must leave all hope of freedom behind," she replied laughing. "The fact is, Lucile, I rarely get in town. It's great luck to meet you. I do miss seeing my old friends."

"Genevieve," I said as a bright thought struck me, "can't you come in some day soon for luncheon with me, and I'll invite all the Dix Amies girls to meet you?"

"I should just love to if I can get the good woman who comes once in awhile to stay with the babies. She is in such demand that it's hard to secure her services."

"Do try to get her for a week from tomorrow," I urged, "and let me know right away so that I can ask the other girls."

The next morning she telephoned me jubilantly that the woman had promised to come for the day desired, so I began at once to call the girls. I was very glad indeed to be able to pay off my social obligations to the Dix Amies in this simple way. When mother heard me issuing the invitations she protested because I had not consulted her in advance. Mother is what I term a chronic objector, and I usually find it best to go ahead with my plans and then break them to her as gently as I can after things are well started.

But in this case she was adamantine. "The house will be all torn up next week, Lucile. The decorators are coming in on Monday and they won't finish until Saturday. A fine time to have a party!"

"Well, cherie," I said soothingly, "please don't be disturbed. Several of the girls can't come, so I'll just tell the others that the affair is to be postponed. I'll get some credit for the invitations anyway."

Mother appeared much touched by the graceful way I gave in to her wishes, and I was rather glad myself not to have the luncheon. The more I thought of it the less interest I felt, for I think, as a rule, that parties for just girls are dreadfully boring. Mother said that after the house was in order again she would be glad to help me have a luncheon for as many as I cared to invite.

"How perfectly dear of you," I said, "but do you know I believe I should rather have a little dance? We could roll up all the rugs, take down the dining-room table and really have heaps of room, if we stored most of the furniture in the attic."

Mother's only reply was a long-drawn sigh. It is depressing to live with any one who sighs as much as mother does. I must speak to her kindly but firmly in regard to that unfortunate habit. It is my painful duty once in a while to call her attention to folks that grow upon her unawares. I fear that I soon shall have to say something to her about her sad tendency toward quick temper when some domestic contre-temps occurs, as, for instance, today, when I came in from a lovely long drive out to Kenosha with George Requier, who went to see a client there. I found her in a most trying state of mind.

"Lucile," she began at once in a querulous tone, "do you know who was here today?"

"The painters and decorators, I presume."

"Genevieve Hardy was here. She came to a party that was supposed to be given for her. I had told Tilly that as the house was in such a muss she needn't get any lunch, but just to heat that beef broth we had yesterday, and she needn't stop cleaning to wait on us. Genevieve insisted that she wouldn't stay, but she looked pale and tired, and she said it was a great effort to get away from home, so I made her take a cup of the broth, and Fannie stirred up a ginger bread and we had some canned peaches. Now I ask you, Lucile, why in the world didn't you let her know that the party was postponed? It was inexcusable of you."

"I did try to get Mr. Hardy on the telephone. You know you are always fussing because I have so many long-distance tolls, so I thought to please you I'd send the message through him. He was not in his office, and after that it escaped my mind. Of course, I'm sorry."

"Sorry!" echoed mother in such a scornful tone that one might have thought I had said I was glad.—Chicago News.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D.

Concentrate on Real Value

You need not read all the books; some contain what you already know, and in many of them there is repetition of what you have seen elsewhere. You glance through one and find little to the purpose, the table of contents of another shows that here and there a matter should be looked over; at last you come to a work in a great man a master of the subject, every word of which must be read and pondered on.

From these books you obtain references to others that you did not know of; judgment must be shown in concentrating yourself on what is most valuable, and in not going out of your way to explore alluring but useless by-paths. When you take many notes in blank books it is difficult to refer to them unless you have an index, the making and use of which requires time, but notes taken on one side of sheets of loose paper may easily be sorted into large envelopes according to the divisions of the subject, and as your investigations proceed and your knowledge widens new divisions may readily be made. There is a decided advantage in having all the notes you gather and when they are of separate pieces of paper that may be sorted and shifted in slips and their order changed at will. You may not have a note book with you but a bit of blank paper can always be obtained. These notes may be a word or two here to remind you of an idea or quotation there, sometimes connected and most important of all, such original thoughts as have occurred to you. You will strengthen your mind and also improve your diction by writing out fully the ideas that occur to you while reading. When you do this, you will not read so many books, but you will derive infinitely more good from what you do read. You will pay more attention and will be careful that what you read is worth noting.

TRAFFIC

By the Albert Russel Erskine Bureau for Street Traffic Research University of California, Los Angeles

Double-line Parking Threatening Clogs Important Streets. Relief Easily Obtained.

The most threatening aspect of street traffic congestion which has recently manifested itself is what is commonly called double-line parking. Drivers who are unable to find a place at crowded curbs where they can discharge their passengers or unload their merchandise have dropped into the habit of stopping their cars in the middle of the street.

The practice of double-line parking can be witnessed in any city in the country, and everywhere causes a great deal of damage to street traffic. In some cities with narrow business streets the condition has become so bad that it is practically impossible for traffic to move and vehicles and street cars are delayed for long periods of time. Even on wider streets the effect is serious for it restricts the useful width of the roadway, and concentrates all traffic in a single line in the middle of the street.

Drivers, especially those of trucks who have goods to deliver, can not always be seriously blamed for double-line parking. When the curbing is so filled with stored vehicles that it is impossible to draw in, the driver often has no other alternative than to stop in double line. Otherwise it would be necessary to drive around the block until a space was available, or to return with his goods undelivered.

In demanding that too much curb space be devoted to the parking of vehicles merchants often handicap their business seriously. They make it difficult for the delivery of goods, and inconvenient for passengers who are potential customers to descend from their cars at business houses.

Without a too severe restriction on parking, provision can be made for the elimination of double-line parking by the establishment of loading zones. These are spaces along the curb which are set aside, and appropriately marked with signs, for vehicles which have passengers or merchandise to load or unload. Regulations should prohibit the use of these spaces for cars that are merely to be parked.

Local traffic regulations should give the chief of police or some other suitable authority power to grant requests for the establishment of loading zones. Such zones should be placed by ordinance at the entrances to all theaters, hotels and public buildings. Standard signs should be provided for marking the extent of these areas, or paint along the curbs, with the words loading only should be laid down.

In several cities where the loading zone regulation has been instituted and rigidly enforced, loading and unloading operation have been greatly facilitated and double-line parking has practically disappeared.

Little Talks on Thrift

SUCCESS THROUGH THRIFT

Although the ability to make money is, to a considerable extent, a matter of natural aptitude, the still more important accomplishment of thrift can be acquired by anyone. There is no excuse for not saving money.

Thriftlessness is an indication of weakness—of indecision of character.

Thrift requires steadfastness and at times the use of the last ounce of moral strength that we possess. But it does not require any special genius.

No matter how shrewd a man may be or how keenly developed his instincts for acquiring wealth, he will never be successful unless an element of thrift is woven into all his activities.

The so-called "financial wizards" may at times seem able to defy prudent practices and the principles of thrift. But such success is seldom permanent. Wealth acquired too quickly or too easily nearly always proves transitory.

How many men there are today who might have become wealthy had they only known how to save money? During the course of their careers they have earned large sums but these have slipped through their fingers from day to day. They had the natural gift of making money, just as their successful rivals but they lacked the quality of permanent success—which is thrift.

The majority of men who have built up great fortunes, though they have in many instances risen rapidly, owe their success to thrift.

Clarence T. Hubbard, former president of the Hartford Advertising club, and a well known contributor to many magazines, will be the speaker before the chamber of commerce at its first regular monthly meeting of the season. Mr. Hubbard is the assistant secretary of the Automobile Insurance company, of Hartford, and enjoys a high reputation as a public speaker. He illustrates his address with clever acts of sleight of hand work to bring out the telling points of his talk. The meeting will be held this (Tuesday) evening at 6:15 at the Wauregan hotel.

The speaker has taken a keen interest in the "Forward New England" movement and his speeches are practical on the subject of loyalty to the home town, the state, and New England. The meetings of the chamber are open to the public and those who wish to attend can do so by making reservations at the chamber of commerce office before noon. The purpose of the chamber in these meetings is to have speakers who are well qualified to bring home a message and explain topics of importance to the town which are of a progressive nature. Those who attend the meeting will spend a most profitable hour on a subject of community interest.

NEW LONDON MAN IN HOSPITAL FOR OBSERVATION

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 27.—[illegible] Gardner avenue, where he went for the purpose of robbing the place, and upon whom was found a 45-calibre loaded revolver and belt of bullets, was presented in the police court this morning. He was not tried, the case being continued to October 2nd, and the young man was committed to the State hospital, Norwich for observation that his sanity may be determined before his case again is presented in court. Yennel was taken to the hospital by Officers Patrolman Michael Devanaugh and Patrolman Carmine Nicols. Yennel this morning disclosed that he had entered another residence in the Pequot section and that he obtained loot which he had intended to carry away if he had not been detected in the Quaintance residence. Yennel prior to entering the Quaintance house went to Glenwood avenue, corner of Lower Boulevard, and gained entrance by means of an unlocked window to the residence of [illegible] McKim, New York. Here he gathered a quantity of miscellaneous loot, including five quarts of whiskey and wine, a 32 calibre Smith & Wesson revolver and fancy articles, which he placed in a box and tied up. After remaining in the house the greater part of the day and of which, he says, three hours was devoted to playing a piano, he left and went to the Quaintance house, but before departing he took the plunder he had gathered and placed it in the yard of the McKim residence where it was recovered by the police.

GANGSTERS IDENTIFIED BY COLCHESTER CLOAK WORKERS

Five out of nine of the alleged New York gangsters who were arrested in Stamford and Greenwich charged with attacks on factory employes in Bridgeport and New Haven have been identified as the same men who participated in a similar attack on five employes of the Levine Suit and Cloak Co., in Colchester on Sunday, Aug. 29.

The five victims of the Colchester trouble went to Bridgeport Saturday and while the nine men were lined up five were picked out by the Colchester workers as those participating in the attack at that place.

They gave their names, as Louis Harris, 33, 158 South Third street; Harry Bloom, 25, 146 Nostrand street; James Corti, 29, 566 East 166th street; Max Bierbaum, 140 Lewis street, New York, and Samuel Rosenberg, 23, 930 Gates avenue, Brooklyn.

New York police identified five of the gangsters as having prison terms or having been arrested before.

DENIES PETITION FOR DORSEY ESTATE RECEIVER

After a hearing before Judge C. L. Avery of the superior court which lasted until Monday afternoon at New London, the judge denied the petition of Thomas F. Dorsey, Jr., to have Julian D. Moran confirmed as permanent receiver of the Dorsey estate. Moran was removed as temporary receiver and Mrs. Charlotte W. Dorsey, mother of the petitioner, was left in entire charge of the estate, which amounts to about $170,000.

Defendants named in the receivership petition were Attorney Thomas F. Dorsey, Charlotte W. Dorsey of New London, Peter B. Dorsey of Peru, Ind., Edward J. Dorsey of West Palm Beach, Charlotte Morrison of Los Angeles, Helen McDuff of Pawtucket, Lillian Andrews of New London, Leo B., Valencia O., and Loretta B. Dorsey.

Immediately after superior court adjournment, the estate account was filed in the probate court and was accepted. Mrs. Dorsey was granted the right to sell the property at the approval of the court.

LAST OF KITEMAUG PEACHES AT END OF SIXTEEN YEARS

For the past ten days Frank W. Browning and men, at Kitemaug orchards, Uncasville have been picking the crop of several thousand baskets of Elberta peaches. For a week longer they will be engaged stripping the apple trees and just now are picking McIntosh apples of fine color.

These will be the last peaches to come from Kitemaug trees—an orchard which has the unusual record of having borne well for sixteen years. In planting his orchard Mr. Browning planted apple trees between the peach rows; and now the former have grown so big that they have quite crowded out the peach trees. After this fall the latter will be pruned out, leaving the orchard trees in full possession of the orchard.

Dealers and housewives who have depended upon Kitemaug peaches year after year will regret the ending of the supply. The crop this season has been a top-notch one, as regards size, appearance, soundness and flavor. For sixteen years the growth of healthy trees has been of interest to all visitors to Kitemaug farm—a beauty spot each spring, when the trees blossomed, and holding up interest until the very last peach was taken from the boughs, in September.

Humans in Hives

[illegible] land in Mesopotamia there [illegible] a curious form of dwelling, built of mud and bricks, in the form of a hive. Villages and whole towns in this odd form of architecture are disclosed. As the country is for the most part destitute of trees from which to hew rafters, and also devoid in some parts, of stone, the natives build their habitations of sundried mud bricks with high and steep domes, similar in shape to a conical beehive. There is one of these villages not far from Aleppo, on the route of the famous Bagdad railway. Each home consists of several of these hives standing near together and surrounded by a wall or similar material. One or more are used to live in, another for the animals, and still another serves as a granary, and so on according to the possessions of the owner.

MOOSUP BEATEN BY VALLEY FALLS CLUB

The Moosup team "presented" the game on Sunday to Scout Costigan's Valley Falls players in the opening session by a series of weird and frightful errors, the visitors scoring five runs with one single, one double, two passes and the rest errors. Again in the third two errors and a single accounted for another tally.

Moosup's first score was an earned one, when Liberty tripled in the second and scored on Frechette's single. No other scored until the seventh, when Allard tripled and tallied on a passed ball.

In the eighth Moosup scored again on a pass to Liberty, Fenney's single and Frechette's double.

The Rhode Islanders added one in the ninth and then Moosup started their rally which brought them within one of tying and a possible win, when with one gone, Kendricks singled, advanced on Hart's sacrifice; Perrier's error on first gave Agnew a life. Doyle doubled, scoring Kendricks and Noonan was in trouble, [illegible] to walk Liberty instead of allowing him to hit, but did not reckon on the next batter, Fenney, who connected to right sending home two more, but Whalen's catch of Frechette's hard drive to center retired the side with a man on second and third and the score 7 to 6.

The game was a good one, if you bar the first inning. Moosup outhit their rivals with 13 hits to 9 for a total of 22 bases, but the visitors 5 [illegible] the first was a handicap hard to overcome. Lefty Fenney on the mound for Moosup should have had credit for his credit, but lacked the proper support. Score:

YALE TO USE THE HUDDLE SYSTEM THIS SEASON

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 27.—(AP)—Five changes in coaching policy are marking Yale preparation for the opening of the 1926 gridiron campaign this week, secret drills and the use of the huddle system in giving signals.

In changing the "huddle" Head Coach Tad Jones, following the lead of Princeton, is using the Tiger system that baffled upset Yale last year, one of the most crushing defeats the Blue has ever sustained at the hands of the Orange and Black.

Jones has a strong veteran nucleus for the 1926 Yale eleven. Sixteen of the men now on the first string squad are survivors of an original group of seven who won their letters last fall, including Stanislaw, an All-American guard.

Around him for the early scrimmages the first eleven was composed [illegible] and Scott, ends; Vanderet and Richards, tackles; Webster and Sheehan, guards; Phillips, center; Captain Bunnell, quarterback; Kono, Noble and Foote, backs. Of the men Phillips is the only one who did not win a letter in 1925.

The first stiff test this campaign will be Saturday against Boston University, to be followed with the opening battles of the "big three" rivals, Harvard and Princeton. Georgia comes to New Haven for the second game of the season, followed by the powerful Dartmouth eleven, which returns to New Haven after a year's absence. Brown, Army, Maryland, Columbia and Harvard follow in order.

Head Coach Jones has assembled his staff of coaches. Myron Fuller is in charge, Charles Comerford is taking the ends and Mel Stevens is coaching backfield and looking after the defense, while Ted Coy is directing the "freshmen." Winslow Lovejoy, 1924 captain, is aiding the centers, while Major W. H. Packard, formerly of West Point, is working with the backfield men.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

Building operations in Norwich during the past week went along at commendable speed and not a few of the dwelling houses under construction were brought to completion. During the nine months of the year the building records of new construction in Norwich shows a slight decrease from the record of 1925 both as to the number of building permits issued and the valuation of the new work.

One thing that is noticeable is the increased number of new dwelling houses erected this year. While there has been real large projects within the city limits numerous dwelling houses of the single and two-apartment types have been built. There is also a large number of garages being erected and many more that have been completed.

The first quarter of the year was especially devoid of building but as the warmer weather came the activities increased until at the present time practically every local contractor is busy. Certain sections of the city have shown more activities than others. There has been considerable construction work this year in the Thamesville district while Laurel Hill and upper Greeneville have also been active in building.

[illegible] there has been a [illegible] building probably when the final figures are checked up it will be found that this year will exceed 1925. This has been noticeable in the East Great Plain district where many houses have been erected. There has also been a large amount of building in Norwich Town along the new Norwich-Taftville road.

Work on the addition to the United Congregational church is almost complete with the exception of the interior finishing. At the Community House the work has also been rushed along toward completion.

The new bank building on Broadway, is making good progress and the work has reached the first floor.

Equally as good progress has been made on the smaller projects in the city.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

There were seven sales of real estate in Norwich during the past week as compared to seven sales during the same week in 1925. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $35,510 and $36,300.

The sales of real estate in New London numbered 15 an increase of four sales over the corresponding week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $114,125 and $208,900.

Building Situation

An increased rate of building activity for August is reported in the latest national building survey by S. W. Straus & Co., New York. The rate of activity for the entire country, however, is still found to be less than last year. August building reports received by the Straus company from 454 cities and town show a gain of 3 per cent over July, but a decline of about 9 per cent from August, 1926. The August figures bring the loss for the first eight months of the year to approximately 6 per cent for the entire country. While there was an August-August loss of 20 per cent in New York city, the list of 25 leading cities show a decline of only five per cent and a gain over July this year of about 7 per cent. These figures would seem to indicate that building activity is at present holding stronger in the centers of population than in the smaller places. Connecticut, with 10 cities reporting, and a volume of permits totaling $7,573,721, is among the 12 leading states based on August reports.

Building Permits In State

Building activity in Connecticut during the past week was about on a par with the like week of 1925. There was a slight increase for the week in the number of permits issued and the total of estimated construction centers covered by The Commercial Record totaled 364 and called for new construction estimated to cost $1,049,812. In the like week a year ago there were 362 permits issued with reported construction costs amounting to $1,011,-609.

New London

Plans are being prepared for an addition to the building at the corner of Golden and Union streets, leased by Mrs. Marie Stoddard to Samuel Luftshutz and others of New York. According to a preliminary announcement there will be a ballroom on one floor and two and three-room apartments on the other floors.

Alternate bids are being received for repairs to the tower of the Bulkeley school which was recently found to be unsafe. As a result two proposals are under consideration. One is to demolish and rebuild the present tower and cover the roof. The tower, which is a section of the original building, was built of stone in 1872-1873.

A local contractor has the contract for two cottages on Guthrie Heights for Wetmore & Clark, Mercer building. From private plans, the house will be 24x26 feet, and 24x26 feet, respectively. Each will be arranged for six rooms and will have garages in the rear. There will be steam heat, tile baths and other conveniences.

The contract has been awarded for a residence on Thames street for Julius Daren, Linden street. The owner is receiving bids for the steam heating, plumbing and electric wiring. The house will be 26x34 feet, of frame construction, cottage type, arranged for seven rooms. There will be tile baths and other conveniences.

A local contractor has the contract for remodeling the residence of F. L. McGuire, 35 Vauxhall street. There will be interior changes throughout with new partitions, new floors and a new frame garage. The interior of the house will be redecorated.

A local architect has prepared plans for a cottage at Giant's Neck, East Lyme, for William Fitzell of New Britain. The owner is receiving bids for the proposed work. The house will be 24x30 feet, arranged for seven rooms.

H. B. Prentice, 141 Mohegan avenue, has staked out ground on Glenwood avenue for two cottages. From private plans each will be arranged for six rooms with a sun porch, and breakfast nook. There will be steam heat and other improvements.

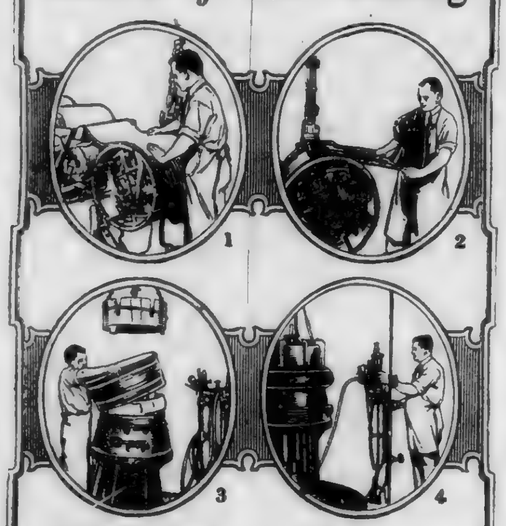
UNITED STATES TIRES ARE GOOD TIRES

Answering Some Questions About the Most Advanced Method of Tire Building



Steps in Building a United States Tire by the Flat Band Method

1. Laying plies of Latex-treated Web Cord on drum. 2. Applying tread rubber. 3. Placing tire on inflation machine. 4. Inflation finished. Tire formed.

Some facts about the United States Rubber Company's "Flat Band Method" which ensures uniform stretch and tension of every cord in the tire

Q—What is the "Flat Band Method" of building a tire?

A—The tire is built in the form of a flat band upon a drum. The plies of Latex-treated Web Cord are laid and fitted by hand, one above the other. The opposite edges of the band are turned around and securely anchored to "beads" consisting of rings of many strands of piano wire imbedded in hard rubber. The flat band carcass is then brought into shape on a special machine.

Q—Does this differ from the usual method of building tires?

A—Yes. Before the United States Rubber Company developed the Flat Band Method, the usual practice was to use a solid, metal ring-shaped form on which the cord fabric was laid and pressed into place by a rotating wheel coming in contact with the surface of the rubberized fabric.

Q—What does Flat Band building add to the service of United States Tires?

A—It makes the tire uniformly strong throughout. It eliminates the fault often found in the old-style construction, of some cords being too taut while others were loose. In Flat Band building, all the cords are under even tension, and flexibility is uniform. There are no weak spots to develop trouble.

Q—What Company developed the Flat Band Method?

A—The Flat Band Method was developed by the United States Rubber Company and is patented and owned by this Company.

Danny Makes Up His Mind Suddenly

Right or wrong, you'll always find Relief when you've made up your mind.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

There is nothing so upsetting as uncertainty. It is even true that sometimes the certainty that things are going to be worse than you had expected is better than uncertainty as to what is going to happen. Danny Meadow Mouse had been thinking more and more about Nanny Meadow Mouse and home on the Green Meadows. The claws of Short-ear the Marsh Owl al-

"Good evening, Neighbor Fox," said Short-ear

ways reminded him of home. He would hear them scratching on the old log under which his nest was, and right away he would think of home and wish he were there.

But, come daytime, Danny always found something to do, and so he kept putting off and putting off the idea of starting for home. Perhaps the fact that he hadn't any idea where home was had something to do with it.

But at last there came a night when Danny didn't get a wink of sleep. To begin with, Short-ear arrived extra early. He took up his usual perch on that old log under which Danny was living. He had been there only a little while, scratching the old log with his toenails so as to make Danny uncomfortable, when who should come along but Reddy Fox. It wasn't the Reddy who lives on the Green Meadows; but a cousin of his by the same name who was living down there at the beach.

"Good evening, Neighbor Fox," said Short-ear. "How is everything with you?"

Reddy yawned. "So, so," Neighbor Owl. So, so," said he. "I'm getting rather tired of a fish diet. I've noticed a lot of little paths cut through the grass out here on the marsh, and they have a rather appetizing smell."

Short-ear snapped his bill. "Mouse!" said he. "Meadow Mouse!"

"Mouse!" exclaimed Reddy, and licked his lips. Danny could hear him and held on to his tail to keep it from shaking with fright.

"Fat Mouse! Fat Meadow Mouse!" said Short-eat, and snapped his bill. Danny felt as if that bill pinched him when it snapped.

"Yes, sir, fat Meadow Mouse," said Reddy. "I don't know of any better eating in all the great world than fat Meadow Mice. Just talking about them makes my mouth water right now. You don't happen to know where that fat Meadow Mouse lives, do you?"

Danny Meadow Mouse couldn't see the sly wink of Reddy when he said this, but Short-ear saw it. "No," said Short-ear, "I haven't the least idea where that fat Meado Mouse is. I'm waiting for him to come home."

Reddy chuckled. "I'm waiting for him to come out," said he.

Then Danny knew both Reddy and Short-ear knew perfectly well where he was. He knew that as long as he stayed there he was safe; but he couldn't stay there forever. Now, if Short-ear was going to continue to come every night, and if Reddy should take it into his head to hunt him every day, what chance would he have?

"I want to go home," whispered Danny to himself. "I want to go home. I'm going home. Anyway, I'm going to start for home. I wonder if that Man Bird (of course, Danny meant the airplane) that brought me here is anywhere around. I'm going home right this minute. Just then Short-ear snapped his bill, and Danny changed his mind instantly. He wouldn't go that very minute, he would wait. But he would go at the first opportunity. Yes sir, he would go at the first opportunity. Danny's mind was fully made up to that.

POETRY

When God Walked in My Garden

The dew lay sparkling on the grass,
The dawn crept o'er the hill,
When God walked in my garden,
Where all was cool and still.

The cannas waved a gay salute,
The lilies' hearts beat fast,
Verbenas all were on their knees
In reverence when He passed.

The rose poured out its fragrance
When He gently touched its stem,
Each pansy raised a loving face
And kissed His garment's hem.

The daisies spread their haloes white,
The poppies were aglow,
Beside the wall the hollyhock
Swayed gently to and fro.

The moon-flowers and the jessamine
Climbed high that they might see,
As one Zaccheus did of old
In the branches of a tree.

Thus did my garden greet the Lord,
That hour when all was still;
When dew lay sparkling on the grass
And dawn crept o'er the hill.

—Elizabeth Swaller.

Sweet Autumn

When winter turns to spring,
Birds that were songless make their songs resound.
Flow'rs that were flow'rless cover all the ground;
Yet 'tis no perfect thing:—
I cannot walk, so tangled is each hill
So thick the herbs I cannot pluck my fill.
But in the autumn tide
I cull the scarlet leaves and love them dear,
And let the green leaves stay with many a tear,
As on the fair hill-side:—
No time so sweet as that, away! away!

THOMAS T. WETMORE HEADING NEW REALTY COMPANY AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 27.—A realty company has been incorporated with Thomas T. Wetmore of this city as one of the incorporators, and which, it is understood will begin the real estate business with a paid in capital of $5,000. It is claimed that the company will develop the property at the corner of Union and Golden streets opposite the Crocker house and convert it into apartments. There are few such apartments in this city at present, though it is understood there has been a demand for them.

GUEST AT PARTY RISKED MAKING WORK FOR UNDERTAKE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 27.—Peter Gardella wound up a drunk Sunday when he was arrested three times. Twice he was bailed out, but he soundly got away from the booze and finally wound up in a cell where he remained all night. He not only drank a lot of whiskey, so-called, but he made it right in his room in Potter street, where he had a still in operation and where several bottles of moonshine were found. It is believed that Peter had a party at his home for a fellow named Fred Smith was there and he was too drunk to move. Had he remained a few minutes before the police found him he would have been moved by an undertaker. A pedestrian passing the Gardella premises in the afternoon distinguished the odor of gas so strong that he notified the police and suggested that they investigate. The officers burst open a door when they could not effect entrance otherwise, found three gas jets wide open and gas flowing into the room. Smith was discovered in an adjoining room very drunk. He was locked up and treated. Gardella was found later and he was given a place to sleep off his drunk. He was charged with manufacturing intoxicating liquor, when the police court assembled this morning. He pleaded guilty and said he just got drunk. He showed the effects of a long debauch for his eyes were swollen and his face bruised from falling about. Judge Prince fined him $150, so he went to jail. He was also fined for intoxication.

There were some dozen other drunks in court this morning after Sunday sprees. Some were fined, while others, who appeared for the first time were given an opportunity to reform. Habituals were sent to jail.

Anthony C. Andrews was charged with reckless operation of an automobile while coming from Jefferson avenue to Bank street. He was accused by Anthony Mugovero. The case was contested all along as it was represented by Andrews that the fault was with Mugovero rather than with the man accused. Mugovero was very positive in accusing Andrews, but Foster Lewis, a disinterested spectator, gave testimony that was very injurious to the allegation of Mugovero. Mr. Lewis said he was sitting in his car near the corner of Ocean avenue with a friend and had an uninterrupted view of what happened. He declared that Edwards was on his right side of the road when Mugovero came out of Jefferson avenue and started down the hill, dodging another car as he went and thus crashing into the Andrews car. He was cross-examined by the prosecutor, but stuck to his version of the affair and put the blame upon Mugovero. The attorneys, Hollandersky for the state and Hewitt for the defense did not argue the case as Judge Prince had a previous engagement in another court. Attorney Hollandersky desires to cross-examine the witness so the case was adjourned two weeks, that he may do that.

COUNCIL MAKES FIRST MOVE TO RETAIN C. G. ACADEMY

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 27.—The meeting of the city council this evening was a short one, lasting about half an hour. The chief business was action taken to retain the Coast Guard academy in New London. The New Bedford section has been striving to secure the transfer of the academy to that port and has had the backing of the Massachusetts members of congress, while Connecticut has not been interested to the extent that it should have been. The matter was brought to the attention of the council this evening by Mayor Fox by the introduction of a resolution seeking the retention of the academy here. The council voted to improve the roadway leading to the academy, to provide sidewalks and better lights, so that the place will be improved in all respects where improvements are desired. A committee was appointed to take up the matter with Senator Bingham and with Congressman Freeman to secure an appropriation from the government for work needed. The committee will meet during the week and steps will then be taken for the aggressive movement for the retention of the academy.

The Krystal cleaners petitioned for the right to place a sign at 108 State street. Residents of Veit street petitioned for the improvement of that thoroughfare. There were some twenty signers of the petition.

There were some twenty students of Williams Memorial Institute disappointed in not having the opportunity to attend the meeting this evening. They were under the impression that the meeting was to begin at 8 o'clock, standard time, whereas the meeting opened at 7 o'clock and had adjourned when the young women pupils arrived.

There were the usual petitions for building permits, but they generally asked for the privilege of erecting garages, although the Southern New England Telephone company petitioned to erect its building on Washington street.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Lyceum Theater, New London

How much can your nerves stand? There are said to be moments of almost unbearable thrill and suspense in Channing Pollock's The Enemy—scenes as moving as that of the healing of Mary Margaret in Mr. Pollock's earlier play, The Fool. Shots and battles are not heard or seen in The Enemy which will be the attraction at the Lyceum theater Saturday evening, October 9th, but well known critics are responsible for the statement that it takes strong nerves to stand the unceasing tread of marching feet outside the window at which Paull, the heroine of the love story, says good-bye to her soldier husband. The scene of farewell, as simple and honest as it is moving, has been described by William Lyon Phelps, the great dramatic authority of Yale as worthy to rank with incidents of the same kind in Pinero's Iris and in Romeo and Juliet. Such farewells took place in millions of homes during the war—perhaps in almost the same words—and they still take place wherever there are husbands and wives and lovers. There is nothing extraordinary in the scene, we are told, except that it is so well written and acted that no one can listen to it without the deepest feeling. Crosby Gaige is sending The Enemy with the same company that has just concluded an all-season run at the Times Square theater, New York, and that includes no fewer than three stars in Florence Rittenhouse, Russ Whytal and Charles Dalton. The entire cast and production have been mentioned in the highest terms. The sale of seats at the box office begins Thursday, Oct. 7th but mail orders will be filled at once in the order of their receipt.

Palace Theater

Tonight for one night only there will be presented on the Palace stage The Beauty Show by winners of beauty contests all over the east this season. These young ladies are not only beautiful but also talented. Each one presents either a song or dancing specialty and at the conclusion of the unique entertainment the audience will have an opportunity of making its choice of the winner for Norwich. The young lady receiving the most applause will be declared the winner. The Beauty Show is not only good entertainment but presents a lavish display of feminine charms and talent and it will be given in addition to the big motion picture program, without any increase in prices and should pack the Palace to the doors. On the screen is Gloria Swanson in her latest triumph Fine Manners acknowledged this popular stars finest picture in which she is supported by Eugene O'Brien handsome and talented leading man. The ladies will rave over Gloria's gowns which are in the latest styles and worn as only she can wear them and the men will see a great story enacted by a brilliant cast. So every one should be highly pleased and that's not all. Hal Roach's new comedy, Should Husbands Pay will provide plenty of joy for the occasion and a new Aesops Fable, The Big Retreat will add to the merriment. John T. Eagan will play popular songs on the big organ to accompany humorously illustrated slides upon the screen and the Topical Events and Walter Lang and his orchestra will present a charming musical program. For quality and quantity tonight's Palace show exceeds any so far presented at this favorite theater this season.

Broadway Theater

The Son of the Shiek, which is now playing at the Broadway theater, is a chip of the old block.

Rudolph Valentino's much heralded sequel to the picture which brought the name "sheik" into repute all over the world proves that while a son may be like his father, he oftentime is much wilder.

The original sheik was content to sweep a lady fair off her feet with passionate embraces, then talk her into leaving the fogs of old London for the sandstorms and romantic night of the desert; the son, however, is a fast worker; he falls in love on sight, gets tangled up with his sweetheart's henchmen, then, in revenge, kidnaps the girl and drags her away to his tent.

But the son has certain redeeming qualities which were absent in the makeup of shiek, senior. The youth becomes conscience-stricken and decides to send the lady, a professional dancer and all around heart-breaker back to her people, but en route, a villainous Moor does a little kidnapping on his own account and emphasizes his determination to keep her by murdering her father.

Produced by John W. Considine, Jr., for United Artists and directed by George Fitzmaurice, The Son of the Sheik, is a lavishly screened version of E. M. Hull novel, which was adapted by Frances Marion. There is action every minute, and enough warm desert love to satisfy the most torrid imagination.

Valentino makes love, fights and wears colorful costumes in his usual dashing manner. Vilma Banky, his leading lady, is more charming than ever.

The supporting cast, including George Fawcett, Montagu Love, Karl Dane, William Donovan, Bull Montana, Agnes Ayres, Erwin Connelly and Charles Requa is excellent.

An augmented orchestra and short features make this an outstanding program.

Breed Theatre

Blasco Ibanez is the author of "Mare Nostrum," coming to the Breed theatre. This brilliant and internationally famous Spaniard is the most discussed and widely read of present daoy novelists. His works are translated into almost every known language and his books ran into many editions in all the leading countries of the world.

Besides "Mare Nostrum" Ibanez is the author of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," "Blood and Sand," "Enemies of Women," "Queen Calafia" and many other books and short stories. He is also contributor to magazines and newspapers in the United States, France, Spain and England.

Ibanez considers "Mare Nostrum" his greatest story and it is the favorite of all he has written. One of the reasons for this is that in "Mare Nostrum" Ibanez retraces himself as a boy with all his youthful aspirations and his overpowering love for the sea. Because of his great personal interest in "Mare Nostrum" Ibanez refused to dispose of the motion picture rights until Rex Ingram was able to produce it in pictures. Ingram and Ibanez have been close friends and mutual admirers since Ingram produced "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," which made motion picture history.

Mare Nostrum will open an engagement at the Breed theatre Sunday, coming here direct from a sensational record breaking run of seven months at the Criterion theatre, New York, where it showed at two dollar prices.

Norwich Music Association

The Norwich Music association will open its twelfth season in Slater Hall Annex on Tuesday evening, October 5th.

The series of programs selected for the 1926-27 season are varied, and it seems assured that the standard set by the association in the past will not only be maintained but very probably excelled.

While announcements have been mailed to former members, membership in the association is open to anyone who wishes the privilege of listening to recitals of a high order. The procedure for all is the same, simply mail the membership fee of $3.00 to Mr. William H. Collins, 63 McKinley avenue, and the membership card will be returned to the address given promptly.

CANTERBURY GREEN

The usual number of Canterbury people found their way to Brooklyn fair Wednesday, where both the grange and Ladies' Aid society put on exhibits. The grange received first prize and had reason to be proud of the fine display, which was collected and arranged by various committees, with Mrs. Grace Wright chairman.

Michael Shea and his sisters entertained relatives Sunday, 17 being present.

Mrs. Andrew Clark is reported somewhat ill, so that one of her daughters is with her.

Miss Sarah L. Hadley has gone to New York for an indefinite stay.

Miss Mabel Carpenter was the winner of several prizes at the fair, among them one for a handmade tray and for different varities of flowers.

The funeral of Mrs. Anna Webb Dawson was held at her home in the North Society district Wednesday. Rev. Walter Stowe of Canterbury Green conducted the services. Burial was in the Neighborhood cemetery near. Mrs. Dawson had long been a resident of the town. She had been in failing health for some time. Her husband died several years ago. Two sons, James of New York and Charles of Stillwater, Florida, survives. The latter had been with her during her illness.

Protecting Flowers

Now that all large cities make an event of their annual flower shows, it is very important that the original colors of the rare specimens exhibited be retained. This is almost impossible in the late summer and early autumn. The intense light of the summer sun bleaches the first fresh tint of some of the strongly colored flowers, and the danger of early frost is another factor to be taken into consideration.

European gardeners always have protected their rare flowers by some covering device, but in this country one now can obtain flower protectors in packages. The little protectors unfold and make a substantial covering even for the largest flowers. They are made of waterproof cloth stretched on an iron frame. They can be adjusted to any desired height. By this means all the difference graduations in the color of the flower are retained.

MARKET WAS PROFESSIONAL

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—(AP)—The stock market today failed to give any indication of a definite price trend although final quotations disclosed that net losses numerically exceeded net gains. The market lacked leadership, despite occasional demonstrations in special stocks obviously staged for the purpose of influencing the main trend. Trading was largely of a professional character the day's sale again falling below one and one-half million shares.

Uneasiness over the credit situation was again apparent. Some encouragement was derived from the large increase in bank reserves shown in last Saturday's clearing house statement, but its effect was nullified when the call money rates was marked up from 4½ to 5 per cent as banks began to withdraw funds in connection with month-end requirements. After the close of the market, the Federal Reserve bank announced a decrease of nearly $58,000,000 in brokers loans for the week ended last Wednesday, reviving hopes that the stiffening in the money market was only temporary.

U. S. Steel common closed nearly a point lower at 148 1-2 despite hardening prices for steel and pig iron in some middle western districts, and the circulation of vague rumors of some special development on October 5, which, incidentally is Chairman Gary's 80th birthday. The regular quarterly meeting of the corporation does not take place until the last Tuesday of the month.

Railroad shares developed several points of strength on the publication of another batch of favorable August earnings reports. The first 36 roads to report for that month show combined net railway operating income to be nearly 16 per cent above the same month last year. Atchison's net jumping from $5,054,865 in August 1925 to $8,407,763 last month.

Equipment shares took on a new lease of life in response to reports of more pressing inquiries for rolling stock from some of the large carriers. Baldwin in which a powerful speculative clique is reported to have been recently organized, was bid up about 5 points to 125 1-2, closing at the top.

General Motors resumed its advance by closing over a point higher at 159 3-8 but the other automotive issues were spotty. Selling of some of the minor issues was accompanied by rumors that some companies might be forced to cut or omit their dividends before the end of the year, due to the damaging competition of the large organizations in all classes of cars. A further decline in American Smelting probably reflected another drop in the price of silver, the market for which has been practically demoralized by the prospect of India switching from the silver to a modified good money standard.

One of the most sensational movements in recent weeks took place in Hy-Products Coke which soared 16 1-2 points to a new record high at 40 and then broke to 78.

Farm implements shares were under pressure. Case Threshing breaking 5 points, Advance Rumely preferred dropping 3 3-8 and International Harvester 1 1-2. Heavyiress also developed in Foundation company, and Warner Pictures A.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Commodity prices were mixed. Wheat rallied slightly on the publication of favorable export statistics. Cotton failed to respond to reports of damaging weather, closing 27 to 43 points net lower. Raw sugar held steady but the futures market was firmer. Coffee showed little change.

With the exception of the Chinese exchanges which broke to new low levels in sympathy with the further decline in silver and the failure of the Russo-Asiatic bank, the foreign exchanges held steady. Demand sterling was slightly easier around $4.85 11-16 while French francs advanced almost to 3.80 cents and Italian lire jumped above 3.75 cents for a week-end gain of nearly 8 points.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—(AP)—Bond prices drifted aimlessly in today's dull trading. Buying interest was held at a low ebb because of the firming up of money rates with the approach of month-end settlements, but the fears of tighter credit were not disturbing enough to cause any heavy selling.

The best showing of the day was made by the St. Paul railway issues which responded to indications that reorganization plans would be facilitated by the establishment of an upset price and to reports that the treasury looked with favor upon provisions for the repayment of the roads obligations which it holds. The Puget Sound division fours gained more than a point and fractional advances were scored by most of the other issues. International Great Northern 6s sold near the year's top price but Lehigh Valley 5s Illinois Central 5 1-2s and Wabash 4s were heavy.

Foreign obligations were unable to attract new buying support to counteract the profit-taking movement which has been under way for more than a week. Polish eights recovered temporarily from last week's slump but selling was later renewed and they lost more than a point. French bonds declined fractionally while miscellaneous issues, such as Carlsbad sights and Cuban fives were conspicuously heavy.

Trading in industrial liens was devoid of features. Skelly Oil 6 1-2s dropped 2 points to 138 on a single sale and Continental Paper 6 1-2s lost a point. Republican Iron and Steel 5 1-2s were in good demand, duplicating the year's high price of 100 1-4.

Liberty bonds were unchanged but the treasury issues lost ground in extremely light trading.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Sept. 27—(AP)—Offerings in the wheat pit today proved to be extra light and traders who were short had to bid prices up to get the grain. The [illegible] estimates in Canada accompanied a sharp falling off in Canadian marketings of wheat. Closing quotations on wheat were 3-4 to 1 1-4c net higher, corn unchanged to 3-4c off, oats 1-8 to 3-8c lower and provisions unchanged to 45 cents up.

Advices to grain houses received here [illegible] export clearances of wheat in Canada [illegible] to only 1,427,811 bushels, against 3,370,000 bushels, the corresponding week a year ago. Further, [illegible] receipts were [illegible] 320 cars, compared with 341 cars a year back.

A further development to which significance attached was the report that today's 2,041,000 bushel increase of the United States wheat visible supply turned out to be almost 1,000,000 bushels less than had been looked for.

Corn prices were strengthened as a result of these [illegible] parental accession of [illegible] despite a further [illegible] in line with the [illegible].

CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—(AP)—Backing and filling movements characterized [illegible] speculative [illegible] to a dozen issues. Managers of the call money [illegible] tended to restrain bullish enthusiasm, but trade news on the whole was [illegible].

With the peak of the gasoline consuming season practically over, oils showed little interest. Today's net changes [illegible] were unimportant in character.

Several points of strength developed in the industrial group. New peak prices for the year were attained by Du Pont, Freshman Radio, Victor Talking Machine and some of the ordinarily inactive issues. Revival of activity and strength in Fox Theatres A reflected the large increase in gross business as a result of the recent coal shares were firm with buying undoubtedly influenced by the colder weather. Motors moved within narrow and irregular limits.

Heavy buying on Durant sending that stock up to within a fraction of the year's high. Erratic fluctuations took place in Warner Pictures B which closed 2 points net lower at 52.

Public Utilities showed mixed changes. American Gas and Electric which was strong last week, fell back over 2 points on profit taking. Heaviness also cropped out in Commonwealth Power and Middle West Utilities.

WESTMINSTER

The discourse Sunday the 17th was based on I Peter 3:18.

In the evening the Union Service of the Evangelical churches at Westminster resulted in an audience of about 175, as estimated by a visiting minister one of 11 who sat on the platform during the evening's worship. All realized that it was really worship in the singing the hymns under the inspiring leadership of Rev. George S. Reese of Central Village, prayer by Rev. Mr. Higgins of Packer; scripture reading by Rev. Mr. Dunnack of Moosup, solo by George Ingles of Plainfield, offering and sermon by Rev. Mr. Penny of Brooklyn. The church platform had been decorated for the morning worship with masses of golden rod, sterstemmae, flaming autumn leaves, gladioli, nasturtiums and sweet peas. To these for the evening were added and beautifully arranged by Mrs. William Davies of Elm Archgrove, large ferns; handsome asters; and showy zinnias and hydrangeas.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pellett entertained over Sunday the latter's father, John Pellett, her sister, Miss Margaret Pellett and two brothers, William and George Pellett. The gentlemen attended Westminster church in the morning, also, when George led the singing. Mrs. Meade the organist being detained by an accident received Monday, from which she is recovering as fast as possible. In the evening Miss Nightingale was organist.

The funeral of Mrs. Anti Rinkinen took place at Backus cemetery Sunday afternoon. The service was conducted by Rev. Victor Kotila of Maynard, Mass., in simple earnest fashion in the Finish language, in the presence of relatives and Finnish and other friends. The floral tributes were very beautiful. Mrs. Rinkinen came from Finland to the United States with her family, 11 years ago. She was an earnest Christian and bore her long illness with great patience. The day before her death a sister, whom Mrs. Rinkinen had not seen in 47 years, arrived from Detroit, Mich. Beside her husband, Mrs. Rinkinen left a son and two daughters. These all left for New York, where they plan to live, early in the present week.

After a long and painful illness, Mrs. Annie E. Dawson left this life for the one beyond. The funeral was private, Sept. 23rd, conducted by the Episcopalian rector of Plainfield according to instruction given her son, James Dawson of Florida, who came north to see his mother and has had the sole care of her for many weeks. The family has owned the home now vacated for over 20o years. Mrs. Dawson a woman of culture had resided there when not traveling in Europe or elsewhere. Burial was in the cemetery nearly opposite the Dawson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Rollinson have returned to their home in Attawaugan after a brief visit at the home of the former's sister, Mrs. Charles Barstow.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Slater of Killingly were recent guests of Mrs. Lucy Gardiner and son Lester Gardiner of East Quester and Westminster.

Elwood Hubbard of East Chester and Westminster is spending a vacation at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hubbard.

George Hubbard and his wife of Packer, were recent guests of the former's brothers family here.

Sunday the union service was held in the M. E. church in Moosup at 7 p. m.

Work on the new Bert Bennett bungalow is beginning in earnest, a smaller foundation having previously been laid on the site of the old house, the Bennett home for generations, which was destroyed by fire early this spring.

The new Vitinz house is nearing completion and will add to the attractive appearance of Westminster Hill.

The Brooklyn fair was attended by a number from this region.

Deacon A. C. Green, 60 years a resident here and a member of this church writes from their Danielson home of their 51st wedding anniversary Sept. 5, with five children present and 14 at the table and their married life begun anew. A son Bert of India and Ned of Denver could not come. Two sisters of Mrs. Greene present at their marriage, Mrs. Raisbecks of Moline, Ill., and Mrs. Gleason of Detroit, Mich. were present at Danielson. Deacon Greene was 87 years old, Sept. 24th.

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Sept. 27.—Fifty republican electors assembled at 7:30 o'clock this evening in Westerly town hall to name delegates to the Rhode Island republican state convention in Providence and to elect members of the Westerly town and district committees. The meeting was called to order by Moderator Lewis Stanton. Everett A. Kingsley, clerk pro-tem, read the call.

Herbert W. Rathbun named the following as delegates: Howard E. Thorp, John D. Nichols, Samuel H. Davis, Farquhar Smith, Clifford W. Campbell, and Mrs. Isabelle C. Chapman. As alternates, Charles F. Berry, Herbert P. Clark, Elisha C. Burdick, Mrs. Charlotte E. Stanton, Richard Mitchell, Thomas Moore. The nominations were seconded by Max Novogroski.

Utter requested that his name be withdrawn. Abraham P. Dotson wants his name withdrawn from the town committee slate and Howard E. Thorp asked that his name be taken from the Rathbun list, so that Mrs. Edris T. Dotson remained as a delegate. Therefore no contests will be required by ballot, which would have been taken next Thursday.

SPECIAL RADIO PROGRAMS AGAIN TO GO TO ARCTIC

HASTINGS, Neb., Aug. 17 (AP)—Radio again will play a leading role in breaking the dull monotony of cold, bitter nights in the Arctic Circle posts.

So satisfactory were the special experimental "Arctic Circle" broadcasts by radio station KFKX, Hastings, and other stations last winter, that special programs have been arranged for the coming winter months. The best equipment already has been dispatched to the various circle posts to insure proper reception.

KFKX special programs will be broadcast for Arctic circle points on November 19, December 24, January 14 and February 25. These programs will be radiocast on a 288.3 meters wave length and will start at 9 p. m. central standard time, each program lasting about four hours.

KFKX will broadcast personal messages from friends and relatives to the men of the far north, as well as messages and bulletins of an official nature from departments of the Canadian government. These messages and bulletins will take about an hour of the program's time. The balance of the program will be devoted to special musical and entertainment features.

The year the estimated town expenses are $247,048.96. Last year they were $238,315.83, an increase for this year of $13,732.13.

CANCELLATION OF TEAPOT DOME OIL LEASE ORDERED

By the United Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Louis—Decision Reverses Finding of Lower Court and Enjoins the Sinclair Company From Further Trespassing on Government Lands—Decision Declares the Sinclair Lease to Have Been Fraudulent—Was Obtained While Albert W. Fall Was Secretary of the Interior.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The United States Circuit court of appeals today reversed and remanded the decision of the district court at Cheyenne, Wyo., upholding the Teapot Dome oil lease obtained by Harry F. Sinclair and associates from the government while Albert B. Fall was secretary of the interior.

The appellate court's decision is sweeping in effect and instructs the lower court immediately to cancel the mammoth oil company's lease and to enjoin it from further trespassing on government lands. The opinion was received here from William S. Kenyon of Fort Dodge, Iowa, presiding judge of the appellate court.

The decision declares the Sinclair lease to have been fraudulent. The lower court is instructed to ask the mammoth oil company for an accounting of all oil and petroleum products taken from the government's naval oil reserve during its tenure.

The appellate court in its decision, a 65 page document, reverses Judge T. Blake Kennedy who held in district court at Cheyenne in June, 1925, that the government's allegation of fraud had not been proved. He rejected the government's annulment suit and left the mammoth oil company in possession of Teapot Dome.

The opinion was concurred in by District Judge Arba S. Van Valkenburgh of Kansas city and District Judge W. A. Kent of Duluth, who sat with Judge Kenyon in hearing the appeal in St. Paul last May.

"Our conclusions that the government sustained its claim that the lease and contract were procured by fraud and corruption, and that they should be cancelled.

"A trial of deceit, falsehood, subterfuge, bad faith and corruption, at times indistinct, but nevertheless discernible, runs through the transactions incident to and surrounding the making of this lease. It should not receive the approval of the court.

"There is no corruption in this case in to any officers of the government except Albert B. Fall. It has been the theory of the government that former Secretary Fall received from Harry F. Sinclair, organizer and owner of the mammoth company, a pecuniary consideration which influenced him to grant the company a lease for Teapot Dome.

"Counsel for the United States charged that Sinclair received as dividends from the Continental Trading company, limited, of Ontario, Canada, $230,500 face value of Liberty bonds which he turned over to Fall as a bribe. This charge is as grave and serious an accusation as could be made against a public official augmented by the fact that this official so charged was in a sense the trustee for the people of the United States of its public lands.

"The case is one therefore, in which no: only the rights of the United States and the mammoth oil company, but likewise the rights of the public at large are involved.

"The entire transaction is tainted with favoritism, collusion or corruption, defeating the proper and lawful functions of the government. Nothing is so essential to the perpetuity of representative government as fidelity of public officials."

The opinion also stated that "it is of vital importance that government oil in naval reserve lands should not be drained away for the benefit of private enterprises, but that it shall be preserved in the interest of the national defense."

The appellate court listed 64 exceptions to the findings of the lower court, as set out by Special Prosecutors Pomerene and Roberts in three groups, as follows:

"First, was there authority of law to make the lease of April 27, 1922, and a supplemental agreement on February 9, 1923, to the Mammoth Oil company and were they in accordance with the law?

"Second, were the lease and agreement procured by fraud as claimed by the government?

"Third, was there abuse of discretion in not granting continuances asked by the government to secure certain evidence of H. S. Osler, an important witness, who was in Canada and in refusing to re-open the case for this evidence?"

Discussing the law pertaining to naval oil reserves, the decision set out, "as congress deemed the law, it intended to place the matter entirely in the hands of the secretary of the navy. . . . Whether the idea of placing the naval reserve control in the department of the interior originated with Secretary Denby or was suggested to him by Secretary Fall, is a matter of conjecture. It is certain that Secretary Fall was not only willing, but anxious, that such suggestion of Secretary Denby be carried out."

Continuing with a discussion of the arrangements for the leasing of the lands the decision said:

"This arrangement was ratified by Secretary Fall in a letter of October 10, 1921. Secretary Denby seemed to have too little information concerning the leasing of Teapot Dome that Secretary Fall thought it necessary to write him a long letter of date April 13, 1922, explaining the same. . . . That Secretary Fall, as to this matter, dominated Secretary Denby, Admiral Robison and other government officers, and practically controlled the action of the navy department as to the leasing of Teapot Dome is a conclusion difficult to escape under this record."

INTERNATIONAL SUNSHINE SOCIETY IN CONVENTION

WATERBURY, Sept. 28.—(AP)—More than 175 delegates representing every branch of the International Sunshine society, assembled at the First Methodist church today for the state convention. The entire official staff with the exception of the vice presidency given to Mrs. Elizabeth Ingersoll of 66 Holmes avenue, Waterbury was re-elected.

Dr. Harry B Belcher, pastor of the church, gave the invocation and welcomed the delegates. Miss Constance Smith Remington, of Newington, read report on the home for crippled children in charge of the society in that city. Rev. Charles Benedict told of the progress of the home for blind babies at Farmington. Mrs. Nellie E. Furman, of New York city, secretary-general, outlined welfare work now in charge of the society. "The Arthur Home for the Blind," was the subject of an address by Mrs. Minnie L. Force, of New Jersey.

The society organized by Cynthia Westover, in 1890, to aid cripples and defectives, now numbers over 400 branches in the United States.

NO CONFERENCE ULLMAN AND RORABACK FACTIONS

HARTFORD, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Ullman republicans who hold the eight New Haven seats on the republican state central committee held no further conference with Chairman J. Henry Roraback today on the reconciliation between the New Haven group and the upstate organization. Both Mr. Roraback and former Lieutenant-Governor Dennis A. Blakeslee, of New Haven, denied that any further conference had been scheduled for today.

Mr. Blakeslee would not discuss details of the reconciliation, except to say that New Haven wanted adequate recognition, particularly with regard to its four senators and two representatives in the general assembly. "Draw your own inferences," was his reply to a question as what constituted "adequate recognition" in his opinion. The reconciliation between the two New Haven groups will result in a primary in New Haven, October 11, which for the first time in ten years will not be contested.

Among the speakers were Curtis P. Gladding, of Hartford, president of the board of trustees; P. J. Garvin, state pharmacy inspector and a member of the board of trustees; Professor Henry Stoddard Johnson, head of the chemistry department; Professor Frederick S. Eaton head of the department of botany, and Professor M. Donald Cadman.

36 PERSONS INJURED IN N. Y. SUBWAY ACCIDENT

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Thirty-six persons were injured, two seriously, when one subway train ran into the rear of another standing at the Bliss avenue station of the elevated extension of the subway in Long Island City tonight.

Joseph Connaughton, 32, of Flushing, was pinned in the wreckage for an hour and a half while workmen cut through wood and steel to extricate him. His ankle was crushed. William Diston, the motorman of the Brooklyn Manhattan Transit company train, was crushed and burned about the legs. He and Connaughton were taken to the St. John's hospital, Long Island City. The others injured were treated for cuts, bruises and burns.

Diston told police the tracks had become so slippery that his breaks would not hold, although he had applied them upon sighting the lights of a seven-car steel train of the Interborough Rapid Transit company which had stopped at the Bliss Street station to discharge passengers.

TESTING BREAD AND WATER "JUST FOR THE FUN OF IT"

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The bread and water diet prescribed for liquor law violators by the Nebraska court is being given a test by two department of justice officials, "just for the fun of it."

Howard Jones and Arthur Henderson, assistants to Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, head of prohibition enforcement in the department of justice, went on the diet today with the intention of trying it out for "three for four days."

"We are interested to see how severe it is," Jones said, "but the outcome of our test of course will have no effect on the administration of this diet with the Nebraska court or any other court which desires to order it." Of course, most of us could stand to lose a little weight but I am afraid this won't do it."

Attorney General Sargent said he was not interested in the test being conducted by his two assistants.

GIFTS FOR STATE PARKS IN NAUGATUCK VALLEY

HARTFORD, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Gifts of park and forest lands comprising a total of 1,643 acres in four towns in the Naugatuck valley, were received today by the state of Connecticut, at a joint meeting of the state park and forest commissioners and the commission on forest and wild life held at the Peoples' forest, Barkhamsted. The donors were the Black Rock Forest, Inc., and the Waterville corporation, a subsidiary of the Chase companies, of Waterbury.

The two gifts constitute the largest amount of lands ever received by the state at one time. Together with 550 acres of land in the same vicinity which have been purchased during the past few months by the commission of forests and wild life they make a large addition to the 30,000 acres of park and forest land now owned by the state.

Prohibition Law Is the Paramount Issue

In Acceptance Speech by Col. Gaston, Democratic Nominee for Governor of Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Repeal of the prohibition law and enactment of a system of regulation for the sale of liquor were urged by Colonel William A. Gaston, democratic nominee for governor of Massachusetts, in his acceptance speech before the democratic state convention tonight. Col. Gaston declared that he would accept no more than one term in office. He criticised gubernatorial methods of appointment to the judiciary in recent years declaring they were "characterized by political narrowness."

"The most vital, most immediate of all questions and problems confronting the people is that of prohibition," Colonel Gastoh asserted. "It cannot be set aside; it must be met; and every candidate on every ballot in this election must come out in the open and state plainly where he stands. There must be no dodging and no evasion; and this election must be made a solemn referendum," so that the voice and verdict of this commonwealth may go thundering down to Washington."

Colonel Gaston asserted that prohibition had utterly failed to prohibit, that crime, immorality and lawlessness had grown out of the paralysis of the law and that "Massachusetts must demand a return of the old days of decency and law and order."

He declared, however, that he was opposed to the return of the liquor saloon and favored instead "some reasonable plan of regulation and restriction, akin to the systems of Sweden and Quebec. * * * But until the Volstead law is repealed it must be enforced. We will not compromise with law breakers."

GOV'T. RESTS CASE AGAINST DAUGHERTY AND MILLER

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The government today rested its case against Harry M. Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller, charged with defrauding the government of their best services as attorney general and alien property custodian, in permitting the release in 1921 of $7,000,000 impounded assets of the American Metal company.

As soon as United States Attorney Buckner announced that he has completed his case, Judge Mack excused the jury for the day, adjourned court until tomorrow and then went into conference in his chambers with attorneys for both sides to discuss motions concerning the dismissal of the trial and admissability of much of the government's evidence.

The principal witness was Richard Merton, the German metal magnate who came to this country and gave John T. King, $441,000 to "help and speed" release of the $7,000,000 assets. It is the government's contention that a great part of this $441,000 found its way into the hands of Daugherty and Miller and was the inducement which caused them to conspire against the government.

Edward N. Toland, of the attorney general's office, and Mrs. Mabel Norton of the treasury department were called to testify to investigations carried on in an effort to trace ownership of coupons from a $200,000 batch of the Merton bonds. The government charges that the interest on these bonds formed a part of the money which it alleges went to Daugherty.

Among other things, Toland testified to discovering that $40,000 of the Merton-King bonds had been sold to Jesse Smith, Daugherty's political "handy man" who is alleged to have acted as a go-between in the American Metal release transaction.

Buckner rested his case at 3:20. This was the signal for the expected motions by defense counsel for dismissal of the trial, which have been forecast by their steady stream of objections throughout the trial.

FATE OF IMPRISONED MINERS STILL IN DOUBT

IRONWOOD, Mich., Sept. 28.—(AP)—Many additional hours of ceaseless toil in the underground passageways of the G. Pabst mine will be necessary before the fate of the 43 miners imprisoned there since Friday is learned.

Officials of the Oliver Iron Mining company directing the rescue work refused tonight to estimate the probable time when the men will be reached and one engineer said it might take a week or ten days.

Whether the men are rescued alive depends, they said, on earth conditions encountered in boring towards the eighth level of the mine, 727 feet below the surface where the men are imprisoned.

Wives and children of the entombed miners found a note of hope in the declaration of Dr. E. H. Madajesky, physician and surgeon of the Oliver company, who said he believed the men could "live at least two weeks with fresh air and water and without food. The fact that the eighth level is warm, is much in their favor."

The hard earth, rock and slate combine to provide stubborn resistance to the boring operations of the crews which chance every four hours. Work of opening the shaft into which the eighth level emerges proceeds slowly.

Mills and Smith to Head N. York Tickets

Both Gubernatorial Nominees Are in Favor of a Referendum on the Prohibition Question.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Ogden L. Mills of New York city, vigorous opponent during the past year of Governor Smith's policies of state administration, today was chosen by the republican state convention to face the governor at the polls this fall.

Seeking re-election for United States senator from New York, as a running mate of Mr. Mills, will be James W. Wadsworth, Jr. His nomination by an overwhelming majority served to crush, at least for the time being, opposition by the dry wing of the party to his stand in favor of modification of the federal prohibition laws.

The convention was generally regarded by republican leaders as one of the most harmonious of recent years, despite forecasts of revolts among the drys and the women, because of the failure of the state to carry a feminine candidate.

Candidates for other officers are:

For lieutenant-governor—Seymour Lowman of Elmira.

For comptroller—Vincent B. Murphy of Rochester.

For attorney-general—Albert Ottinger of New York city.

For chief judge of the court of appeals—Benjamin N. Cardozo of New York city.

For associate judge of the court of appeals—Henry T. Kellogg of Plattsburgh.

The selection of both candidates for court of appeals judges was made unanimously in accordance with an agreement reached between republican and democratic leaders a week ago, with a view to strict impartiality in the judicial slate.

The first evidences of the threatened dry revolt, other than mere untraceable reports, came during the roll call on the nomination of Mr. Mills. Three delegates from Herkimer county, home territory of Franklin W. Christman, running independently on a bone dry plank against Senator Wadsworth, were recorded as not voting. When the complete vote for governor was announced, 13 delegates out of a total of 1,317 were found to have declined to vote.

GOV. SMITH RENOMINATED FOR HIS FOURTH TERM

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 28.—(AP)—Alfred E. Smith, of New York, was unanimously nominated for a fourth term as governor by the New York state democratic convention here today.

His associates on the state ticket all were nominated by acclamation. The slate:

Governor: Alfred E. Smith, New York.

Lieutenant-governor: Edwin Corning, Albany.

Comptroller: Morris S. Tremaine, Buffalo.

Attorney general: Benjamin Stolz, Syracuse.

United States senator: Robert F. Wagner, New York.

Chief judge, court of appeals; Benjamin N. Cardozo, New York.

Associate judge, court of appeals: Henry T. Kellogg, Plattsburgh.

Despite independent booms which had been started for United States senator, comptroller and attorney general, there was no sign of insurgency on the floor of the convention and the delegates vociferously endorsed the slate agreed upon by a conference of leaders of the party with the governor at the executive mansion in Albany more than a week ago.

The mention of Governor Smith's name was always a signal for noisy demonstrations throughout today's session, and the executive was alluded to repeatedly as "the next president of the United States." The receptive attitude of the governor with respect to the presidential nomination was doubly evident today.

"One nomination at a time," said he, in opening his speech of acceptance, after the convention had finished the business of nominating. After a lengthy discussion of state issues, he concluded his address in these words: "I will conduct the office of the governorship of this state so that no one in this convention will have to hang his head, and I will continue to attempt to vindicate the belief that you can take them from the sidewalks of New York to be a credit, not only to the state, but to the nation."

The other indication of his hope for political advancement was seen in his successful insistence that the part platform contains a plank declaring for American adherence to the world court.

A liberalization of the Volstead act was urged by the platform and hope was expressed that the electors of the state would vote "yes" on the referendum at the fall election to determine the will of the voters on a memorial to congress to amend the Volstead law by permitting each state to determine for itself what constitutes "intoxicating liquor".

OCT 11 SET FOR REPUBLICAN CAUCUSES AND PRIMARIES

HARTFORD, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Town caucuses and primaries for the nomination of republican candidates for representatives in the general assembly, justices of the peace and judges of probate in such districts as are composed of only one town, will be held throughout the state on Monday, October 11, it was decided, at a meetnig of the republican state central committee this afternoon at the Allyn house.

Hartford will probably have a primary in only one senatorial district, the first, where Alderman Hollis S. Candee and former Police Commissioner Edward N. Allen, are candidates for the nomination as state senator.

There was nearly the full membership present at the state central committee meeting today at which Chairman J. Henry Roraback presided. He pointed out that past experience had shown the advisability of not holding caucuses to nominate representatives until after the town elections had been held on the first Monday of October.

After considerable discussion of the limitations of the party rules which specify fifteen days notice of caucuses and primaries and the statutes which require that nominations be made three weeks before election, it was finally decided to hold the primaries on October 11, with town committees to select their own dates for the town conventions.

DETROIT G. O. P. DELEGATES SHUT OUT OF CONVENTION

Action Wrecked the Political Machine of Governor Groesbeck—With 403 Wayne County Supporters of Groesbeck Denied Admittance, 880 Delegates From Outside Cities and Towns Acclaimed Fred W. Green Nominee for Governor—300 Policemen Kept the Groesbeck Representatives From Even a Glimpse of the Convention.

DETROIT, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The political machine of Governor Alex J. Groesbeck was wrecked today while 300 policemen kept Groesbeck supporters from even a glimpse of the catastrophe.

It was a jubilant destruction of a machine that has been driven in triumph through Michigan republicanism for nearly six years. As uniformed officers refused admittance to 403 Wayne county supporters of the governor, 888 delegates from outside cities and towns loudly acclaimed Fred W. Green, nominee for governor, and nominated in its entirety a Green-packed slate of candidates for minor state offices.

For two years the Groesbeck machine has given signs of collapse, losing an essential part here and there, yet continuing to lead Michigan republicanism. The end was believed to have come two weeks ago when Mayor Fred W. Green of Ionia swamped Governor Groesbeck in a two-man race for the nomination for governor; but the machine showed signs of rejuvenation a week ago when it caused disruption of the Wayne county convention.

Wayne county (Detroit), which ordinarily has one-third of the voting strength in the state convention, had nothing to say today. The convention, faced with demands to seat both a Green and a Groesbeck delegation, turned thumbs down on both and proceeded to the transaction of its business without the assistance of Detroit republican representatives.

The convention's decision leaves both delegations was a victory for the Green cohorts who were without opposition among out-state delegates.

War clouds that were black Monday night and early today cleared completely at noon. Mayor John W. Smith, of Detroit, a leader in the Green army, announced Monday he would issue an order Monday or Tuesday compelling the seating of Groesbeck delegates. The Supreme court rules, the convention itself cannot unseat delegates entitled to their seats.

There was no delay although many had been expected. The Groesbeck delegation, denied admission even to the building, remained outside awaiting the decision of the credentials committee. The Green delegation, more favored, had balcony seats inside the hall.

TESTIMONY AT HEARING OF EVANGELIST M'PHERSON

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 28.—(AP)—H. C. Benedit, owner of the cottage at Carmel, California, where the state contends Aimee Semple McPherson evangelist, remained with Kenneth G. Ormiston, former Angelus Temple radio operator for ten days after she disappeared May 18 testified here today that the woman who occupied the house was very similar in appearance to Mrs. McPherson.

He refused, however, to attempt identification of the evangelist in court, declaring he couldn't be sure because of the goggles and large brimmed hat worn by the woman at Carmel.

The cottage owner declared that while painting flowers about the house, he saw a vividly green bathing suit hanging on the clothes line.

Mrs. McPherson was reported to have been wearing green bathing suit when she disappeared from the beach at Ocean park, May 18.

Benedict followed other witnesses who likewise failed to identify that evangelist as the woman companion of the man who gave his name as George McIntyre. William Mack, a laundryman, said he could not remember having seen any woman about the cottage when McIntyre lived there.

William H. McMichaels, a stone mason, said he had seen the woman five or six times, but could not identify her as Mrs. McPherson. The evangelist removed her hat in the court room, exposing her hair, but the witness said he could not say he had seen her before.

LYNN POLICEMEN ARE TO CARRY THERMOMETERS

LYNN, Mass., Sept. 28.—(AP)—To the revolver and night stick normally carried by the policemen of this city has been added a new weapon—a thermometer. An order issued today by Mayor Bauer gave the Lynn patrolman his extra piece of equipment.

Complaints from apartment house tenants that their landlords had neglected to furnish heat on chill September nights prompted the mayor's action. Under today's ruling, when the temperature falls below 50 degrees, it will be the duty of the patrolman to enter apartment houses on his beat and draw his trusty thermometer. If the mercury registers below 68 decrees, he will report the fact to city authorities and pressure will be brought to bear on the landlord.

KONDYLIS HAS RESIGNED AS PREMIER OF GREECE

ATHENS, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The resignation of General Kondylis, who assumed the premiership after driving out the Pangalos government is in the hands of President Kondouriotis but has not yet been accepted.

The premier placed his resignation at the disposal of the president one way out of the difficulty appeared through the refusal of the anti-Venizelist parties to take part in the parliamentary elections unless the government resigned.

This action was taken by Premier Kondylis after a six-hour meeting of the political leaders convened for the purpose of making arrangements for the elections and to compose fractional differences.

General Tanzemmes, commanding the Athens garrison, had previously informed the leaders of the Venizelist parties that the army would no longer interfere in the political situation but would abide by any decision reached at the meeting.

Some of the leaders favored proportional representation, while an equal number opposed it, so that the question of the electoral system was left for arbitrament by President Kondouriotis.

JUMP FROM WINDOW FATAL TO CLOAK MODEL

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Miss Dorothy Smith, a cloak model who had told police she jumped from the window of a four-story apartment, to escape from two men, who are charged with having lured her there, died late afternoon of a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Miss Smith's parents live in Holden Mass. She made her fatal leap early yesterday. As a result of the story she told police during periods of consciousness in City hospital two men describing themselves as brokers, were arrested on charges of attempted criminal assault. The two men were Francis Murphy, who lived in the apartment from which she leaped, and John J. Fitzpatrick of the Bronx.

As she leaped from the window the girl clasped a crucifix to her breast. She was 23 years old.

GENERAL INCREASE IN PRICE OF REFINED SUGAR

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP)—A general increase in the price of refined sugar to 6 cents a pound, the highest level of this year, took place throughout the country today as refiners pressed by a heavy retail demand scrambled for supplies in the raw sugar market. The advance, which amounts to nearly a cent above the low mark of the year, coincides with the peak of the cannin season.

Raw sugar also commanded the highest price of the year—4.65 cents a pound after the payment of duty—with 250,000 bags of the Cuban product sold in the New York market, as unusually heavy turnover.

DAMAGE BY RAINS IN SOUTHERN ARIZONA

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 28.—(AP)—Reports from scores of southern Arizona and northern New Mexico points today indicated that the damage wrought by heavy rains over the week was considerably greater than at first indicated.

Scores of bridges were swept away both from the south and rail and motor traffic still is paralyzed between Tucson and points to the southeast. Five southern Pacific trains carrying 600 passengers were detained in Tucson today, shortly after noon, eastbound trains were started out of Tucson, routed through Phoenix and over the Santa Fe lines to Elpaso.

Two more southern Pacific bridges collapsed today, one at Benson and the other at Fairbanks, Ariz. Train service on the southern Pacific of Mexico, between Nogales, Sonora and Guaymas, is at a standstill, following the destruction by torrential streams of three bridges. Branch lines also are suffering.

Concrete highway bridges paid their toll to the storm, several being washed away and others made unfit for use.

Governor George W. P. Hunt was among the hundreds of motorists who had to abandon their motor cars. He was forced to catch a ride into Florence.

SUPT. E. A. CASE URGES NEED OF LOCAL TRADE SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 28.—The 29th annual report of the school committee of the town of Windham, in which is incorporated the report of Superintendent of Schools Egbert A. Case, for the year ending Sept. 15 last urges the need of a trade school in the city, and the necessity of more school space. The committee does not look for the new school building on Windham street to be finished before January, nor so fast it can be used. The opinion of the committee is that the salary maximum for teachers here is too low. Since 1919, the increase in pupils in the schools of the town has been 661. The increase is equivalent to a classroom school of 40 pupils to a room. The number of pupils at Windham high school since 1910 has doubled. The total school expense for the last year was $173,696.93, leaving an unexpended balance of $1,393.

TRAIN DISCONTINUANCE PEEVES MANY COMMUTERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Sept. 28—The discontinuance of the early morning train from this city to Hartford has resulted in a howl of protest from local commuters who, since the recent changes in the time table became effective, have been forced to patronize the bus service of the New England Transportation company, a subsidiary of the New Haven road. The protest is to the claim that bus service is not as satisfactory as the service given by the steam trains and that the element of danger is greater in bus travel, while there is also a possibility that the busses will be late during the coming winter months. The attention of the railroad officials has been brought to the issue by representatives of the commuters but has as yet resulted in no favorable action. It was learned yesterday that a petition will be forwarded to the public utilities commission for a hearing on the matter. The request will be made that the hearing be held in this city so that all those interested may be heard. The permanent removal of the train which in the past left the local station at 7:07 o'clock, will mean that at least nine families will have to move from this city and locate in Hartford or some nearby town. The bus service was patronized for, the first time Monday, three busses being required to transport the passengers, most of them commuters who are employed in Hartford. Two of them were late in leaving the city and the other met with a slight accident that resulted in a tardy arrival in Hartford.

JERRY

World War Veteran dog owned by Carl Benjamin, Jewett City. Died Sept. 21, 1926, aged 15 years. Wounded in Meuse-Argonne drive.

JEWETT CITY OWNER MOURNS FOR JERRY, WORLD WAR VETERAN DOG

Jerry the Belgian Shepherd dog, owned by Carl Benjamin of Jewett City is dead. This dog's history is probably not equaled by any other in this country. Jerry, as the boys "over there" named him, was wounded by American shell-fire during the Meuse-Argonne drive, and left by the Germans on the field in a dying condition. He was found by Sergt. Michael Bevaney and Carl Benjamin, who carried him back in a blanket They tended him carefully for several days, and he finally recovered. He went away, probably to find his master, and strange to say, Mr. Benjamin again found him wounded and cared for him until he recovered. The intelligent animal never left his new master again, showing the most faithful devotion to him. Mr. Benjamin says he would have slept with his head in the mud many a night, if Jerry's body had not been his pillow. He became a great pal of the boys in the 473rd Motor Supply Co., during the Meuse-Argonne drive, where they worked as Fifth Corps Supply train, carrying supplies and ammunition to the boys in the front lines. Jerry was always ready to go with them. With his bright eyes and keen nose, he would warn the boys of gas attacks and other dangers, and he soon became very popular with the officers of the train. After the armistice was signed a blanket was made for him with all the insignias of the different corps in which the 473rd Co worked, also wound stripes, service stripes, corporal stripes, discharge stripes and buttons cut from German uniforms. Jerry seemed to be very proud to wear this blanket. His master was allowed to bring him back to America with him, and he has been a loved member of the family ever since. He was particularly devoted to the baby daughter of his master. He was fifteen years old, and despite the careful attention given him, he died of the infirmities of old age on Tuesday, Sept 21. On the inside of one leg was a tattoed number, done by the Germans Mr Benjamin is proprietor of the Exide station on No. Main St. Norwich.

Effective October 1, 1926

The changes in Toll and Long Distance telephone service announced a few weeks ago will take effect at 12:01 A. M. on Friday, October 1.

As previously stated, these changes include:—

Readjustments in Rates

Reductions, gradually increasing to substantial amounts, on calls to points 150 miles or more distant.

An increase of five cents in some of the basic Station-to-Station rates for distances below 110 miles, including the adoption of a minimum rate of 10 cents for Station-to-Station calls between exchanges more than six miles apart.

Collect Charges on Station-to-Station Calls

The privilege of reversing charges, heretofore confined to Person-to-Person calls, on practically all Station-to-Station calls where the rate is 25 cents or more.

Longer Reduced-Rate Period

Reduced-rate hours for Station-to-Station calls will begin at 7 P. M. instead of at 8:30 P. M. as formerly. Between 7 and 8:30 P. M. the discount will be approximately 25 percent of the Day Station-to-Station rates. From 8:30 P. M. to 4:30 A. M. the discount will be about 50 percent of the Day Station-to-Station rates. These discounts will apply where the Day Station-to-Station rate is 40 cents or more, with a minimum reduced rate of 35 cents. Because of the unsatisfactory service conditions which it brought about, the existing Midnight discount will be discontinued.

Our Exchange Managers are now in possession of the revised rate schedules and will gladly answer any inquires as to rates to specific places and will furnish any further information that may be desired regarding the proposed changes in toll practices.

ADMINISTRATION'S FINANCIAL POLICY

From the annual report of the internal revenue department there is to be gained much food for thought, for it proves the contentions of the administration leaders when shaping the financial policies.

When the claim was made that there should be a cutting in the surtaxes there was a great howl of opposition from the democrats, because they pointed out that persons of wealth should be made to pay and that it would be unjust to the little fellows if the big taxpayers who could afford to pay were to be favored. Secretary Mellon contended that because of the high surtaxes much wealth was put into tax exempt securities and the way to call it out and get it into tax producing channels was to lower the taxes. He failed to get as much of a reduction as he sought, but there was a cut and that served to demonstrate the correctness of his reasoning. With the additional cut, it is now possible to show by the international revenue report that there was an increase of nearly $253,000,000 in federal taxes for the year ending with June over the previous fiscal year, which is further justification for the endeavors which the administration has been making.

But the tactics of certain democrats now are not so different than they were when they opposed the reduction of the surtaxes. The aim was to puncture the administration's policies by opposing the tax cuts, and now the same thing is being undertaken in a different way by demanding tax reduction against the orderly method which has been supported by the administration. It was the game of politics which was being played in the first place and it is the same game which is being resorted to now.

The idea of cutting taxes and expending the debt over a long term of years may sound good to certain ears, even as did the plea not to cut the surtaxes, but it strikes at a sound and sensible plan and is disposed to gamble with the future.

The administration's policy has been on a strong foundation from the first, although all provisions were not sanctioned, and it is for the best interests of the country that it be adhered to rather strictly from now on. It has stood the test and it has gotten the results desired. Why try to undermine it?

BASEBALL WINNERS

Once again the championships in the big leagues have been decided, and in baseball as well as in other sports it seems to be a year for new champions. In both leagues the teams are bunched and after an interesting fight St. Louis of the National league and New York of the American get the pennants.

This means a greater distinction to St. Louis than it does to New York for not since the second league was started have the Cardinals secured the coveted honor. St. Louis can thus be pardoned for its elaborate demonstration. With the New York Americans the championship is not such a novelty but even that aggregation did not lead its league last year.

Interest now centers in the determination of the world's championship, the first game of the series being scheduled for Saturday, but because of the distance between cities the possibilities of a prolonged series seems good this year, but knowing the uncertainties of baseball there's no telling what will happen. The desire will be for a hotly contested series regardless of the time it takes to reach a decision. One sided contests fail to stir the interest.

Having headed its league for the first time in so many years the Cardinals will be on their toes to obtain the additional honor, but it will be a contest in which they are not hardened as much as the New York players, many of whom have been in one or more world's series.

But the desire must be that the series should be won on its merits, the team which can prove it is the better getting the distinction and the substantial remuneration that goes with it. Whichever is the winner it is certain that the contests will be followed play by play with keen interest by large numbers in every city in the country and that there will be no lacking for attendance on the respective ball fields. Baseball continues its hold upon the people and the world's series never fails of a big gallery.

NORTHERN MYSTERY REVEALED

There have been many strange stories brought out of the far north by the returning explorers, but none is any more unusual or unexpected than that which throws decidedly different light upon the death of Ross G. Marvin of Cornell university who went into the Arctic region 17 years ago and never returned, but who was reported to have been drowned.

Marvin was with the Peary expedition and turned back with two Eskimos when the admiral headed for the pole, and according to the story which is now brought back from the north by George P. Putnam one of those Eskimo companions has confessed that he shot and killed Marvin when the latter went mad and threatened to abandon one of the Eskimos without food, clothing or shelter in that desolate region. The crises came when one of the Eskimo, who had stopped to untangle some traces, followed the tracks of the other Eskimo instead of those of Marvin both of whom had had gone ahead and then separated.

The claim of the Eskimo who admits the shooting is that it was a case of self defense, that Marvin had never acted in such a strange and threatening manner and it alarmed him. After the deed was committed the story of the drowning was concocted and it has never been questioned although it was considered strange that Marvin should have met such a fate.

But now that the claim is made that he suddenly went crazy it is quite as hard to reconcile as the story of the drowning, for his was not a temperament that would tend that way and he has shown no such disposition against any of the Eskimo, but on the other hand had made close friends with them.

And yet there is no reason why the Eskimo, Kudlooktoo, should shoulder any such charge if it is not true. Apparently his secret has been making him uncomfortable, even though it happened so long ago that it might have been forgotten by many but until a more convincing solution is offered it must be accepted as the revelation of another mystery of the far north.

FOR PROBATE JUDGE

The renomination of Judge Nelson J. Ayling for the probate judgeship by the republicans was a foregone conclusion. His long and faithful service in that office has not only demonstrated his fitness for the office but it has been of great benefit to the many who have been obliged to do business in that court.

Holding the judgeship for a score of years, object as it is to political contests, indicates in a conclusive manner how thoroughly convinced the people of the Norwich probate district are that he is not only a capable judge but the right man for the place. This is true regardless of the partisanship of the voters and supports the attitude taken in many probate districts of keping in office those judges who have been tried and found eminently qualified regardless of what their politics may be. It is an office of too great responsibilities to have it made the football of politics. Advantage lies in retaining the official who is in close touch with the duties and who has given close attention and careful consideration to them.

That the republicans should renominate him was as certain as that night would follow the day. It has been the practice in recent democratic probate conventions to endorse the nomination of Judge Ayling. Such is equivalent to an election but no more than is deserved by the excellence of the nominee's record. It would not only be in keeping with precedent for such action to be taken at this time but it would be a commendable step thoroughly justified by the high degree of service that Judge Ayling has rendered and which he can be depended upon to continue.

CONNECTICUT FOREST TREES

There are those who have a thorough knowledge of the trees in this state but there are many who have not and may never know much about them. It is an instructive pocket manual on Forest Trees of Connecticut which is being distributed by the Conecticut state park and forest commission through the generosity of Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree association, of Washington who has presented it to the schools of Connecticut.

In this new edition 29 common trees are described with fruit, leaves and twigs pictured and should be of great assistance in getting the school children acquainted with and appreciative of those living things which shade, protect us and furnish us many things for our material benefit as well as enjoyment.

In these days when so much attention is being directed to the need of forestry work, reforestation, state forests and town forests it is highly desirable that there should be a better knowledge of what trees are to be found in our state, their characteristics and their uses. It is desirable from the standpoint of utility but also in connection with the extension of our forests and the planting of trees which are best fitted for soil and locality.

In endeavoring to create interest in our forests it is proper that it should be stimulated through not only a knowledge of such needs but through acquaintanceship with the various kinds of trees in the home state, and in that direction an excellent groundwork is being done in making the provision which Mr. Pack has for the school children of Connecticut. He deserves a rousing vote of thanks, and the manual should be extensively used.

GENTLE DEALING

Mrs. Hazlitt paused as she was leaving the guildroom, and she smiled at the group of women busy with their needles. There was a glint of mischief in her eyes.

"Ladies," she said, "deal with me as you can. I'm sorry to have to leave early, but I promised to meet Mr. Hazlitt at the Princess Royal for dinner. Good-by."

The president of the guild gave the secretary a playful tap on the shoulder with her thimble. "You wouldn't talk about an absent member, would you?" she inquired laughingly.

"Indeed I wouldn't," answered the secretary rather more seriously. "I think it was horrid of Nell Hazlitt to say what she did. Any one would think that we were an organization of gossipers."

"Well, I'll say this for her," remarked the little woman who does the cutting for the guild, "if there's any talking going on Mrs. Hazlitt does her share. I've heard her say some very cutting things. If our tongues were as sharp as hers is sometimes, we would need that warning she gave us."

"Oh, Nell didn't mean anything disagreeable by her remark. That's just her way, you know. She likes to appear witty, and say what she thinks is keen and clever." The handsome blond who was speaking stopped to thread her needle. "She'll get a lot of harmless amusement out of that little thrust she gave us. She'll chuckle and tell her husband at dinner tonight, and he'll think she's as bright as a dollar. I know her little ways."

"I couldn't help being amused," said the woman at the sewing machine, "at the pains she took to inform us that she was dining at the Princess Royal. Well, I suppose if I were going to one of the most expensive places in town, I should want you all to know it."

You can't really blame Nell Hazlitt for enjoying her present prosperity rather ostentatiously," put in the treasurer of the guild. "It isn't so very long ago since she had hard work paying her dues. I suppose I shouldn't mention it, but the truth is the first year I was treasurer she paid me the $5, a dollar at a time. It was really pathetic. You see when she insisted upon marrying a poor clerk her father wouldn't do anything for her. Now that Ed Hazlitt has made so much in real estate, they say that Mr. Brown has quite forgiven him for stealing his daughter, and is even trying to get him to put some money into his business. They do say that the Brown company has taken some big losses."

"She certainly never looked poor," observed a severely dressed woman as she pulled out basting threads violently. "I never could afford to wear the clothes she always has, since I knew her."

"Oh, well," laughed a young member of the guild, "things aren't always what they seem. While Nell's frocks always looked rich and stylish they weren't either new or expensive, because she told me herself that most of them were made out of the voluminous old costumes that had been her mother's. I wonder how she could bear to cut them up into the skimpy dresses in vogue lately. But some people have so little reverence or sentiment for old treasures."

"She had on a handsome costume today that was never concocted out of old material," the most fashionable member declared. "That embroidered georgette in her ensemble coat came straight from Paris. I know, for Mme. Cecile showed me some exactly like it—quite too dear for me, but I suppose Mrs. Hazlitt can afford it since her husband made money in doubtful real-estate deals."

"Even if she can afford it, I don't think it good taste to wear such elegant apparel to our guild. Sewing for charity in Paris raiment seems inconsistent with her ideals of service," sighed the most earnest member.

"But we must remember," the president looked very dignified, "that Mrs. Hazlitt was on her way to dine at the Princess Royal. She perhaps was overdressed for this afternoon, but she naturally wished to look well this evening. I do think she cares a good deal about her clothes, but I wouldn't like to say that she gives undue attention to her appearance, because we don't believe in discussing absent members, do we? Now ladies, I think we have done good work today, and it's quite time to adjourn."—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Alvan T. Fuller, who, it has just been disclosed, has accepted no numeration for his ten years of public service, is now completing his first term as governor of Massachusetts and is slated for renomination. As governor, as well as in his previous offices as lieutenant governor and as a representative in congress, he has cashed none of his salary checks, with the result that the amounts, aggregating about $15,000, have been turned back into the public treasury. Gov. Fuller is a man of independent wealth, gained through the growth of the automobile industry, and by the multiplication of sales in New England. Being one of the first New Englanders to enter the field of selling such machines to a well-to-do public, he was able to lay the foundations of a fortune that has mounted rapidly within a few years.

YOUR HEALTH

MIDDLE LIFE—A PERIOD OF DANGER

By W. L. Estes, M. D., Bethlehem, Pa.
Member Gergas Memorial Institute

It is true that the average length of human life has increased nearly 15 years in the last 20, but this increase has been obtained by the preventive measures applied to the early years and the saving of life from five to 40.

The death rate after 45 years of life in the United States has increased and is steadily mounting. The average death rate of all ages in the United States in 1923 was 90 per 100,000. The death rate above 45 was 156 per 100,000.

An analysis of the causes of death shows that the largest number of deaths after 45 are due to heart and blood vessel diseases; kidney disease and cancer. But the arresting fact is that more than half the deaths in this middle life period are preventable and should not occur until many years later.

This sacrifice of life and energy at its most productive period is not only a sociologic factor of tremendous import; it is an economic loss of incalculable value to the nation, because we are thus losing men and women at the period of their lives when, by training and experience, they are prepared to do most for the country.

It is unnecessary; sheer waste of life and efficiency.

What may be done to prevent the unnecessary deaths from the heart and blood vessel diseases?

These diseases begin insidiously and usually very gradually. They are the product of various infections (from decayed roots of teeth; sinus inflammations, chronic tonsilitis, etc.) and by too much or ill prepared food and malassimilation.

The average man or woman eats too much and lives on badly prepared and unbalanced diet. Usually a regime, if adopted, is the result of lay judgment and advice frequently obtained from a neighbor or some striking article. The way to prevent the adoption of an injurious system of living is to secure the advice of a competent physician after a thorough physical examination has been made.

Human beings vary in their reactions. Their functions change from time to time. Hence the rule should be a yearly health audit and the determination to follow out the instructions received.

What has been said regarding the heart and blood vessel disease applies equally well to kidney diseases. They begin just as insidiously and frequently do terrific damage before discovery.

The death rate of cancer in the United States is on the increase. It is agreed that continued irritation, unsanitary habits and bad hygiene, especially in persons who have a history of cancer in the family, cause the disease to develop in human beings.

In its early stages, cancer is generally curable. All persistent sores, unnatural discharges and growths, lumps or tumors are danger indications and demand immediate skilled examination and advice.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D.

Mastering a Subject

It is an education to take up some subject and master it, examining all the books about it and weighing all the varying and conflicting opinions. You never realize the depth of human knowledge and the difficulty of judging what the truth is, until you have found out from your own experience the infinite labor of mastering one subject.

From catalogues and bibliographies you may make a list of the best works on the subject that you are investigating and you must then quarry from these books what is of use to you and arrange it in a logical and orderly way.

Stories That Recall Others

His Idea

A certain family was taking care of a canary bird for one of its neighbors. The young son of the family noticed that the bird was losing one of its tail feathers. He called and said, "Oh, daddy! Cheepy is losing a feather out of his tail."

His father replied, "that is just a shingle off his roof."

Immediately the little fellow looked back at the bird and retorted, "Well, I'll say it is off his back porch."

Bobby Knew

Little Bobbie's mother took him to Sunday school every Sunday. She also taught a Sunday school class and during this time Bobbie was left in the junior department. On this particular Sunday his mother had several occasions to pass through the junior department and on each occasion she noticed that one or more of the little boys would be crying, but Bobbie was always sitting up in his little red chair like a little man.

On arriving home Bobbie's mother said, "Dear I was surely proud of you today, you didn't cry at all and so many of the little children were crying."

She noticed that Bobbie hung his head then she asked, "Why were they crying?"

"'Cause I'se pinchin' them?" truthfully answered little Bobbie.

Little Talks on Thrift

AT END OF VACATION

We have reached another Labor day, which to millions means the end of the vacation period and the return to regular vocations.

While these vacations have proved enjoyable and helpful, the majority of persons will welcome again the return of work. For in the final analysis one of the greatest sources of human happiness is work. And this is a truth that could be more widely learned to advantage.

Too many follow the rule that the more work they can avoid the greater will be their happiness.

There is no true happiness in an idle life. Waste of time is a form of thriftlessness that is as destructive of rightful pleasure as waste of money or waste of health.

Work alone brings happiness, because work is creative and upbuilding and because all rightful impulses of the human race have found their fulfillment only in work.

This does not mean that there is no correct place in life for vacations or that diversion is not in accordance with good thrift.

You cannot transform a man into a machine and get human results. But, within the average routine of life, work brings the most satisfying happiness—work that is right, upbuilding and helpful.

Do not cherish an ambition for idleness. Wasting time never, under any circumstances, can bring lasting joy.

At the end of this vacation period it is well to remember that happiness through work is one of the fundamentals that can be continually counted on. It is a splendid type of true, constructive thrift.—American Society for Thrift.

IN DAY'S NEWS

STRANGE WAYS OF ADVERTISING

"Announcement by the British Post office that firms may buy advertising space on dies used for postal stamp cancellations calls attention to some unusual phases of European advertising and selling methods," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Proprietors of the great Parisian department stores bemoan the lack of advertising media, such as our great daily papers. It is not possible for them, as it is for our merchants, to 'cover' their city by using space in two, three or four daily papers; therefore they resort to whatever substitutes are available. They use theater tickets, menu cars in cafes, and engage men to distrubute leaflets among the patrons of the sidewalk cafes.

"To display their high grade gowns, furs, jewelry, cloaks and other merchandise they have show cases in their theater lobbies and in hotel lobbies. Their own windows are largely lost to them because they place their tables on the sidewalks outside the stores. One thinks he is coming upon some market when he sees crowds of women gathered about stands; and then the visitor realizes it is 'dry-goods' that is being sold and goes closer to see one of the unusual sights of Paris, thousands of women fingering over the bargain stickings, waists, ribbons, and other articles of the sidewalk tables.

"Inside the huge Paris department stores the goods must tell their own stories; therefore they are spread out in profusion, and confusion, on tables. Only the most valuable articles, such as jewels, are in the show cases.

"Incidentally a visit to one of these stores is a Paris experience that even the male visitor should not miss. There are five department stores that are reputed to do a larger gross business than the busiest American store—a business amounting to more than the equivalent of a hundred million dollars a year for each of them.

"And some of them do it in spite of sales methods that seem circuitous to the American. One makes a purchase from a sales clerk, and the sales clerk conducts the buyer to the accountant of her department. There seems to be no central cashier desk. This accountant makes out the bill of sale and the price and next, still with the customer in tow, the sales clerk proceeds to the cashier for her department. Then, and not until then, does she accept the customer's money. She presents that to the cashier with the the sales bill, obtains the change, and gives it to her customer. She may have been away from her counter or table five or ten minutes.

"One of the newest of these huge Paris emporiums has only galleries instead of upper floors, and resembles, in architecture, a large, stageless, opera house. Stairways are affixed in what seems to be airy fashion outside the galleries, and they spiral around the tiers of balconies. Elevators also are suspended outside the edges of the galleries, and since the curved sides of these tiny elevators, facing the great court of the store, are made entirely of glass, one has a curious sensation of being carried aloft on a platform from which he may tumble at any moment into a vast pit of merchandise below.

"Electric signs, both in London and Paris, are not so elaborate as those in America, but the lettering is much larger, as it is on the unlighted sign boards. A department store in Paris announces its name in letters that cover the greater part of one side of an eight-story building. Fronts of London buildings are occupied by signs or only a few words which spread over the entire wall space. Nor are they less spectacular than American signs in their locations. A series of signs flashes nightly from the famous Eiffel Tower.

"London uses the outside of its street cars and busses for signs as well as the inside. The government also sells advertising space in stations. There is much less excuse for unsightly outdoor advertising in London than in Paris because in London Newspaper advertising is developed along the lines employed in the United States, and newspapers with enormous circulations reach every strata of society.

"Newspapers in London do not employ newsboys who cry their wares; instead the newsboys and newsstands are provided with bulletins which announce the leading 'stories' in huge black type. Even 'sandwich men,' who do not themselves sell papers, are employed to stroll the busy streets with announcements of the features in latest editions.

"One surprising continental advertising medium is the 'sleeper' ticket. When one obtains a reservation he receives what looks like a half a tabloid newspaper. Only the left hand column constitutes the ticket proper. The remaining nine-tenths of the 'broadside,' save for brief bilingual official notices, consists of announcements of the comforts of hotels from Paris to Constantinople. Even the bills on the continental dining cars have their liquer advertisements tucked away at the bottom.

"In Italy the first class compartments have various advertisements affixed behind glass on the walls, somewhat after the manner of our street car advertising cards. The feminine passenger who wishes to apply powder to a dainty nose before the mirror of a first class compartment in Italy must dodge the ever-present liqueur advertisements. They are not pasted on the surface but are built in, so to speak, behind the glass."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Raiding the Countryside Resented

Mr. Editor: Farmers are very much concerned about automobile owners that come out to the country to gather anything from fruit to ferns and feel that their privilege is above reproach from the farmers of Montville.

All trespassing in the future is going to be dealt with according to the law which gives no one permission to pick or gather anything without the lessee or land owner's permission or town clerk's permit.

The country is beautiful and for all to enjoy, but not for destroyers who leave some road sides only after they have left ugly looking stubbs on bushes once beautiful.

MUSEUM GETS COAT MADE BY PRESIDENT JACKSON

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 28—(AP)—One of the few products of the shears and needle ever actually made by a president of the United States is now a possession of the Tennessee state museum.

It is a handsome, well-preserved coat of the finest broadcloth, made by President Andrew Jackson, for Circuit Judge W. W. Pepper of Tennessee, 70 years ago.

Jackson was a tailor. Pepper was a blacksmith. While governor of Tennessee, Jackson was presented with a handsome set of shovel and tongs, made by Judge Pepper, who left the bench and spent a day at the forge fashioning the gift.

Jackson was not to be outdone. He left the governor's chair temporarily, selected the finest piece of goods to be had and tailored Judge Pepper a coat without a flaw.

A greater number of new cases of communicable diseases were reported in the state during the week which ended Monday than in the previous week, according to the morbidity report issued by the state department of health.

SHARP WEATHER CHANGE STARTS UP AUTUMN BUYING

On chilly days like these, the coat plays an extra important part in a woman's wardrobe.

A handsome example of the season's coats was shown yesterday, a novelty weave in orange and black small plaid, with gray mixture. It had a comfy looking collar of black fox, narrow belt of fancy leather, and was fur-lined.

Dolmans, straight coats and tunics, a variety of models are offered, aimed to suit all tastes and all wearing demands.

There is a good call for two-piece dresses, either in Jersey or silk. Skirts continue short and sleeves invariably are long.

Slip-over one-piece dresses get the necessary yet scant fulness by means of inverted plaits at each side. In other designs, the circular flare across the front gives an added touch of style.

Slip-on and surplice blouses are liked for certain occasions. In a number of the blouse models the straight skirt comes attached to a camisole under-body.

Much is made of the bolero and bloused effects in many of the latest examples of what is strong this season. These work out strikingly in the handsome new fall silks, new crepes, crepe satins, rich brocardes, et al. The favored shades are soft greens, tints of wine, red and of course black.

Look for these and other fascinating modes in those stores which enumerate their stocks in The Bulletin today.

WILL GIVE ADDRESS ON "THE ENGLISH BIBLE"

At the Central Baptist church next Sunday evening, William Webster Ellsworth, formerly president of the Century company, and the author of "A Golden Age of Authors" will deliver an address on "The English Bible," which was heard last season in many colleges and schools and in several churches, and is engaged in many for the coming season. Phillips academy, Andover, is one of the schools which will have it soon in the Sunday morning service. It's first delivery was at Hotchkiss school in October of last year, where it excited great interest among masters and boys, bringing Mr. Ellsworth many similar engagements.

The chairman of the lecture committee of the University of Delaware wrote to Mr. Ellsworth after the delivery of this address before the faculty and students, "It was one of the best presentations of the subject either spoken or written, that I know anything of. You caused the grand old text to live for us all." At Smith college it drew a crowded audience, and the head of the English department said of it and of Mr. Ellsworth's lecture "Shakespeare and Old London," given on the same visit, "Mr. Ellsworth's interest, and enthusiasm are what our students need to quicken their minds by his fresh angles of vision."

Mr. Ellsworth, treats the subject from a literary point of view, showing how the English Bible was built up through the centuries by its translators, Wycliffe, Tyndale, Coverdale, the king James revisers, making it into a well-rounded book rhythmical, musical, exquisite in its use of the 6,000 words which answer for its vocabulary. Mr. Ellsworth calls attention to the dearth of rhythm and and of beauty in the most recent translations.

Mr. Ellsworth is a cousin of Miss Louise Fuller, organist at the Central church.

DECLARES EUROPE IN A FRENZY OF NATIONALISM

HARTFORD, Sept. 28—(AP)—Europe at present is in a frenzy of nationalism and of all the nations on that continent, France is in many ways the most backward, in the opinion of Professor Edward F. Humphrey, head of the department of historya nd political science at Trinity college. He expressed this opinion tonight in the course of a radio dialogue over WTIC, with Professor Louis H. Naylor, assistant professor of French at Trinity.

Professor Humphrey has just returned from a year of study in Europe and Professor Naylor has been there during the summer.

PRACTICALLY EVERY HOUSE IN HIALEAH WRECKED

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Frohmander of Hialeah, Fla., formerly of Norwich, are among those who escaped injury during the hurricane that wrecked practically every house in Hialeah. Writing to her sister, Mrs. Ray D. Gilmore of No. 4 Phillips avenue, this city, Mrs. Frohmander, says: "After you have been through fifteen or more hours thinking that every gust of wind will blow the house down on your head, you hope and pray you'll never have to witness another storm. In part Mrs. Frohmander's letter follows:—

Dear Sister:—

I suppose you have been worried about us since the hurricane. We sent home a telegram that we were all well and didn't even get scratched or get a cold through the terrible experience. Of course there is still danger of an epidemic, but we are quite in the country. There aren't many houses right around us and Mr. Weeks has all modern conveniences and they have five good sized rooms and a large screened in porch and bath room, also a back entry. At present there are ten in our family.

There is so much to do, distributing food, water and supplies to the hospitals and temporary hospitals, putting roofs on and rebuilding houses. It is surprising the way the people are rebuilding. I should think the property owners would be discouraged, but they don't seem to be. Some are leaving the state but not many as you would think would go.

At present there is so much work for the men folks to do that it looks rather cowardly for them to be leaving. I suppose all of these experiences are placed in our lives for some purpose and probably will strengthen our characters in the coming years I sure am proud of my hubby for the way he has worked and the courage he had through all the storm. Half of our roof was blown off and as soon as the storm let up the men were on the roof putting on a temporary one and all day Sunday they worked putting on a new one. Sunday night we had a whole roof over our heads again and could breathe a little easier.

Ruth was supposed to start school Monday but the hurricane wrecked the school. I think the whole trouble is that they put up their houses too carelessly. It is usually so warm and pleasant down here you don't need much of a house to keep comfortable in. Today the milkman gave us three quarts which seems to be what they allow for a family of ten including two children. We have a good supply of food in. Every family is allowed so much food per member.

It is wonderful here when it is good weather but I don't want to face another hurricane. After you have been through fifteen or more hours thinking that every gust of wind would blow the house down on your head and seeing those horrible sights you hope and pray you'll never have to witness another storm. I guess this has been the worst one in the history of Miami.

I saw Mr. Baker's house yesterday. It is turned around facing the opposite direction. It doesn't seem to be damaged much otherwise. I don't believe that one house in Hialeah escaped damage, by water at least. Where it didn't blow the roof off it blew the windows in so rain got in one way or another.

SET FIRE IN ROOM IN STONINGTON POOR HOUSE

Charged with arson in connection with a fire that was discovered at the Stonington Home for the Poor Monday afternoon, Ernest Leroy Sebastian, 18, Negro, inmate of the home, was presented before Judge William A. Wilcox in the Stonington town court Tuesday. Robert L. Burtch was appointed guardian ad litem for the youth, who pleaded guilty to the charge and was bound over for trial in the superior court under bonds of $1,000. In default of the bonds, he was taken to the county jail.

According to the Stonington authorities Sebastian, who has been an inmate of the home for some time, had trouble with one of the attendants Monday afternoon and was locked into one of the rooms. Evidently, in the hope of burning his way out, he started a fire near the door leading to the corridor. The fire was extinguished before it could do any great damage and Sebastian was held at the home until Patrolman Burrows, who was summoned, arrived.

FORESTRY FIELD MEETING AT MESHOMASIC FOREST

The fall field meeting of the Connecticut Forestry association will be held on Saturday, Oct. 2, in Portland, at the Meshomasic State Forest. The meeting will start at 11 a. m., the meeting-place being the log cabin near the Portland Water Co. reservoir, which serves as forest headquarters. A walking trip will be made to a thinning in a hardwood stand. Enough material was taken out in this thinning to more than pay the costs of the operation. After a basket lunch at which hot coffee and cider will be served, visits will be made to forest plantations of various kinds and ages. The final trip will be by auto to Great Hill pond, where the state has recently acquired a ravine containing the remains of an old cobalt mine, which was a prosperous enterprise in colonial days. Today the site is covered by large hemlock trees and is one of the best and most beautiful bodies of timber on any of the state forests. A. F. Hawes, state forester, will conduct the excursions.

The Meshomasic Forest, established in 1903 by vote of the legislature, is the oldest state forest in New England. It now contains over 3,000 acres and there is estimated to be 7,000 more in the region which should be added to the forest. It is good game country and is open to hunting and fishing.

RAIN CAUSED LET UP IN TRAINING SCHEDULE OF LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

NEW YORK, Sept 28—(AP)—Rain and cold weather kept the world's baseball championship contenders, the Yankees and Cardinals, idle today, but the rival field marshals, Miller Huggins and Rogers Hornsby, improved the interval by an intensive study of tactics and strategy.

The chief result of this "mastermind" is the prospect that the opening game of the world's series on Saturday will develop a battle of left-handers, probably between Herb Pennock, the willowy port-sider of the Yankees, and "Wee Willie" Sherdel, of the St. Louis clan.

Pennock has been the most consistent of the Yankee slinging staff this season. Close observers favor his selection not only because of his ability as a "money pitcher," but also because he requires at least three day's rest between games. By twirling the opener, he would be ready to come back quicker than if held for a latter assignment.

Huggins indicated today he was virtually certain to pick a left-hander, which would confine his choice to Pennock or Dutch Ruether, among the regulars. The "Midget Manager," however, also is grooming Urban Shocker, spit-ball ace and a right hander, for early service. It is possible that Huggins may switch to Shocker as the opening hurling gun and Urban is more likely to start the second game.

Grover Cleveland Alexander, the veteran who helped the Cardinals in their winning drive after being "sold down the river" by the Chicago Cubs, will get the first game assignment, Hornsby indicated if Sherdel is not selected. Alex is in the same position as Shocker; he is virtually certain to pitch on Sunday if he doesn't start Saturday.

The loss of Benny Bengough, star Yankee catcher, who fractured a bone in his right forearm when hit by a pitched ball on the last western trip, is a heavy blow to Huggins. Bengough is out of the series altogether, thus putting the catching burden upon Pat Collins and Hank Severeid, whose luck in being shifted has carried him into two straight championship contests. Last season Severeid went from St. Louis to Washington in time to share the series catching work for the Senators with Muddy Ruel. He was obtained from Washington this season by the Yankees.

Huggins has decided to start Earl Combs, the fleet Kentuckian, at his regular post in center field, instead of Paschal, who alternated with Combs during a good share of the season.

Players of both teams expect to put in snappy drills tomorrow morning. The Cardinals, according to Hornsby, will practice at the Yankee Stadium at 9:30, while the American leaguers are scheduled for a workout at 11 o'clock. The use of the stadium, either before or after the Yankees morning workout has been extended to the national league champions.

COLGATE FOOTBALL TEAM OUT FOR SEASON OF WINS

HAMILTON, N. Y., Sept. 28.—(AP)—Memories of Eddie Tryon, fleet ace of the Colgate backfield last season and phenomenal point scorer, are aiding a powerful maroon eleven along a path that may lead to another undefeated season.

Captain Nick Mehler, whose defensive ability gave him a rating second only to that of the famous Eddie in the Colgate success last year, along with "Duke" Shaughnessy, Tryon's backfield companion, and George Brewer, the best punter the maroon has had in several seasons, are ripping holes in the best tryon manner. Hamilton, in the first game last Saturday, met decisive defeat, 19 to 0.

Coach George Hauser, former Minnesota gridiron hero, who succeeded Jack Harlow at the Colgate Helm this year, has had almost a first string backfield over line to aid him while he installs his new system and meets for the first time the strategy of eastern coaches.

CROQUET CALLED THE GAME FOR REAL "HE-MEN"

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The leisurely game of croquet is enjoying a revival in the hectic metropolis, shut off from the roar of traffic in parks hemmed in by skyscrapers.

Its enthusiastic devotees, especially the elderly men who haunt the courts on the velvety lawns of Central park in Manhattan and Prospect park in Brooklyn, indignantly deny that it is a "ladies' game." It's a game for he-men, they say.

Dr. George Wardenburg of Brooklyn for instance has been knocking the croquet balls through the wickets for forty-odd years and he likes to play golf, too. "But give me croquet any day," he says. "Golf calls for skill, strategy, and a constant battle of wits."

"I spend two or three hours a day on it here, from the time it gets warm enough in the spring until snow falls," he said. "Then I go down south and play."

Two retired Brooklyn business men, 86 and 87 summers, respectively, assert that if they hadn't played croquet they would have been in their graves years ago.

On some days as many as 25 courts are in use in Prospect park and the air resounds with the click of mallets and balls. Matches between experts, men and women, draw a good-sized gallery and there is dignified cheering and handclapping at a particularly difficult shot.

The rivalry is strong, too, and the game exultation in victory and depression in defeat is as evident as in any other sporting contest.

"These fellows are surely keen on the game," says Tommy Donovan, keeper of the mallets in Prospect park. "I have seen them out there on days when they carried an umbrella in one hand and a mallet in the other."

The relative value of the modern rubber cored balls keep their private mallets in a special equipment house in the park are Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen never took a more jealous care of a favorite mashie than these players do of their equipment.

One prominent physician recommends croquet as an ideal game for a fat man. Golf and tennis are too strenuous, he says, but stooping over a mallet has the same effect as a massage and it doesn't cost as much.

The real dyed-in-the-wool Brooklyn The players are divided as to the balls and the wooden balls. Some of the old timers favor the old kind, saying it gives best to their play to hear the resounding whacks.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Babe Ruth's huge bulk tips the scales in favor of the New York Yankees as the strength of the outfields to play in the world series is weighed. St. Louis has no Ruth. The Yankee slugger with 47 home runs and a batting average of .368 has distanced the best effort of any Cardinal outfielder.

If Blades can join in the Cardinal outer defense, Manager Hornsby will offer three .300 hitters with Southworth and Douthit completing the trio. With the injured Blades probably not in the lineup Hafey is expected to get the call with Holm next in line. The five St. Louis outfielders with Blades included, although a doubtful starter, have an average of .299.

Ruth, Combs, and Meusel, the regular Yankee outfield, with Paschal and Carlyle in reserve, boast an average of .312.

Ruth dominates the outfield talent involved in the series. His batting average of .368 includes 47 home runs and he has scored 139 runs and stolen 12 bases. Ruth will also enter his seventh world series. Southworth, who will patrol right field for the Cardinals, has had more limited world series experience but has fought through many "run of the mine" games. His batting average of .319 enabled him in part to score 97 runs and he has made 15 home runs and stolen as many bases.

Only in center field can the Cardinals offer a stronger offense on paper than the Yankees. Douthit has hit .309 to .301 for Combs. The Cardinal scored 97 runs against 110 for Combs but his 22 stolen bases dwarfed a total of eight for the Yankees. Combs scored an advantage in home runs, eight to three.

If Hafey goes to left for St. Louis, New York, with Meusel in the opposition role, will make a greater impression on the fact of the season's returns. Meusel has compiled a batting average of .313 and scored 69 runs, with 13 of the runs unaided through the medium of circuit smashes. He has stolen 18 bases. Hafey has a batting average of .270 with 30 runs scored, four home runs, and two stolen bases. He has played only 75 games.

Blades will bring a good record into the series if he is able to appear actively. He has batted .307 with 81 runs scored, six stolen bases and eight home runs. Holm, the fifth St. Louis outfielder, batted .288, scored 18 runs, stole three bases and did not enter the home run class.

Paschal and Carlyle are two hard hitting outfielders, subject to call from the bench. Paschal has a batting average of .285. He has seven home runs and the same number of stolen bases. His runs total 45. Carlyle's batting average of .291 was assembled while he was wearing two uniforms his early season hitting being for the benefit of the Boston Red Sox. Carlyle has made two home runs but has not stolen a base. He has scored 25 runs.

SPEEDBOYS VS. NUTMEGS AT NORWICH SUNDAY

The Jewett City Speedboys will make their initial bow of the 1926 season at the Sachem field in Norwich this coming Sunday. The Norwich Nutmegs will be their opponents and a good game is expected for both teams present a first class line-up.

The Speedboys eleven averages 165 lbs. and is expected by football critics to make a strong bid for the eastern Conn., championship. Sunday the Speedboys will have a team that should prove a real attraction at the Norwich field. In the backfield will be seen, Boss Gallup and Kid West, both of Lynn G. E., Gordon, Greeneville Tigar star and Parkhurst of Wheeler school. Eichelberg and Raille will substitute. On the line such men, as, Tyler and Smith of P. H. S., King of Panoma college and Robertson, ends; Marshall, N. F. A., Cobb, Welsh and Mondor, tackles; Kolbus, Bakanowski and Pulky, guards, Davis and Sawicki, centers.

Later in the season when the Speedboys start playing at home Buck Williams of Plainfield, Kid Allard of C. A. C. and a couple other stars from nearby colleges will be signed and let this serve as notice to all teams desiring games. Write at once to C. J. Parkhurst, Jewett City, Conn.

TAFTVILLE-RIVERVIEW PLAY FINAL SUNDAY

Taftville A. A. and Riverview play the final game of their five game series this coming Sunday at the Hospital diamond. Both teams have taken two games in the first four played and the final game will decide the state championship. Both teams have signed up some big timber for the final battle and among the star attractions for the final game will be a number of Eastern League players.

The game is to be played beginning at 3 o'clock in the afternoon owing to the earlier fall of darkness. Plans have been made by the management of the two teams to bring the world series closer to the patrons at the Hospital by having the play by play story given out between the innings.

COBB PICKS YANKEES TO WIN THE WORLD'S SERIES

OMAHA, Neb., Sept 28—Tyrus Cobb, veteran pilot of the Detroit Tigers, picks the Yankees to beat the Cardinals in the world's series.

En route with Tris Speaker, pilot of the Cleveland Americans and a party of southern sportsmen to Speaker's favorite hunting grounds several miles by pack train from Valley, Wyoming, Cobb said he believed experience would be a deciding factor.

"Almost every member of the Yankees has seen service in a world series," he said, "several of them more than once. The Yanks have good pitchers. That is contrary to popular opinion, but I know I've faced them. The Cards lack experience. The Yanks ought to win."

TORONTO WINS FIRST GAME IN LITTLE SERIES

TORONTO, Sept. 28—(AP)—The Toronto Internationals took the first game of the little world's series from Louisville, American association champions, today by a score of 3 to 0, Jess Doyle getting the verdict over Ben Tincup in a pitchers' duel.

CONN. AGGIES FOOTBALL ELEVEN NOT YET PICKED

(Special to the Bulletin)

STORRS, Sept. 28—The Connecticut Aggie eleven is fast rounding into form for its opening game of the season against Wesleyan at Middletown Saturday, much progress having been made during the past week when scrimmage has been more frequent. No announcement has been made by Coach S. A. Dole as to his starting lineup against the Red and Black, but the work in practice of several men has been such that they seem sure of playing in the first contest. Captain Daly will certainly start at center, barring injuries. He will probably be flanked by veterans in the guard positions, Lorentsen on his right, and Zolin on the left. The latter has been shifted in from the tackle berth he occupied a year ago.

Tackle and end positions present a wide-open competition at the present time, with several candidates fighting hard to make each of the four positions. Longo, a letterman, will probably hold down one tackle berth, while either Wilson or Sayers, both members of last year's frosh eleven, will no doubt get the starting call for the other tackle position. The three leading end candidates appear to be Kennedy, Callahan, and Schildgren.

Unless something unforeseen occurs, it seems like a safe prediction to say that Schofield will start at quarter; Noonan and Eddy in the halfback positions; and Williams at fullback. In this quartet, Coach Dole believes he has a well rounded backfield; one that will give a good account of itself in the Wesleyan fray.

DEMPSEY WAS SICK—BUT NOT UNTIL AFTER FIGHT

NEW YORK, Sept 28—(AP)—"I was sick after the fight but not before. I don't want sympathy and I have no alibi," said Jack Dempsey tonight on his arrival in New York from Atlantic City. The former heavyweight champion was replying to a question if he was sick when he lost his title to Gene Tunney last Thursday night.

Announcing that he had no plans for the future and could not say if he will box again, the deposed king who reigned more than six years pro-game sportsman" applied a few hours "game sportsman" applied a few hours before by Gene Tunney in speaking of the man from whom he had wrested the title.

"No, the wet ring was no handicap. The only handicap I had was myself. I lost to a better man and that's all there is to it. There will be no excuses from us," Dempsey added as he explained that he will remain in New York for a month or more and will decide in a few days what his plans for the future shall be.

"I haven't been in New York in a long while for any length of time, for you know I have no New York license," he said, "and I'm anxious to stay awhile this time. I have a lot of running around to do. I must go to the world series, for one thing, and there are some good shows in town I know."

"As if I didn't have enough trouble," the former champion laughed, "I have the itch now." He hastened to modify his startling statement, however, by saying that he was suffering from a slight but uncomfortable skin irritation. "It's not the seven-year variety," he said. It was contracted during his training for the championship bout.

The defeated champion was still suffering some pain from his eye in which four stitches were taken, but not a great deal of pain. He said, much of the swelling has disappeared about the eye which was closed during the title changing bout.

"Everythings all right," Dempsey told solicitous friends. "But remember, no sympathy and no alibis."

SLOW TIME MADE IN THE KENTUCKY FUTURITY

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 28.—(AP)—Guy McKinney, owned by Henry B. Rea of Pittsburgh, and driven by Nat Ray won the 34th renewal of the Kentucky futurity today. The track was slow and the time, 2:07 and 2:06 3-4 was the slowest trotted in the event since 1912.

The winner was a big favorite and this victory, his sixth one without a defeat makes approximately $70,000 he has won this year.

John E. Madden's Catherine was second, followed by Charm and Guy Dean, respectively.

The Hollyrood, 3:13 pacing stake went to Helene Direct after Thias Direct had won the opening heat. Korak Grattan and Lucy C., were the other winners.

TUNNEY SAYS CHAMPIONSHIP GIVES HIM CHANCE TO REALIZE SOME IDEALS

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(AP)—Gene Tunney dusted off his vocabulary this afternoon to tell a room full of newspapermen how it feels to be a champion. The heavyweight titleholder, meeting two score sports writers, told them at the outset that he was there to use his profitable right to shake hands but in a moment was delivering an address on boxing and how one oughtist regards his profession.

Skeptical sports writers at Tunney's training camp suggested that he was training for the Chautauqua platform rather than the ring. Today the champion convinced his hearers that he can step from the ring to the speaker's platform.

He paid an early tribute to Dempsey. "There is a game sportsman," he declared. "Think of what the night meant for him. Not only did he sacrifice at least two million dollars, but in addition to the financial reward he saw the glory, luster and acclamation that goes with the title fading away. And with all this disappointment his great heart permitted him to extend me congratulations that were undoubtedly sincere and smile when he must have been in pain. That's gameness."

This pronouncement surprised some of his audience but there was more. The boxer talked of his ideas.

"This championship gives me the opportunity to put into realization some ideals I have had since long before I dreamed of being champion," he said.

"I do not propose to have this title demeaned by any cheap publicity. I shall remain here at home for the present and at the moment my boxing activities are in the laps of the Gods and the hands of Tex Rickard. I will meet anyone Mr. Rickard names. He gave me my chance at the championship and I would be ungrateful if I did not do all that I can to reciprocate.

"I will meet Jack Dempsey any time Jack wishes."

"Will you meet Willis?" he was asked.

"I will meet Jack Dempsey any time he says the word" was Tunney's reply.

Tunney at the moment, has only two engagements. He plans to go to Philadelphia Saturday to appear in the stadium where he won the title, as the guest of honor of several thousand Philadelphia children.

He has accepted, also, an invitation to be the guest of honor at a banquet given by the New York state department of the American Legion at the Commodore hotel, New York, October 28.

"I belong to the public now, and I realize my responsibility," the champion said in explaining why he has not decided if he will attend the Sunday's world series baseball game. "Of course, as the champion," he said, "I belong to the public as surely as the stars are a part of the universe but I have not become accustomed to it. Probably I had never told anyone during my training went from Chicago to Pittsburgh to see one of the last world series games. It attracted no attention then, but now its different."

Tunney, in the course of his address, gave a boxing lesson, using sports writers to illustrate. A short right won the championship bout in the first round, he said.

"A boxing authority than whom there is no greater," he said, "came to Stroudsburg and told me that Dempsey would unquestionably change his tactics in this bout. He assured me that the champion would not charge at me as he had done at other opponents but would hesitate ten or twenty seconds. He advised me then to rush to him and attempt to get in a decisive blow.

"I told my friend something that I had never told anyone during my training, that his advice coincided with my plan of fighting. It worked out that way. In the second rush I found the opening I sought and got home the short right which, in my opinion, really won the fight. I had practiced this blow for more than a year.

"Always to the very end of the fight I had to watch that deadly left. I never forgot an instant that it was loaded with TNT. If you do not think it is dynamite and if you think Dempsey has lost his punch, let him hit you as he hit me and then tell me when you wake up, if you do, that Dempsey has lost his punch

"I do not blame the many people who thought I had no chance to win. Many of my own friends conceded me little, if any, chance. In my own camp were persons who counted me out before I was in."

Tunney was surprised, he said, to read some of the "Lives of Tunney." "Many of these so-called 'lives' were written by inexperienced persons who talked to some one from Greenwich Village. Every scalawag in the village must have told them something of my early life. As a matter of fact most of the stories were fiction or worse. I have been exploited as the railway checker who became a challenger for the heavyweight championship. I was never a checker. I was a stenographer and rate clerk. True, I did not command a large salary. I was paid $15 a week and when I asked for a raise I was increased to $15.50. I think I can say in all modesty that I earned it."

Tunney announced that William A. McCabe, one of his oldest friends who started him on the way to the championship by telling him he could reach the heights, had procured a year's leave of absence from his connection with the office of the New York superintendent of prisoners to be with him. Tunney intimated that "Bill" McCabe's position will be that of "confidential friend."

With the champion at his audience to the press were Eddie Hart, former Princeton football captain and Fred Thomson, also a famous Princeton football player. Tunney, commenting on the fact that these two famous athletes, who were his friends overseas had come respectively from St. Petersburg, Fla., and Los Angeles, Calif., to see him win, declared that his most gratifying thought in this triumph is that he has been able to justify the faith of his friends.

"They believed in me," he said, "and so was born my confidence in myself."

FORMER WINNER OVER MISS COLLETT ELIMINATED FROM TITULAR CONTEST

HAVERFORD, Pa., Sept. 28.—(AP)—Three outstanding rivals for the women's golf crown of Glenna Collett were eliminated today in a series of sensational first round upsets which spared the champion herself only after an exciting uphill battle.

While the title-holder was being carried to the home green of the Merion course through a drenching downpour to win over Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, two up, Maureen Orcutt, metropolitan champion, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, victor in the national event of 1924, and Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, who defeated Miss Collett earlier in the season, were meeting unexpected defeat.

Miss Orcutt, failing to bring her putter under command on the wet greens, bowed to Mrs. Lee Mida, of Chicago, Ill., 4 and 3. Excellent recovery shots from soggy traps carried Mrs. J. E. Cassriel, of Aurora, Ill., to victory over Mrs. Hurd, 2 and 1, while Miss Van Wie went down before the consistently good golf of Mrs. Norman Toerge, of Glen Cove, N. Y., who brought off a smooth in-coming card of 38.

Miss Orcutt, Mrs. Hurd and Miss Van Wie follow Louise Fordyce, Marion Turple and Mrs. Dorothy Klotz Pardue, who failed to qualify yesterday, and thus Miss Collett tonight found removed from her path six formidable contenders.

With the links turned into a quagmire by the heavy rain, virtually all the favorites were in danger of defeat and only one victory was scored by a wide margin when Bernice Wall, of Oshkosh, for three years Wisconsin champion, won over Mrs. Arnold Jackson, six and five.

Of the other matches, five went to the 17th green for a decision, five to the 18th, and one match required two extra holes. In the latter, Mrs. Norman Rood of Wilmington, Del., put out Mrs. F. C. Letts of Chicago, 1 up, in another of the day's surprises.

Helen Payson of Portland, Maine, defeated Mrs. C. E. Armstrong of Philadelphia, 2 and 1. Virginia Wilson of Chicago, put out Mrs. J. W. Taylor of Chicago, 2 and 1, and Edith Cummings of Chicago, survived an exciting battle against Helen Meehan of Philadelphia, 3 and 1 in three of the few matches which ran to form.

Miss Wilson was forced to fight her way back to victory after being three down at the tenth, playing the last six holes in one under par to score her win.

A belated rally on the last nine holes failed to save Ada MacKenzie, Canadian champion, who lost to Mrs. G. M. Stetson, Philadelphia, 2 and 1. In other closely contested matches, Ruth Batchelder of Boston defeated Mrs. Raymond Slotter, of Philadelphia, 4 and 3; Rosalie Knapp of New York eliminated Mrs. J. S. Disston, Jr., of Chicago, 1 up; Mrs. Wright D. Goss, Jr., of Short Hills, N. J., defeated Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., of Watertown, Mass., 4 and 3; Princess Anita Lobkowicz, of Watch Hill, R. I., put out Mrs. E. E. Harwood of Chicago, 3 and 2; Mrs. Courtland Smith, New Jersey state champion, shaded Mrs. Stewart Hanley of Detroit, 1 up; and Mrs. J. L. Anderson of Garden City, N. Y., defeated Jane Brooks of Sparkhill, N. Y., 2 up.

Victory beckoned frequently to Mrs Hill in her keenly fought contest against the champion, and it was only by closing with a great rally to win the last three holes that Miss Collett survived the struggle.

Rounding the turn one up, the champion lost the tenth hole by poor putting and the 11th by going twice into a brook, thus becoming one down to Mrs. Hill. She squared the match on the 12th, but lost the short 13th hole, where her opponent nearly holed out in one.

Miss Collett did not even the match again until the 16th, where she was on the green in two and sank her second putt for a birdie four to Mrs Hill's five.

The champion then finished in brilliant style by winning the last two holes in par figures.

HARRY WILLS, TITLE CONTENDER, TO FIGHT SHARKEY ON COLUMBUS DAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(AP)—Harry Wills, negro heavyweight and long standing title contender, will fight Jack Sharkey of Boston in a 15-round match at Ebbets field on Columbus Day, October 12, Promoter Humbert Fugazy announced today.

In taking the match, Wills, through his manager, Paddy Mullins, announced a campaign to meet any and all rivals picked by Promoter Fugazy with the purpose of demonstrating his contention that he is the "Uncrowned Heavyweight Champion of the World."

Mullins issued a statement attacking Jack Dempsey, the former champion, "for sidestepping Wills" for five years; criticizing Gene Tunney, the new title holder, for indicating he would draw the color line and concluding with a fling at Tex Rickard who has declared he will not match Wills with any opponent.

Referring to Rickard's attitude, Mullins declared Wills would not box under any circumstances for the Madison Square Garden promoter.

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Sept. 28.—When superior court for Washington county, September term, convened at the county court house at West Kingston, Tuesday morning Judge Arthur P. Sumner charged the jury, with John M. Farnsworth of Westerly as foreman. For the previous two days they had listened to the damage suit of John F. Reynolds of New York vs. Ethel M. R. Rose. The jury were out but a short time before returning with a verdict of $2,909.18 for the plaintiff in his suit for damages arising from his failure to secure a Narragansett Pier hotel for the summer season for which he had a contract.

State, Fred T. Mitchell, sheriff of Washington county, complainant, vs. George Courtmarsh of Richmond, R. I., was next taken up, as agreed by Third Assistant Attorney General Louis V. Jackvony with the defendant's representative Attorney Archambault of Providence. In this case an indictment was returned by the grand jury when the respondent was charged with transporting a girl in May 1926, for the purpose of prostitution. On his previous plea of not guilty Courtmarsh was released in bonds of $4,000 bail. A jury was empanelled to hear the case.

WASHINGTON TRUST CO. FUNDS NOT INVESTED IN FLORIDA

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Sept. 28.—Depositors with the Washington Trust company, following rumors concerning the bank, continued to take funds from the bank today, in the run which began Monday, especially by Italian residents. Samuel Nardone, a contracting mason of Westerly and an employer of many Westerly Italians, at the bank talked the situation over with prospective withdrawers of funds.

Officers of the bank viewed the situation with no alarm, and Charles Perry, its president, has issued a formal statement contradicting the rumor of losses in Florida. The Washington Trust company, the third oldest bank in Rhode Island, in the report issued Sept. 8, this year, shows totals for deposits of $10,419,678.90, while the total deposits in the statement issued June 30 amounted to $10,068,915.73.

The stock of the Washington Trust company cannot be bought at present and the last sale recorded shows that it went for $250 per share. According to Arthur L. Perry, treasurer of the company, a broker in Providence has a standing order for all the Washington Trust company stock he can buy at $300 per share.

The withdrawals have been largely among residents of the town of Bradford and, according to Mr. Perry, the persons withdrawing are largely of foreign birth.

The statement issued this noon by President Perry follows:

"For the information and protection of our depositors, we wish to state that there is not the slightest foundation for the rumors, current since Monday, that this bank has sustained investment losses, particularly in connection with Florida real estate.

"The bank has not had, and does not have, any funds invested in Florida real estate, or real estate mortgages. Furthermore, the financial condition of the bank has never been stronger than it is now, an examination of our last statement to the State banking department, rendered as of Sept. 8, 1926, will show."

Workmen in the employ of the Westerly Highway department, under direction of Highway Engineer A. L. Leon have been engaged in completing John street toward the top of the hill at Granite street. Pendleton property has been secured and the work of taking down the offset rustic wall to give a more rounding curve to this blind corner will be started. Egger is the present building inspector in Westerly but will have no standard regulations upon which to proceed until the new code is adopted. The committee has prepared the building code similar to that already in use in some of the principal cities, which will be read. It is the purpose of the meeting to give builders, contractors, electricians, and others interested in construction work in Westerly an opportunity to criticise the code before it is taken up by the town council. Up to the present the only code relating to building is a zoning code. The building code deals expressly with the actual construction of buildings in Westerly.

You are sure of the choicest in Armour's STAR BACON

Sliced in pound and half-pound cartons or from the whole piece

YOU have probably noted the rapidly increasing number of new Cadillac owners who have heretofore restricted themselves to lesser cars.

The movement toward the great new line of Cadillac cars is, of course, actuated partly by the fact that the point-by-point comparison reveals the Cadillac to be the greater dollar value.

This new demand for Cadillac, however, has a deeper meaning. It indicates a growing public conviction that, in the long run, the best in motor cars—like the best in everything else—is also the best investment.

And Cadillac is acknowledged the best of all fine cars—not simply because tests prove it to be one of the fastest stock cars in the world, or because of any other one or two or three other features—but because in it every feature is developed to that complete excellence which is Cadillac.

Cadillac is today outselling—two-to-one—the combined total of all other cars at or above its price.

The great new line of Cadillac cars in 50 Body Types and Styles and 500 Color and Upholstery Combinations is another important advance in a continuous series of forward steps which had already left Cadillac almost alone in its own fine field.

"The kind your mother used to bake with"

Glenwood ranges have made cooking easy for two generations of housewives who have made New England baking famous.

The Famous MODEL "C" Glenwood

"It's a Glenwood" that's all the guarantee you need

THE one word "Glenwood" on the oven door of any range you may buy is a guarantee in itself. You don't need any further assurance of its worth. One of the oldest range manufacturers in New England stands back of that name to see that the range gives you the kind of service you have the right to expect. You can take that for granted, always.

The "C" model coal range shown here is just the right size for the average family. Its big, square oven bakes food exactly right—top, bottom and all through. It has six covers in the cooking top and is finished in either black and nickel or in pearl gray porcelain enamel that you can wipe clean in a jiffy with a damp cloth. Come in and see our new Glenwoods.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

A sudden shock 'twill sometimes take
To get some people wide awake.
—Old Mother Nature.

Danny Meadow Mouse had made up his mind that he was going to start for home, though where home was he didn't know. He had been brought to the beach in an airplane, which, as you know, he called a Man Bird. He had climbed out of it as soon as he arrived at the beach and he hadn't thought of it since. But now he could think of nothing else.

"If I can once find that Man Bird," thought Danny, "I'll be safe. Even if it doesn't take me back home right away, I'll be safe. But of course, it will take me back home, just as it brought Nanny and me back from the Sunny South. The first chance I get I think I'll run over to the bathhouse and see if Jimmy Skunk is living under it now. He ought to know where it is."

Now, Danny didn't dare go out at night for fear that Short-ear the Marsh Owl would catch him. And he was afraid that Reddy Fox was watching for him by day. Wasn't that a dreadful situation to be in? But Danny had made up his mind that if he got out at all, it would have to be in the daytime. He wanted to start early in the morning, but he didn't dare do that. But later that morning he heard heavy footsteps. They were the footsteps of those two-legged creatures called men.

"What?" squealed Danny. "Wh-what was that you said?"

They passed very close to that old log under which Danny was hiding.

"Now is my chance," cried Danny to himself. "Reddy Fox won't be hanging around with one of those two-legged creatures here."

So those footsteps had hardly passed when Danny darted out from under the old log and headed straight for a certain bathhouse. It was some time since he had been over there and he wasn't sure that Jimmy Skunk was still living there. When he popped underneath and discovered a black and white ball up in one corner he gave a sigh of relief. It was evident that Jimmy had just come in. He had been out all night, and like most folks who have been out all night, he is pretty well tired out by the time he gets home. But there is one thing about him—he is always good-natured, which is more than can be said for some other folks. You see, being out all night is perfectly all right for Jimmy Skunk.

"Good morning," squeaked Danny. Jimmy didn't hear him. "Good morning, Neighbor Skunk," cried Danny a little louder in that squeaky voice of his.

"I suppose it is," replied Jimmy Skunk sleepily.

"You suppose what is?" demanded Danny, looking puzzled.

"Why, a good morning, of course," retorted Jimmy. "What are you doing over here at this hour?"

"I'm looking for some news," replied Danny. "Can you tell me where that big Man Bird is—the one that brought me here to the seashore?"

"How should I know?" replied Jimmy rather shortly. "That Man Bird flew away the very day after you got here. How should I know where it is?"

"What!" squealed Danny. "Wh-what was that you said?"

"I said that big Man Bird flew away long ago," replied Jimmy. "What's that to you? What are you whimpering about?"

"I-I-I want to go home. I-I-I want to go home, and now I c-c-c-can't. What shall I do?"

"Stay here," replied Jimmy Skunk dryly.

POETRY

Back From Vacation

Back from vacation! Back from city cares!
Goodbye to Summer with the blossoming so fair!
"Howdy," says the merchant, "here's a little bill to pay!"
"Hello!" says the dentist, "I will fix that tooth today."
"Look out!" says the driver of the truck too big to stop.
"Pull up to the curb!" says the indignant motor cop.

Back from vacation, where such happy hours were spent—
Here's the landlord's notice that he'll have to raise the rent!
Price of food and fuel will advance a cent or two.
Radio's not performing in the way it used to do.
Back from vacation! Life's become a weary lot.
We surely needed all the rest and comfort that we got.
—Philander Johnson in Washington Star.

Sing

The heart that keeps a-singing
As it plods along its way,
It sets the hours a-winging
Till work seems just like play.
It matches morning's gladness
With a spirit yeasty light,
And bores a hole through sadness
Before the night.

Of course, we all have trouble;
It sticks, just like our skin;
But don't you make it double
By worrying; you'll get thin!
But meet it with, "Say, sorrow,
Of course you'll have your fling;
Come back and talk tomorrow;
I'm going to sing!"

For song can set to music
The pleasure and the pain;
And raise enough real courage
To move a stalled freight train.
It has some ginger in it
That seems to make you strong.
Be blue about—one minute;
Then start a song!
—Alfred Arnold.

"Algy," she remarked, "how funny you look tonight!"
"Yes, dear," answered her husband. "I'm trying to raise a mustache. I wonder what color it will be when it comes out?"

Dressing up for the Sunday radio church services is the weekly observance at the ranch home of Hardy Farmer, about 25 miles from Junction, Tex. There is no church near the ranch, so the Farmers tune in on services broadcast from various stations. Mrs. Farmer explained that dressing for the occasion assures serious and proper observance of the religious services and thereby affords religious training for the little nine-year-old daughter in the family.

A few moments later another customer drove up and stopped his rickety old car, same make, directly behind the shiny new one. Then customer No. 1 emerged and stepped into the old car and was about to drive away when he was halted by the cry of the owner, "Hey, that isn't your car, you own the new one." "So I do," was the reply of the bewildered one. "I've been driving an old one like it for three years. I guess that I haven't got used to it yet."—Boston Globe.

Bobbed Hair Her Joke

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 28—(AP)—Bobbed hair is "one of life's biggest jokes" to Mary C. Athow, department president of Michigan and Ohio Army Nurses of the Civil war, as she looks on with eyes which have seen events of 93 years.

"A tall, slender girl with a good heavy, straight bob, reminds me of an upturned mop," says the veteran nurse. "It is humorous as well as monotonous to see hundreds of girls following one style like a flock of sheep.

"To give my opinion on the present day styles of dress, cocktail drinking, cigarette smoking, dancing, jazz, bobbed hair and other modern 'evils' would fill a volume. Jazz is a desecration of our most beautiful gift—music. Modest dancing, however, is a delightful recreation and when I was younger I used to enjoy it."

Mrs. Athow is here to attend the annual reunion of her organization, Sept. 28-24.

Nineteen Finer New Models $945 to $1795

All prices f. o. b. Cleveland

WHEN you own any one of the nineteen new Chandler models you can tell the world you've got an automobile—a car you can match against anything on wheels within a mile of the price!

It's smarter. More distinctive—utterly and delightfully different. Stylishly different in design. Briskly different in traffic. Powerfully different on hills. Whisperingly different under the hood.

Different in many other ways, too. Instead of lubricating the car with a grease gun or an oil can, you simply press your heel on the plunger of the car's "One Shot" centralized lubrication system! And instead of changing oil in the crankcase every 500 miles, only a few changes a year are necessary—because of Chandler's inherent engine design, because of an oil purifier, because of an air cleaner!

A total of nineteen charming body styles—all equipped with 4-wheel brakes—a great choice of the most pleasing cars and the most impressive values you've ever laid eyes on.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

COVERED BARNYARD OR OPEN SHED FOR THE DAIRY HERD

The open shed or covered barnyard is a practical method of housing dairy cows. It provides the best known method of saving and preserving all the fertilising constituents of the manure; it permits the feeding under shelter of roughage and makes possible its use for bedding; when there is plenty of bedding cows so housed keep cleaner than those confined in stanchions. These are the principal points in favor of the open-shed system, says the culture.

In an experiment at the Beltsville station it was found that the cows in the open shed produced a little more milk, but at a greater cost for feed, than the cows in the closed barn. The more timid cows were fought away from the feed racks in the shed, which resulted in a much lower production from such cows. Probably it would be a matter of economy to confine the cows at feeding time. Cows so housed should be dehorned.

The labor required under the two systems was slightly greater with the open shed. Had the cows been milked in the open shed this would not have been the case, but since this practice is not recommended in the production of market milk, the cows in this experiment were taken to a separate stable for milking. Sixty-eight per cent more bedding was used in the open shed.

SHREDDED OILED PAPER CUTS APPLE SCALD IN BARREL PACK

The method of controlling apple scald in boxed apples by wrapping the fruit in oiled paper, as developed by the United States department of agriculture, has proved so satisfactory that a modification of the method is being tested for barreled apples. When the barrel is used it is impracticable to wrap each apple, but satisfactory results can be obtained by scattering throughout the pack a quantity of shredded oiled paper. The department has tested the efficacy of the modified method in a commercial way for three seasons and reports that when properly distributed in the barrel or other package, shredded oiled paper has proved highly efficient in the control of the disease.

Nineteen different tests covering seven different varieties were made. In the untreated barrels from 24 to 96 per cent of the apples, or an average of 67 per cent, were scalded to such an extent as to be discriminated against on the market. On the other hand, the barrels containing shredded oiled paper showed only an average of 4 per cent of the fruit scalded. Eight of the treated barrels were entirely free of the disease. Tests have also been made with apples in hampers, baskets, and boxes with equally good or somewhat better success.

It is generally estimated that the shredded paper adds 20 to 25 cents a barrel to the cost of packing the apples. If the fruit is to pass into consumption early in the season, there is little chance of recovering this amount in the selling price, but when it has been held beyond the peak of the season for the variety, profits several times greater than the cost have often been realized.

Shredded paper is not a guaranty against all misfortune, says the department. However, when properly applied so that each apple comes in contact with the oiled paper, it can usually be made a source of profit to the grower, and by adding to the keeping quality of the apples it contributes a stabilizing effect to the apple industry.

METHODS OF PROPAGATING NUT TREES

Useful information on the propagation of various nut trees is given by C. A. Reed of the United States department of agriculture in Farmers' Bulletin, No. 1501-F, Nut-Tree Progagation, just published. Nut trees do not reproduce themselves true to variety when grown from seed, but must be propagatde asexually as other fruits. Propagation with most species of nut trees is more difficult than with ordinary fruit trees although the general principles are the same. Certain methods of budding and grafting are practically identical with nuts and with fruits.

The ability to propagate nut trees should be acquired by every grower, says Mr. Reed, so that if the occasion arises he may top-work to better kinds any inferior trees in his planted orchards, may work over seedlings in his native groves or, if necessary, may establish a branch or two of a variety for pollination purposes from the tops of trees of standard varieties. With new varieties it often happens that scions only are available and not trees. Trees in sufficient numbers for orchard planting may not be available. In any case, by obtaining from a nursery a single tree true to variety, the planter may provide himself with an early supply of scion wood with which to increase his planting stock.

The purpose of this bulletin is to provide growers with a working knowledge of how asexual propagation is effected. It is not to encourage the general practice of growing their own trees, as the production of desirable planting stock is expensive and without experience it is generally unsatisfactory. Under normal conditions it is cheaper in the end to buy such stock from professional nurserymen.

Regardless of other reasons that prompt a mastery of the art of propagation, the nut orchardist will find his ability to bud or graft his trees of great advantage in handling his orchard, says Mr. Reed.

WINTER STORES FOR BEES

When honey in the hive is not of the best quality, it is unsafe for winter stores in any place where the bees do not have frequent flights during the winter, viz. almost every week. In the north, about 10 or 12 pounds of sirup made from two parts granulated sugar to one part water should be fed as soon as the bees have ceased brood rearing, as an insurance against the danger of poor honey. It is wiser, however, to have an upper story or "food chamber" already filled with the finest honey of the season, ready to place just above the breed chamber when the section supers or other surplus arrangements are removed. This will do away with the need of fall or spring feeding.

FEATHER-PICKING AND CANNIBALISM IN PULLETS

Judging from the reports received throughout Connecticut and from other states, the habit of feather-picking among chickens and growing stock has been usually widespread and troublesome. This difficulty is very naturally followed by cannibalism when the pullets are housed for the winter and get into heavy production.

While no positive treatment for this difficulty has yet been presented, there are some factors which help materially. These may be listed as follows:

Green food fed abundantly. Alfalfa or clover range for growing and finishing pullets. Green alfalfa or clover, or alfalfa leaf meal for pullets in winter quarters. Other forms of green food will of course help, but are probably not quite equal to alfalfa.

Bone meal fed in the mash at the rate of 5 per cent of the total.

Salt fed in the mash at the rate of 1 per cent. (Fine table salt is best.)

Milk—either skimmed, powdered, or semi-solid, is excellent. Five per cent powdered milk in the mash, 2 1-2 quarts of skimmed milk per 100 birds per day, or 2 pounds of semi-solid buttermilk per 100 birds per day, will each give about the same amount of milk dry matter. With the addition of the milk and the bone meal, the meat scrap should not exceed 10 per cent of the mash.

Cod liver oil appears to have some value in controlling feather-picking and cannibalism. Its feeding is justified for the improvement in egg-shell texture, the reduction in general mortality, and in resistance to chicken pox. It is worth while to purchase a good grade of oil. During the fall and winter, when mash consumption is light, feed at the rate of 2 pints to each 100 pounds of mash, or 1 pint per 100 birds per week.

Room is an important factor in controlling cannibalism. Relieve crowding, and as a last resort, let the birds outside.

Do not encourage pullets to lay more than 60 per cent. Higher production than this is apt to decrease body weight, increase the chances for a fall molt, and decrease the total annual production.

Continue with a double allowance of cotton meal in the dry mash, and feed heavily on grain, particularly corn. If the pullets are not accustomed to eating whole corn, gradually increase the proportion in the scratch grain, so that 50 to 75 per cent of the grain ration may be whole corn after November 1st. Feed two pounds of grain to every pound of mash, not limiting the amount of mash fed, but rather by feeding heavily on the grain.

Do not use artificial light on the pullets before November 1st unless it is necessary with very early-hatched pullets to check a slump in production and prevent an early fall molt.

ALFALFA LEAVES DO NOT PUMP WATER FROM STEMS

There is a popular belief that alfalfa and other hays cure more rapidly when handled so as to keep the leaves in a fresh condition until the stems have lost much of their moisture. This belief rests on the assumption that so long as the leaves are not dry they continue to draw or pump the moisture from the stems. It is partly because of this theory that curing in the windrow or cock does retain more of its leaves, thereby increasing its feeding value. So far as can be ascertained, however, no experiments have hitherto been conducted to determine whether or not the leaves actually aid in removing water from the stems. With this in mind some tests were begun in 1924 and continued in 1925 by department investigators, the results of which are discussed in department bulletin No. 1424-D, just published.

Samples of alfalfa were taken and weighed immediately. Some of them were left to cure in the natural condition—that is with the leaves on—while the leaves were picked from others by hand. Weighings were made at intervals to determine the rapidity with which the various samples lost their moisture.

In every case where the leaves were removed from the stems the alfalfa dried out somewhat more rapidly than where it was allowed to cure in its natural state; that is, with the leaves on. The difference was not great and just how much of this is due to handling can not be easily determined. However, it is perfectly clear from the data that alfalfa in the quantities used in the tests cures at least as rapidly with leaves removed as with them attached, which is contrary to the popular belief.

These extensive tests would seem to indicate the fallacy of the popular theory concerning the pumping action of the leaves, but this need not necessarily change the practice of curing hay in the windrow or cock. Some other explanation must be made for the beneficial results of the practice, however.

DANIELSON

MADBEE TO WOUD PROTEST REGARDING BREED OF DOG

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 28.—Earle M. Wood of Taftville is right! There is no officially recognized Esquimo Spitz breed of dog. This, on the word of officials of the Windham County Kennel club, when they were discussing Mr. Wood's letter to the editor of The Bulletin that appeared in Monday's issue of the paper. Mr. Wood's discussion of the subject was inspired by a report of the dog show at the Brooklyn fair as it appeared in the columns of this paper on a day last week. An error in listing accounted for such a breed as the Esquimo Spitz appearing in the list of exhibits and awards. There is a breed of dog known as Esquimo and another known as Spitz or Spitzen, but as to the Esquimo Spitz, that's another thing entirely. An "Esquimo Spitz" has no standing among thoroughbreds, no standing with the American Kennel club. And all of this is agreed to by officials of the Windham County Kennel club.

There are dogs around Danielson and other communities in this vicinity that are called Esquimo Spitz by their owners. They are exceedingly pretty animals, pure white, spirited and companionable and are exceptionally pleasing to owners, not largely concerned with their official rating as to being thoroughbreds. All of which in no way detracts from Mr. Wood's insistence that the record be kept straight. In this he has the endorsement of the Windham County Kennel club officials. They regret that an error should have been made that resulted in the press getting a wrong listing that would make it appear that an "Esquimo Spitz" should be rated as a thoroughbred breed. There is no such thing.

FORMER NORWICH PEOPLE FOUND IN GEORGIA TOWN

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Sept. 28.—Hackneyed though the saying may be that "this is a small world", it takes on particular pertinence in relating to their many friends here how happily situated Mr. and Mrs. Ira A. McDaniel are at Cedartown, Ga., to which community Mr. McDaniel, formerly assistant treasurer of the Goodyear Mills, Inc., here, has been transferred by direction of the officials of the parent company, the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company of Akron, O.

Loss of their pleasant social contacts here has been lessened in considerable degree for Mr. and Mrs. McDaniel by reason of the fact that they find themselves set down in a Georgia community that abounds in residents who are former eastern Connecticut people. A next door neighbor formerly lived in Jewett City. Close at hand is another family that formerly called Sterling, Conn., their home. And in the vicinity are other families that hail from Norwich and communities near it and still others from New London. All these people have more or less close relations with the Cedartown textile development undertaken by the big tire company.

Writing to her parents, Sheriff and Mrs. Charles E. Ayer of Dayville, Mrs. McDaniel tells of her pleasure at finding things so congenial in a community so far from her old home and of her happiness over being in a village with so many people hailing from her own countryside.

Republican leaders of the town of Killingly have issued the warning that the chances of success of republican candidates in next Monday's election—especially candidates for selectmen—may be seriously endangered, as to election, if the individual republican is tempted to listen to the peas of democratic candidates for selectmen for support at the polls from their republican friends.

The democratic party is split wide open over the selectmen issue. There is no secret about this. Battalions of democrats are going to vote for only one democratic candidate for selectmen and in some cases for neither one. The democratic candidates are fully aware of this and are proceeding accordingly. Knowing that there is no party harmony or solidarity on the selectmen issue they are in each case working for their own salvation at the polls, and their friends are assisting. This situation is largely due to the fact that the democratic town caucus to name candidates produced a surplus of 40 votes more than the check list called for. There is particular dissension over this in the ranks of the democratic party in the second district.

The interest of the republican leaders is to inform the party rank and file that it should not risk the loss of its own candidates for selectmen by donating a vote to either democratic candidate for selectman. These republican leaders tell you that in situations like the one now prevailing in Killingly you can be so generous with your democratic friends as to ruin the chances of republican candidates for election—and that the republican party would be kicking itself plenty the morning after election to find out that it had given away the office of first selectman. Anything can happen in the way of election results, these leaders will tell you; when the stage is set right, and that appears to be the case right now.

At the Westfield Congregational church Suuday the vesper service is to be one of unusual interest. Two members of the Connecticut Missionary team which is touring the state will be present and will speak. Rev I. Edwin Elder has a record of notable Christian achievement as a minister in a rural field in Colorado. The second speaker, Rev. John J. Banings, comes from Pasumalai, India, and is described as having "the mind of a statesman and the heart of a missionary". Both men have known the meaning of devotion and consecration and of the kind of hard work that accomplishes things.

Local people have made contributions to the fund of $2,000 being raised to install a new heating system in the Mt. Calvary church at Norwich. At the present time contributions to this fund are in excess of $1,000. Mrs. Ransom Liner, an attendant at the Norwich church, has been receiving the contributions here and Tuesday remarked with gratitude on the generosity of Danielson people toward the movement.

It is established that there was no truth in the story that the democratic party would replace the name of one of its caucus nominees for the town school committee with that of Miss Emma F. Pilling, whose term on the board expires next Monday. The specimen ballots, which have a list of candidates identical with that appearing on the official ballots does not carry Miss Pilling's name. If she is to be re-elected, those who would assist to that end must write in her name, and this may be done in the space provided for a candidate for a two-year term and for which the democratic caucus made no nomination.

A suit case with valuable contents that was lost from the running board of an automobile traveling between Danielson and Brooklyn, by a young woman who was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney W. Bard of Brooklyn at the time, has been returned, through newspaper publicity. The suit case was picked up by a party of Providence people touring this section. A friend of this party who knew of their finding the case, which contained nothing that would identify the owner, a Waterbury girl, saw an advertisement of the loss and notified the finders, who were liberally rewarded.

Acting as trustee and by order of the superior court, Judge Babin S. Russell has had a "bond" fire with $20,000 in bonds of the People's Light and Power company as fuel. The power company is no longer in existence, as its properties here are now merged with the holdings of the Eastern Connecticut Power company, the local subsidiary of which is the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company. PUTNAM

TESTIMONY ALL IN TUESDAY IN WETHERBEE MURDER TRIAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 28—The testimony in the Raymond Wetherbee murder trial in the superior court was concluded just before the noon recess today. When the court reconvened at 1 o'clock the defense announced that it had no other witnesses and State's Attorney Bradford said that the state would call no one in rebuttal.

It was agreed between the attorneys and the court that two and one-half hours would be allotted to each side for arguments. Mr. Bradford made the opening plea for the state, followed by Irving H. Miron for the defense. Tomorrow Samuel B. Harvey will close for the defense and William A. King will make the final argument for the state. Judge Booth will deliver his charge and one of the most sensationally interesting cases in the history of Windham county courts will be given to the jury.

All the morning was taken up in the examination of three witnesses, Miss Falkins, head nurse at the Day Kimball hospital, Drs. S. B. Overlock of Pomfret and Dr. Charles J. Bartlett of New Haven.

Miss Falkins said that she had seen Miss Pytko immediately after she was brought to the hospital and because of the condition she was in she asked if she had had medical attention. The question, she said, referred to whether there had been a doctor present at the time the child was born. Miss Pytko replied that she had not. The witness then asked her if any one had been with her, her mother, or any one, and she had said that her mother was dead, that her sister was with her.

A long, hypothetical question covering the situation as given by Miss Pytko, the complainant witness, who was jointly indicted with Wetherbee for the killing of the infant, was read to the two physicians and they were asked their opinions on the different phases of it. Both said they did not believe it was possible for the infant to have been born in the manner described by the mother, and both declared that it was not possible for the umbilical cord to have been severed as she said it was—by drawing her thumb nail across it three times. Both had conducted tests since the affair happened with a view of obtaining first hand information.

SCOUTMASTER WOODWARD PUTS PEP INTO ACTIVITIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Sept. 28—With the advancement of Scoutmaster Jerome W. Andrews to the rank of assistant commissioner, the Boy Scouts of Troop No. 1, Putnam, held their first meeting under the direction of their new scoutmaster, Lieut. Charles A. Woodward. Mr. Woodward and the patrol leaders have planned a program for the coming winter months, which includes the hope for a club or scout room somewhere in the down town district where they will be able to spend their evenings. They planned many social events including the annual dance in February.

The new scoutmaster is very much interested in the scout movement, and plans to have the local scouts render services to the town which will be deserving of the best support of the citizens of Putnam can give to the organization which trains and entertains the young men of the town.

The troop committee is composed of Stanley F. Bacon, chairman, Jerome W. Andrews, Samuel Rich, George Lewis, Jr., and Whitman Danielson. CENSUS REVEALS ASTONISHING FACT

8,549,511 Working Women in United States

MRS. W. M. BAILEY
R. F. D. No. 5, BOX 27, ATLANTA, GEORGIA

Many Say Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps Keep Them Fit to Work

8,549,511 women would be a vast army. According to the 1920 Census of Manufactures, that is the number of women and girls employed in all trades in the United States.

Napoleon said, "An army travels on its stomach." This army of women travels on its general health: Every working girl knows that time lost through illness seldom is paid for and seldom can be made up. Employers demand regularity. If she wants to keep her job or hopes for a better one, she must guard her health.

Atlanta, Ga.—"My system was weak and run-down, and I was tired. I was this way for five years or more. I read your advertisement in the papers and I decided to try your medicine, the Vegetable Compound, but I did not begin to take it regularly until after I was married. I got so much good from it that I feel fine and have gained in weight. I work in a broom shop, but my work is not so hard on me now, and I keep my own house, and work my garden, too. I am telling all my friends of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and how it has helped me."—Mrs. W. M. Bailey, R. F. D. No. 5, Box 27, Atlanta, Georgia.

Missouri Woman Helped

Parkville, Mo.—"I am proud to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was so ill that I could not lie down at night. Then I got my husband to go to the store and buy me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I was up and around before the first bottle was gone, although I only weighed about ninety pounds. I took six or eight bottles and was able to do all my housework, washing and ironing, take care of my five boys, and tend to my chickens and garden, where before I had to hire my washing and part of my housework."—Mrs. Anna Cole, R. R. 6, Parkville, Missouri.

Three Extras

To describe the costly extra process which lifts Luckies out of the ordinary would take a volume of technical description.

But you can get the results instantly because in a Lucky Strike you'll find the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos properly aged, perfectly blended—and something more.

You'll realize that there is something about them which gives them distinction.

All because of an extra process—toasting.

When you smoke Luckies, you'll find:

1. Finer Flavor. Toasting for 45 minutes develops the hidden flavors of the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos.
2. Smoothness. Toasting for 45 minutes removes all "bite" and harshness, hence never any throat irritation.
3. Freshness. Then the tobacco is suddenly chilled. This seals the flavor in and insures constant freshness.

Thus the toasting process is an addition. It adds a unique and distinct improvement to a cigarette that has already been made from the finest Turkish and domestic tobacco. It is the reason millions prefer Lucky Strikes.

"It's toasted"

That's Why Luckies Taste So Good

COAST GUARD SAILOR ANNOYS GIRLS IS REBUKED IN NEW LONDON COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 28.—Darrel Darner, a sailor of the coast guard, was charged in the police court this morning with annoying young girls of the Crowley club, as they came from O'Leary's, last evening after they had feasted there at the close of the motion picture show. The girls, some 75 of them, had made up a theatre party and then had gone by arrangement to the restaurant to dine. Darner and another sailor were close at hand when the girls left the place. The sailors walked into the group of girls as they moved along to State street, which conduct attracted the attention of Policeman John Sullivan, who quickly called Darner to account for his conduct. The result was that Darner was locked up for the night and this morning was charged with offensive conduct and behavior. He sought to prove that he did nothing that was offensive and that it was a mistake to have accused him, but he made a bad mess of it, for the testimony of the policeman was against him positively. The court ascertained that Darner had overstayed his leave of absence from the ship on which he is a member of the crew and realizing that discipline would come to him for his laxity, judgment was suspended and he was held for the ship. His companion was not arrested.

COURT SHOWS LENIENCY WITH FORMER ENGINEER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 28.—Joseph Bartlett of Poquonoc Bridge, formerly an engineer on the Central Vermont railroad, who was discharged some two years ago when he was concerned in an accident at Putnam, was in the police court this morning charged with operating an automobile with markers that did not belong on the car. He pleaded guilty and then it was explained for him that he was married and had a wife and four children to support. He has been out of work much of the time since his discharge, though he has done whatever work he could get to do. It came out that he was the owner of an automobile not in good condition and that he placed the markers the car carried on the machine to get it to New London where he sold it for $35. This money, he represented, he was to give to Mrs. Bartlett for the support of the family. Whether he carried out his intention was not disclosed. He said he had tried to secure employment on other railroads but had not been successful. He was without funds and needed the money more than he needed the auto. It was manifestly a case wherein hardship would result, so the court did not impose penalty. On the way to New London the car of Bartlett was in collision with another machine which was badly damaged. That will put the expense upon Bartlett.

Three bummers were found stealing a ride on the federal express on the New Haven railroad when it reached here last midnight. They were locked up for the night and this morning were released by the court on the promise to leave town.

Patrick Connolly came over from Jewett City, where he has been at work and brought with him $38 in cash and his deposit book of savings in the postal bank. He was later found drunk and was locked up forthwith for that the he had money on the morning when he was in the police court. It would be otherwise would not have possessed. He pleaded to be allowed to go to Jewett City, where he said he could get work. It was a question whether he would do as he had agreed to do but the court decided to take him at his word and suspended judgment that he might test his will power. In March, Connolly was sent to jail for four months, but that did not seem to have taught him wisdom.

Joseph Saunders was fined $10 for intoxication because he has been a frequent visitor to court. He borrowed the money and paid, so he was released from jail.

Two cases of parking ordinance vio- were left to the court, but the charges were not prosecuted.

This morning it was discovered that one of the combattants, John Connors, of New Haven, who is employed here as a teamster, had sustained an ugly laceration over the right eye, the injury being sustained when he fell on the pavements during the fight. Jacob E. Beckwith, 75, well known resident of Niantic, died at his late home last night. He is survived by his wife and several nephews and nieces. He was born in East Lyme and had always resided there. Mr. Beckwith suffered a shock several months ago and recently he suffered a second attack. He was a member of Bay View lodge of Masons of Niantic.

George Madon of Jay street, em-ployed at the plant of the Edward Bloom Silk company, Garfield avenue, is a patient at Lawrence hospital, suffering from a painful injury sustained yesterday. His left eye-ball is ruptured and it is possible that he will suffer the loss of that eye, although such an outcome will not be determined for a few days.

Madon was in performance of his duties when a part of a spinning machine became loose, the object finally being hurled through the air, when it struck Madon on the eye. He was given medical attendance, but because of the nature of the wound and its seriousness, the physician ordered Madon removed to the hospital. At the institution today it was stated that Madon was as comfortable as could be expected.

THAMES SHIPYARD FIRE STARTS UNDER BOILER ROOM

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Sept. 28—The Thames Shipyard, owned by the Thames Towboat company on the bank of the Thames river north of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad bridge was threatened with serious damage by fire this evening, when a lively blaze was discovered in the boiler room. Following the discovery of the blaze at 6:30 o'clock by the watchman two alarms were rung in from Box 19, located at the plant, summoning practically every piece of the city's fire fighting equipment to the yard. The fire was not subdued until an hour after it was discovered, but the damage will not be great.

Most of the buildings there are of brick construction, only two or three being of wood. There were numerous boats on the ways or moored at the pier, including five 75-footers, the property of the federal government, which were undergoing repairs, principally from the fact that the many boats were liable to become endangered the second alarm was rung in.

The fire was discovered when great clouds of smoke were observed issuing from the boiler room. The first alarm had scarcely been turned in before the second alarm was sounded, and as several of the fire apparatus were entering the yard. The second alarm brought the additional apparatus, including pumpers and hook and ladder. On the arrival of Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and the firemen, the blaze was located beneath the floor of the boiler room and probably originated from the boiler. Adjoining the boiler room is the machine shop, but the fire did not reach this building. So stubborn was the fire that several holes were made in the floor in order to reach the flames. The amount of the damage could not be estimated this evening.

The money, which was all specie was in a bag and in a hiding place behind the counter apparently unknown to anyone but Conway. When Conway left the store about 3 o'clock he counted the money and placing it in the bag, put it in its accustomed hiding place. When he returned at 5.40 o'clock the bag and the money was missing. Suspicion pointed to a frequenter of the store, who had been known to have borrowed $3 earlier in the day and when he was taken to the police station by Sergeant Samuel Hick for examination, had about $9 in change on his person, but as he explained how he came with so much change in a manner that could not be denied, the young man was given his freedom, although the police are of the opinion that he stole the money.

CASTE SYSTEM OF OLD JAPAN BARS WAYS OF ROMANCE

TOKYO, Sept. 28 (AP) — Japanese pride of caste which caused a poor family to refuse to permit a son to marry a girl of the highest social order has created an unusual romantic situation arousing much sympatay throughout Japan.

General Baron Tanaka is one of the wealthiest and most prominent Japanese. He is head of the powerful Seiyukait party and, at any time, may be premier of Japan. Lieutenant Masayuki Kozowa comes from a poor and lowly family, but a family of pride in its class.

In his extreme youth he was put out to service and became one of the servants of Baron Tanaka. There the youngster grew up with the beautiful Yaeko, daughter of the baron.

From the first Baron Tanaka conceived a liking for the boy and soon he was almost like one of the family, becoming a constant playmate of the young daughter. The baron decided to give the youth an education, so put him through school and later, through his great influence in the army, obtained his entrance to the military academy. In the meantime, it was apparent to all that Yaeko and Kozawa were madly in love with each other. Baron Tanaka did not object. He liked the young man and he wanted his daughter to be happy. But there was a matter of family.

The family is everything in Japan, and the individual nothing. It is the family that arranges and permits marriages. Their consent is absolutely necessary for a union. Baron Tanaka thought he saw a way to make Kozawa the equal of his daughter. He would adopt him according to a common Japanese custom and make him his son and heir.

The proposal of adoption was made to Kozawa's family and an executive session was held to decide the matter. It lasted several days and finally Baron Tanaka was informed that the adoption and proposed marriage could not be; that the Kozawa family, although poor and lowly, still had its pride which would not permit one of its members to marry out of his class, even though that class was very much higher.

There the matter rests for the moment, but the romantic ones are still hoping Kozawa's family will relent—and love will find a way.
